

Sigma Xi Ends Lecture Series Monday Night

By JACK SETO

Sigma Xi science honorary chapter will conclude its 1946-47 lecture series Monday with an illustrated report, "A Naturalist's Glimpses of Brazil," to be given by Dr. A. R. Moore, professor of general physiology, at 8 p.m. in 207 Chapman hall.

Dr. Moore has done research and teaching in the United States, Italy, Japan, and most recently, in Brazil. He will spend August in research at Stanford university's Hopkins station, Pacific Grove, California, where he has spent his summer months almost continuously since his first year on the Oregon staff in 1926. He also plans to teach this summer at the Marine station, College of the Pacific, to be established at Dillon Beach, California.

Cross Presented

In Rio de Janeiro last summer, Dr. Moore gave seven lectures at the invitation of the Biophysical institute of the University of Brazil medical school, and under the auspices of the Division of International Exchange of Persons, U. S. State department. He assisted in studies which led to a marine biological survey of the Bay of Rio. Last winter the Brazilian Order of the Southern Cross was presented him in a ceremony in the office of Jose Cochrane de Alencar, San Francisco consul-general of Brazil.

The Rockefeller foundation honored Dr. Moore in 1933 with a year's visiting professorship at Tohoku Imperial university, Sendai, Japan. In Naples, Italy, in the spring of 1923 and 1925, Dr. Moore was engaged in research at the Stazione Zoologica, the world's leading biological station, founded in 1872. Last week he received copies of Scientia, an Italian-language science magazine which carried his article "Acetylcholine as a Chemical Factor in the Transmission of the Nerve impulse." He has contributed two other articles to the magazine.

The May meeting of Sigma Xi will precede Dr. Moore's lecture at 7:15 p.m. in 204 Chapman hall. Next year's officers will be elected by the chapter.

Scheduled Classes Off

No classes will meet this afternoon or Saturday, President Harry K. Newburn announced yesterday afternoon. But, all scheduled classes will be held this morning, the president emphasized.

Serenade Set For Sunday at 3

Closing an event-packed weekend, the Sunlight Serenade will take place at 3 p.m. Sunday in the music school outdoor auditorium.

Oregon mothers and student will be serenaded by University musicians while members of the campus music honoraries, Mu Phi Epsilon, Phi Mu Alpha and Phi Beta, usher and serve.

Under the direction of Bill Bishop, master of ceremonies, the program will feature soloists, June Johnson, soprano, and Wayne Sherwood, baritone. Other entertainers will be the Alpha Phi trio composed of Miriam Shellenburger, Phyllis Potter and Barbara Kafoury, and the Theta Chi quartet, Lowell Chase, Gene Hebbard, Bill Pengra and Glen Snyder. The final participants will be the winning All-Campus Sing groups.

Faculty to Play In Music Fest

Seven faculty members of the music school will take part in the forthcoming Festival of Contemporary Music, scheduled on the campus May 14 to 16.

A composition of Dr. Arnold Elston, assistant professor of music, "First as Last the Question Rings," a song for a woman's chorus, with brass ensemble, will be included on the program. Herman Gelhausen, assistant professor of voice, will sing five songs by modern composers.

Instrumental numbers will be played by George Hopkins, professor of piano; Donald Allton, assistant professor of organ and theory; John Stehn, clarinetist, assistant professor of wind instruments; Milton Dietrick, instructor in cello; and Saga Collin Boughton, instructor in piano.

Somner Elected Leader Of University Fellowship

In a recent election held by the UO Fellowship, Art Somner, junior in business administration from Eugene, succeeded Jim Soden as president for the ensuing 1947-48 school year. Ben Wetherald, sophomore in history from Wemme, Oregon, was elected vice-president.

Other officers elected to the executive council include: Bill Sherman, program chairman; Lewis Knight, missions chairman; Eileen Riemer, devotions chairman; Virginia Foster, secretary Zulauf, treasurer; Marilyn Scroggin, publications chairman and Robert Judge, publicity chairman.

Students to Honor Attending Notables

A tea in honor of visiting celebrities, present on the campus for the Contemporary Music festival, will be given next May 16, between 4 and 5:30 p.m., at Gerlinger hall. The tea is jointly sponsored by Phi Beta, Mu Phi Epsilon, and Phi Mu Alpha, men's and women's music honoraries. Celebrities attending the tea will include critics, composers, and star performers.

The function is unique in that only students are invited. Former receptions and teas of this nature have commonly been open only to faculty members, with the result that many students have voiced their disappointment at being excluded from such events. This tea will give interested students an opportunity to meet, and become acquainted with, people recognized as experts in the various fields of music.

All students participating in the festival are invited. The dress will be campus clothes.

Dean to Give Talk For Group Sunday

Visiting mothers will be welcomed to the house by Tom Hazard, president, and Mrs. R. Harris. Mrs. Niedermeyer of Medford will reply for the mothers.

Beginning with breakfast at 9:30 a.m., the program includes in addition to Dean Wickham's address a violin solo by Olive Oldfield, prayer by Dr. Harris, vocal solos by Bob Reeves and Helen Tims, a reading, and selections by the male quartet—Warren Mack, Clell Conrad, Bill Putnam and Wally Bullard.

All visiting mothers are welcome to attend, Mrs. J. D. Bryant, Westminster director, announced.

STUDENTS OUTSIDE OF LIVING ORGANIZATIONS!!

In conducting the drive for Student Union funds on the campus, it has been hard to contact those students living outside of organizations or off the campus. This appeal is directed to you!

You are the ones who will derive some of the greatest benefits from a Student Union building. It will provide space for your gatherings, a centralized meeting place, a cafeteria, bag lunch room, craft shop, and nearly every activity you need and do not have now.

Make it a point to see that the Erb Memorial is built for you. Help the drive on or before Friday, May 9. Contributions of any amount are being received in the educational activities office in McArthur Court.
