

Ducks Clout Nasty Old Husbandmen

By WILD BILL STRATTON
BELL BOG, Corn Valley, Oregon (SDX)—Everybody said it would be a cold day in hell when Oregon beat the Aggies in football, but all the bookies on the coast paid off today when the last Beaver was dragged from Bell Bog's ooze with the score 20 to 0 for the galloping Ducks.

Hostilities did not cease at the referee's final whistle. Fully two minutes before the game ended, hordes of Duck rooters began moving toward the Oregon State goal posts to bring home a souvenir of the first Duck victory in four long years. The unofficial battle waged until darkness and rooters from both schools went home minus teeth, rooters' lids, jackets, and pants.

Loses Pants

Jack Boone claims the honor of being the first Oregon rooter to reach the Aggie uprights, and the first to lose his trousers. The angry Beavers tore off his jacket and ripped off his pants when the stubborn Boone refused to come down from the cross bar.

Gerald Oliver's gridders swept the losers off their feet in the first five minutes of play by scoring the first time they got their hands on the ball. The amazing Webfoots started their offensive spurt on the OSC 31 and after four plays, Len Isberg dived two yards over the center of the Beaver line for the first Oregon score. The offensive was set up by the great Isberg when he returned a punt 33 yards in the sticky mud to the 31. King mud downed him.

The lowly Beavers gathered enough strength to threaten in the second score, but the punch was stopped for downs on the nine. Oregon punted out, and on the next play the hapless Aggies fumbled and the Ducks started a 67-yard scoring march. Isberg skirted the ends for 33 yards to the Oregon State 22 on the first play, and a series of line punches found the ball on the OSC 1 yard stripe. Isberg hit the line for his second tally of the day. Roy Dyer converted to give Oregon a 13-point lead. Several thousand Oregon State rooters immediately went home to do the chores.

The Ducks started to roll again later in the last period, but the Beavers were lucky. Bob Dethman was hit squarely in the chest by one of Tommy Roblin's passes and he couldn't help from intercepting it to stop the Duck attack.

Mrs. Golda Wickham, Dean of Women, is in Rainier today, where she will address the graduating class of Rainier high school. The topic she has chosen in speaking to the 60 high school seniors is "Destination — Tomorrow." She may be right.

Susy Cops Jax Prix

By JON SNILLIB

In a hotly-contested battle with Hendricks hall in the finals of the Sigma Delta Chi Grand Prix Inter-Dormitory Girls' jacks tournament Monday afternoon, Susan Campbell hall, represented by Gloria Smith and Suzanne Wiles, swept away their competition for first-place honors.

Until the fifth, left-handies, game of the series, the small hall was in a bad hole with ambidextrous Joan Lohead, of Hendricks, breaking several meet records in the cherries-in-the-basket and slow-Chicago sections. In the left-handies section, however, left-handed Susy Wiles beat out glamorous Jane Rayl, of Hendricks, hands down.

From the half-way point on, the game was all Susy-Q, especially after a bad break at the beginning of the eighth game, falling - stars - fast - Chicago. Joan Lohead, generally considered one of the better jacks players on the campus, missed her pinky.

'Dr. Livingston . . . I Preshume!'

SOMEWHERE IN THE EAST, May 26 (SDX)—Meriwether Lewis and William Clark left here today to search for a lost Irishman named O'Regon. Provisions for the trip included two kegs of whiskey, four kegs of gin, and a full sack of jewea.

There are a lot of books in the University library.

All black Parker pens look just alike.

We Win Two

Oregon won two things over the weekend. They beat Oregon State in baseball, or maybe it was basketball. They also won the Northern Division golf title. The weight of pressing news precludes our printing further details in this issue. If you're really interested, read about it tomorrow.

This Tells About Futeball, I Think Better Read It

Most stories about intrasquad futeball games reveal the score. If you want to know the score of last Friday's practice game look at the end of the story, there isn't any room for its up here.

Some guys called the Whites and some others called the Greens tried for 60 minutes to beat the stuffing out of each other in front of 50-odd high school coaches at Hayward field.

The Kids Are Good

Norm Van Brocklin was pretty smart about the whole thing. Almost every time he got the ball he threw it away as fast as he could. Three times there happened to be one of his teammates in the way and as they didn't want to get hit they caught the fool thing. The fact that they were loafing around the goal posts each time gave the Whites some points.

Head Coach Jim Aiken approved of Van Brocklin's tactics. He even gave a satisfied grunt when V. B. did the same thing for what is called "A point after touchdown." Somebody named Garza caught that one. He does that sort of thing fairly regularly.

Bells Are Ringing

Other point-making athletes were George Bell and G. Bell, who can also catch passes, and Bob Oas, who has been noticed running kind of hard and fast down the field on several occasions.

A Koch, named Bob, also ran with the ball a few times and so did some other guys whose names I was too lazy to get.

Anyway, the coach complimented the entire squad—and that should be good enough for 'em.

The score? 28 to 0 in favor of the Whites, I think, but you better check with Golda P. Wickham, Dr. Marian Miller, or Ermine Toy, if you really want to know.

"Anthony Adverse" was written by a man. "Gone With the Wind" was written by a woman. This proves nothing.

The site of Oregon State college was at one time a cow pasture. This year it was plowed up and planted to corn.
