

Minnesota's Famous Symphony Orchestra

MUSIC MASTERS . . .

The Minneapolis Symphony, under the direction of Dimitri Mitropoulos, will appear at McArthur court this evening. The program is free to all University students.

Minneapolis Symphony to Play Tonight at 8:15

The 90-piece Minneapolis symphony orchestra will appear in McArthur court tonight at 8:15 p. m. Conducted by Dimitri Mitropoulos, the orchestra is making a nation-wide tour. The concert is open to either members of the Eugene Civic Music association, sponsor of the artist series, or the ASUO.

Members of Phi Theta Upsilon and Kwama, junior and sophomore women service honoraries, will usher. They are asked to come to McArthur court in uniform by 7 p. m. The doors will open at 7:30 p. m.

1906 Tour

Making its first tour in 1906 the orchestra has traveled in all parts of the United States as well as Canada and Cuba. During these years, it has played over 2,700 concerts in almost 400 cities.

Dimitri Mitropoulos, conductor, uses no baton and conducts from memory. He decided early in his career that he could get along without a score. The matter of the baton came later and introduced a new technique to the profession of orchestra conducting, he states. Mitropoulos feels that one can't keep his eye on music on a desk, turn pages constantly, and still command an easy, flowing performance from the orchestra. At least, he feels he can't.

The famed conductor feels that America is on the threshold of a golden age of music. He points out that most of Europe's musical talent has found its way to this continent and that from it the American musician and composer is learning invaluable. "There is no question in my mind," he has stated, "that the next Beethoven or Bach will be an American."

Tonight's program will include: Tone Poem, "Death and Transfiguration and Symphony in D Minor.

Season Opens With Foul Ball

The opening of baseball season will be celebrated Saturday night from 9 to 12 p. m. when the first annual Foul Ball rolls into Gerlinger hall, Tom Hazzard announced yesterday.

Informal dress will be the order of the evening. The wearing of baseball caps is being encouraged, but no cleats will be allowed on the dance floor, Hazzard said.

Baseball fans may proceed to Gerlinger individually or with dates. Prices of admission have been set at 60 cents per couple and 50 cents for stags.

During the seventh-inning stretch the traditional rendition of "Casey at the Bat" and other entertainment is being planned by the Webfooters, promoters of the rally squad, under the direction of Sam Gillette.

Red hots and pop will be available while they last, Hazzard said.

Women's Houses Invite Senior Girls

Women's living organizations on the campus have sent invitations to approximately 350 high school seniors to be their guests for the weekend of April 18-20, Barbara Johns, president of AWS, announced Monday. The invitations were extended through AWS.

The high school girls will be those who have signified their intention of enrolling in the University next fall. On the campus they will be guests of the living organizations in which they have expressed an interest.

"This year we are confining spring rushing activity of women's houses to one weekend instead of the former practice of having it spread out over the entire term. Of course this has the advantage of taking the high school girls away from their schools for one weekend only, instead of several as was previously the case. It also benefits us by leaving the houses more time for studies," Miss Johns said.

The visitors will be entertained Friday night at the "Nickel Hop." On Saturday they will be guests at a luncheon given by Oregon Mothers and at a Panhellenic tea that afternoon. The visiting seniors will leave Sunday afternoon following church services and dinner in the several houses.

Emerald Help Needed

Due to the telephone strike, it has been impossible to notify those who applied for duty on the Emerald copy desk and night staff. A work list has been completed and all applicants may appear at the "Shack" for work at the times signed for at the meeting held April 3. Positions on the night staff and copy desk are still available. Anyone desiring such work should contact Jeanne Simmonds or Walt McKinney at the Emerald news room.

Goshen Hears Team

Members of the University symposium team will speak tonight at the Goshen graage on the sales tax in Oregon.

Sponsored by the educational activities board, the team will be made up of Winston Carl, Ann Brady, and Eugene Gillard.

Stubbles Bloom as City Centennial Approaches

University males now seen around the campus with sprouting beards are not precocious freshmen preparing for next fall's Whiskerino, a special Emerald survey disclosed yesterday.

The whiskers are being grown by Eugene students in preparation for the pageant celebrating this city's one hundredth birthday which will be presented July 23 through 26.

Warren Miller Awarded Cup

By JUNE GOETZE
Assistant News Editor

Warren Miller, junior in journalism, received first honors in the 23rd annual meeting of the Pacific Forensic league held at the University of Arizona in Tucson. He was awarded a cup, and the University received the travelling cup for taking first place.

