Heads Set For Daily, Yearbook

Bob Frazier and Ross Yates, both juniors in journalism, were appointed to the editorships of the Oregon Daily Emerald and the Oregana, respectively, last night at meeting of the educational activities board.

Bob Chapman, junior in merchandising and advertising, was chosen for the position of Emerald business manager for the coming year. Olga Yevtich, sophomore, has been named to a similar position on the Oregana.

41-42 Emerald News Editor

The first male Emerald editor appointed since 1942, Frazier served as news editor of the Emerald in 1941-42, before leaving for four years service in the army. During these years he worked in the public relations division in Washington, D. C., and in Berlin, Germany.

The Emerald editor-elect has also held reporting jobs on the Bend Bulletin and the Aberdeen Daily World, and in 1942 was news editor of the defunct Eugene Daily News. He has been associate editor of the Emerald during the current school year and is now working as a reporter for the University news bureau.

Yates was an Emerald reporter and copy desk editor in 1942-43, and also worked on the Oregana in 1943. He has served this year as managing editor of the 1947 Oregana. He recently won third prize in the annual Marshall-Case-Haycox short story contest.

Army Veteran

During his three year service in the army, Yates was an occupational interviewer and, for two years, the clerk for a 700-man replacement company.

Chapman has worked on the Emerald business staff as day manager for the past year and a half and is vice-president of Alpha Delta Sigma, men's national advertising fraternity. During his three years at the University, he has worked as sports editor of Old Oregon and the Emerald, and co-sports editor of the Oregana. He is now serving as press relations manager for Junior Weekend.

Assembly, Noise Parade to Open Drive Tonight for $5000 Student Union Fund

Ernie Haycox to Speak At Mac Court Program

By DONNA KLETZING

The "Go" signal for the $5000 race for Student Union funds will be sounded tonight at 7:30 in McArthur court at the all-campus assembly. The first half hour of the assembly will be broadcast over the American Broadcasting company. Ernest Haycox, national Student Union chairman, and President Harry K. Newburn will speak.

A noise parade is scheduled for 6:15 to impress the people of Eugene that the student body is going all out for the goal. The parade will snowball from the upper campus, passing all living organizations, continuing down Willamette street, and returning to McArthur court for the assembly.

Every student with a car is urged to deck it with signs and streamers and join the parade, making all the noise possible. Tom Hazzard and the Webfooters will lead the parade.

Sing Contest

Varied entertainment is slated to follow the speeches at the assembly. One feature will be the drawing of names of one men's and one women's living organization to each sing a selected song.

The contest between the living organizations, which will start at the assembly, will close May 10 and the winners of the women's and men's house will be announced during the Junior Prom. They will each be awarded a console model radio-phonograph.

A movietone newsreel photographer from Hollywood will be present to take a picture of the assembly.

Mother is Assured Weekend Housing

There's going to be room for everyone!

So Beryl Howard, housing committee chairman for Mother's weekend, announced confidently to the Emerald yesterday.

"No one should hesitate inviting his mother to the University for the weekend of May 9, 10, and 11 because of lack of housing facilities,"

Glickman to Edit 47-48 Old Oregon

Coinciding with key appointments for the 1947-48 Oregana and Emerald yesterday, Les Anderson, alumni director, announced that Harry Glickman would continue next year at the helm of Old Oregon, the alumni monthly.

Glickman will select a new managing editor as Winifred Romtvedt, who now serves in that capacity, will graduate in June.

Whirlwind Weekend

A whirlwind Junior Weekend, extending from the preliminaries May 8, through to a fitting Sunlight Serenade finale Sunday has been promised Junior Weekend enthusiasts, according to Bob Daggett and Bobbie Fullmer, co-chairman of the event.

With some time changes approved by committee heads, events will cover a full Friday-to-Monday schedule, with the all-campus picnic and the queen's coronation set for Friday, May 9, instead of Saturday. Classes will be called off Friday afternoon for the picnic, and honorary tapping will take place at that event. The All-Campus Sing is scheduled for Friday night.

Saturday's Program

Saturday's program will see the traditional sophomore - freshman tug-o-war and other freshman men's activities, sports events, and, in the afternoon, the float parade. The prom, with an as yet unrevealed

Decorations Preview to be Held For Glee Workers Friday Evening

A special dress rehearsal of Frosh Glee decorations is planned for McArthur court Friday evening by the Glee committee. This sneak preview is one of the first times that a special preview has been held the night before the dance. Only Glee workers are slated for attendance, as the court will be closed to the student body.

"We are specializing in some unusual effects in lighting for the dance Saturday night," announced Wes Nicholson, decoration chairman. "We want to insure that every light is focused properly and diffuses correctly over the floor, and a night preview is the only way to be sure."

Special Lighting Effects

"Blue and white lights will be used and since the majority of our decoration budget is being spent on lighting we think the results will be different and attractive," Nicholson continued.

The regular routine of lights is not going to be used at all according to the present plans of the committee. They have Howard Ramey, lighting supervisor of "The Green Pastures," planning the special setup of kliegs.

Instead of having the bandstand in the customary side-wall position the decoration committee is moving the location to the center. The large stands are being discarded for this dance and new 14-inch ones will be used.

Concert Slated For 8:15 Tonight

A program of vocal music featuring students of the school of music under the direction of Herman Gelhausen, assistant, professor of voice, will be presented tonight at 8:15 p.m. in the music auditorium.

The program consists of scenes from the operas "Der Rosenkavalier" and "La Traviata," six Brahms love songs, and Johann Sebastian Bach's "The Coffee Cantata."

The trio and duet from Richard Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier" will be sung by Virginia Walker as Marschallin, Ann Whitaker as Sophie, and Mary Louise Stone as Octavian. Mary Margaret Dundore will accompany them.

A scene from act two of Giuseppe Verdi's "La Traviata" will have

Professor Howard's Lawyerlings Present Plans for Gay Weekend

By BOB WHITELEY

"Long live Queen 'Crazylegs the First!'"

It's the "Naughty Nighties" for the annual law school weekend theme, and cries of "splendid", "bravo" and "simply bully" greeted genial Gene Conklin when he told the eager student body that the theme would be based on "The Naughty Nighties".

After much debate on the floor, the rotund Carmichael was literally swept into his regal office by popular acclaim. After the final ballots were tallied, Crazylegs was way out in front, and his court will consist of such beauties as Princess Curly Walker, and the "great profile" Frank Bosch. Law school Prexy Rex Cooler and Kermit Smythe will act as flower girls.

Senator Sobs

In traditional Rose Festival princess style, the senator burst into tears, and choked with visible emotion. The queen immediately rushed to south Coburg to check on her julep beds.

Professor Charles G. Howard, affectionately called Professor Charles G. Howard by his beloved students will don the ermine robes of prime minister for the occasion, which take place on the law school steps.
