

Dr. Newburn Names New Heads

Two Department Heads, Professor Await State Education Board Okay

Science, Speech, Journalism Vacancies Filled by Drs. Dicken, McCall, Campbell

Appointment of two heads of departments and one professor were announced by Dr. Harry K. Newburn, University president. Their names and the University budget will be presented to the state board of higher education in May for approval.

Dr. Samuel N. Dicken, professor of geography at the University of Minnesota, has been recommended for the position of head of the department of geology and geography. Dr. Warren D. Smith, present head of the department, will retire July 1.

Recommended to head the department of speech and dramatic arts is Dr. Roy C. McCall, present head of the department of speech in the College of the Pacific, Stockton, California. W. A. Dahlberg has been acting head of the department since it was established last fall.

The name of Dr. Lawrence R. Campbell, professor of journalism in the Syracuse university school of journalism, will be presented for approval as professor of journalism.

Dr. Dicken, who has been on the staff of the University of Minnesota since 1929, was graduated from Marietta college, Ohio, in 1924. In addition to his major of geology, he minored in geography and received his degree cum laude.

While working for his doctoral degree, which he received from the University of California at Berkeley in 1930, he edited the Meteorological Synopsis and was a teaching fellow in geography.

After a year at Carleton college as instructor in geology and geography, he went to Minnesota as instructor in geography. He was made a full professor in 1945.

During two summers Dr. Dicken worked as geographer with the Kentucky Geological survey, and in the spring of 1935 aided in a study of population redistribution. From 1942 to 1944 he was a special consultant in geography for the army air forces.

Among the societies of which he is a member are Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi.

Dr. McCall received his baccalaureate degree from the University of Redlands in 1930 and his masters and doctoral degrees from the State University of Iowa.

After working with the speech and English department at Whitman college for five years, Dr. McCall went to the College of the Pacific in 1936.

He is a member of Pi Kappa Delta, Delta Sigma Rho, Phi Rho Pi, and Theta Alpha Phi.

Former news editor of the Wall Street Journal's Pacific coast education is Dr. Campbell, a graduate of San Jose State college. He received his master degree in journalism and his doctorate at Northwestern university.

He has taught at the University of California, University of Illinois, Temple university, and Northwestern. From 1945 to 1946 he was acting dean of journalism at Syracuse university.

President Explains Liberal Arts Plan

In combining the administrative leadership of the college of liberal arts and the graduate school, President Harry K. Newburn said yesterday, the University is looking forward toward the broad program of continuity from underclass and undergraduate work through to the graduate level.

"We expect," Dr. Newburn explained, "to secure the benefits of . . . integrated administrative leadership through the whole vertical span of our program at a time when we are determining the relative emphasis and concentration both at the graduate and undergraduate levels.

First 'Y' Winnette Welcomes Guests

The spring term "Y" newspaper, Winnette, will go to press today with its first edition devoted to welcoming the AWS guests on campus. It will come out every Friday of this term under the editorship of Bettye Jo Bledsoe, freshman in journalism. Business will be managed by Janice Kent, freshman in psychology.

As in the past the paper will be devoted to YWCA news about activities and personalities. Any girls interested in working as reporters or distributors may sign up for the general staff.

Books Disappear From U. of O. Libe

Statistics show that there has been a great increase in the number of books that have mysteriously disappeared from the library, especially from the reference room.

Some of the books that have been taken are Volume 18 of the 1946 Encyclopedia Americana, the only edition of the Unabridged Funk and Wagnell dictionary, and various other volumes from sets of books.

New Dean in Liberal Arts School Experienced in Personnel Work

Dr. Eldon L. Johnson, whose appointment as dean of the college of liberal arts and the graduate school was confirmed yesterday by the state board of higher education, brings to his new position a wide experience and background in public and personnel administration.

Dr. Johnson, who came to the campus less than two years ago to head the political science department, has been active in public administration for a number of years. He is a graduate

Labor Economist

The major work of Dr. Johnson's has been done in the field of political science, but he has also done advanced work in labor economics. During his graduate study at the University of Wisconsin he taught political science, and following that taught public administration in the graduate school of the United States department of agriculture for about five years.

While in the graduate school of the department of agriculture, Dr. Johnson rose first to an administrator of the school, and then to director of the school.

Served With Air Forces

During the war he served as academic director for the pre-meteorological training program of the Army Air Forces with headquarters at the University of Chicago. Here he directed the activities of 25 colleges and universities engaged in training students under this program.

From 1938 to 1940 he was organization and management analyst of the office of personnel in the U. S. department of agriculture, and from 1942 to 1943 was editor of "Personnel Administration," journal of the society for personnel administration.

Free-Lance Writer

Dr. Johnson has also had experience in high school teaching and for two-years was a free-lance newspaper writer.

The educator served as acting director of the University summer session.