The eight far-western colleges and Universities which entered contestants were Whitman college, the University of Washington, University of Southern California, Stanford university, the University of Oregon, Oregon State college, and the University of Nevada.

USC Takes Second

Second place honors went to the University of Southern California, and the University of Nevada was awarded third place.

In the preliminary extempore speech, Miller spoke on the affirmative side of "Is it Democratic to Limit Labor Unions' Activity by Restrictive Legislation?" Contestants were given one hour to prepare a ten-minute speech.

Miller's topic in the finals was the affirmative of "Shall America Open Its Immigration Doors to the World's Dispossessed?"

James Bedingfield, junior in law, gave an oration dealing with the Arab-Jewish situation in Palestine. Both he and Miller also participated in discussion periods analyzing the labor problem and its possible solution.

W. A. Dahlberg, acting head of the speech and drama department, supervised discussion periods at the contest.

Last year Rex Gunn, sophomore in liberal arts, took second place in both the oratory and after-dinner speaking contests.

Next year's contest will be held in Reno.

Business Men To Hold 'Clinic'

The sixth annual student business conference will be held by the school of business administration April 15, 16, and 17, Dean Victor P. Morris announced.

The conference will be in the form of a "guidance clinic" to assist business students in their fields. Approximately 25 businessmen from various parts of the state will be on the campus for the conference, representing such fields as banking, insurance, real estate, merchandising, wholesaling, and secretarial fields.

Fields Explained

In each of the conferences, the business representative will open the talk with an explanation of his particular field of work, listing its qualifications, opportunities, advantages, and disadvantages. The conference will then be thrown open for discussion. The sessions will be held each day between 2 and 3:15 p. m. After a short intermission during which Phi Chi Theta, business honorary,

Movie Time Changed

Due to the concert tonight, the old time comedy movies previously scheduled for tonight will be shown tomorrow night at 207 Chapman hall beginning at 7:30. Included will be comedies from 1908 to 1929 by Walt Disney, Harold Lloyd, Robert Benchley and others.

Titles are "The Doctors Secret," "Gertie the Dinosaur," "His Bitter Pill," "The Freshman," "The Sex Life of the Polyp," and "The Skeleton Dance." There is no admission charge.

Students of Caucasian Ancestry Edit Unique Japanese Quarterly

By PAT KING

If you happen to drop into the Romance language department, and see Assistant Professor Laurence LeSage casually glancing through a small, blue-covered magazine, don't pass it off as just another professor reading some literary effort in Spanish, German, or French.

LeSage, who teaches Japanese, has recently received a Japanese quarterly magazine, the first of its kind to be published in the United States, from the Military Intelligence Service Language school, Presidio of Monterey, California.

A few photographs and small pen drawings illustrate the articles, and due credit is given to the staff which is made up of students of Oriental and Caucasian ancestry who are being trained as linguists for the occupation forces in Japan.

Council Names Miss Carroll To Mom's Post

Constitution Adopted For Use by Classes

Beverly Carroll, senior in general social science, was appointed Mother's Day chairman at the ASUO executive council meeting yesterday. Miss Carroll will work with committee heads of Junior Weekend in planning Mother's Day.

Constitution Revision

Hal Brevig, senior representative, submitted the model class constitution to the group for approval. They voted to adopt it for all the classes.

The new constitution provides for the name of the class, specific membership status in the classes determined by the Academic Rules and Regulations committee of the University, officers and order and manner of succession, duties of class officers, appointment of committees, eligibility for office, nominations for office, elections, class meetings, class finance and installation of officers.

Wally Johnson, student union chairman, outlined plans for the forthcoming student union drive, both on the campus and nationally.

Athletic awards were approved for members of the swimming and basketball team earning them.

PNCC Resolutions Receive UO Vote

By KIRK BROWN

Resolutions drawn up by the PNCC and covering a wide range of the problems facing the United Nations, were voted on last night at McArthur court by some 200 members of the Oregon student body who attended the assembly.

Tom Kay, student body president, opened the assembly with an introduction of Victor P. Morris, dean of the school of business administration. Dean Morris acted as moderator for the discussion and Dr. Paul Dull, adviser for the International Relations club, assisted Ted Hallock and Catherine Crombie, Oregon delegates to the congress in explaining the resolutions.

The 26 resolutions submitted concern international, political, and legal problems; disarmament and atomic energy; world economic problems; social problems and human rights; and dependent peoples and trusteeships.

Atomic Energy

Most of the discussion from the floor centered on atomic energy control and the questions of maintaining an international military force.

When the question arose as to how the United Nations might be assured that members are complying with the resolution prohibiting
