Dr. Barnes Takes Librarian's Post

Eugene Barnes, new acquisition librarian, assumed his duties at the University last Monday. His position includes responsibility for order work, and work with gifts, exchanges, and serials.

Barnes received his B.A. and master's degrees from the University of Minnesota and then took over the position of assistant archivist of the Minnesota historical society. Later he was a cataloguer at UCLA.

He comes to Oregon from the University of Chicago, where he has just completed work for his Ph.D.

Oregonian Carries Story of Professor

Of interest to students, faculty, and alums of the school of journalism and to the many friends of George Turnbull, dean of journalism school was the biographical sketch of the dean which appeared in the magazine section of the Sunday Oregonian on April 27.

Written by Betty Ann Stevens, a journalism student at the University of Oregon, the article was titled: "Dean Turnbull: Teacher of News Writers."

The first excursion train of the Santa Fe Railway reached Las Vegas, New Mexico, in the year 1879.
