

'Be Casual' Is Advice To Incoming Freshman

(To help freshman girls with the ever present problem of "What to Bring and What to Leave Home," Phyllis McMahon, a senior who knows the ropes, has written the following bits of advice. Here is THE WORD from Phyl.)

By PHYLLIS McMAHON

Be casual and you can't go wrong. Comfortable and colorful sweater and skirt combinations are always just the right thing to wear to daytime classes or evening informal firesides. Bring bobby socks to wear with these, and tuck them into saddles, wooden shoes, or strollers.

A good gabardine, covert, or camel's hair overcoat is in order to keep you warm and dry. It's a good idea to have it waterproofed or better yet wear a raincoat. Bandanas are a must. They help to keep that curly hair from falling naturally straight, and they are gay and colorful, too.

Be sure to include jeans, shorts, slacks, or peddle pushers to wear for picnics, peddling, or just plain housework.

For P. E. Majors

If you are the outdoor type by all means bring your boomerang, bicycle, and badminton set, to say nothing of the golf clubs, skis, and the tennis racket.

Suits are wonderful wear for everything—from classes to concerts, with saddles or heels. Bring a couple, and for Sunday dinners and most campus dances you can't do without a "short silk" dress.

Count on a dress hat and a couple of casuals for weekends in Portland.

Don't think a fur coat is necessary, because it isn't. Most girls here don't wear them. A smooth, trimly cut cloth dress coat is the wiser choice.

Formals Needed

Formals are fun, and you will want a gown or two to wear to the dances or formal dinners on the campus.

Rooms in student houses and dormitories are equipped with most of the necessary furnishings. In the dorms only drinking glasses and towels are required. The school furnishes linens and two blankets. But it might be a good idea to bring along an extra blanket for those frosty nights.

If you live in a sorority or a co-op, you will have to bring blankets, towels, sheets, pillows, and dresser scarves. Radios are permitted, and remember that a portable has more possibilities for pleasure.

Leave Something Home

You will find that your worldly goods at college have a way of collecting. Don't bring too much, or you'll find yourself with more than you can send home come spring term.

This is no style show down here. Contrary to what you may have heard, this is not a country club. So bring your brains. You'll need them all year long.

See you in September.

Sociology Adds New Assistant

Mrs. Tsou King of Shanghai, China, recently accepted a position as graduate assistant in the sociology department. She will start work in September.

A graduate of the University of Shanghai, Miss King received her B.A. degree there in 1937. While in China she worked at the Peiping Union medical college as a social worker in home finding, a general social worker, and a social worker in the psychiatry department.

She also worked in the headquarters of the Chinese national relief and rehabilitation administration in Shanghai. Other work included translation of 50 articles of American and British authors on social science and literature.

Freshmen Should Have Acceptance

Notices of admission have been mailed to virtually all new University students, according to Clifford L. Constance, associate registrar. He warned new students who have not received a notice of admission to write to the University at once.

Before school starts all new students will receive a physical examination blank, which will have to be filled out by the student's own doctor. This is a departure from previous years' procedure, when University doctors gave complete physical examinations.

During freshman week the new student will turn in his physical examination blank, receive a chest x-ray, and a further examination by the school of health and physical education.

New students who are not assured of housing were also warned to write to the University. Persons expecting to live in dormitories should write to the director of dormitories on the campus, while those expecting to live in Eugene should write to the housing secretary at the University. The deans of women and men handle applications for student cooperative houses and for rushing for Greek-letter organizations.

Students desiring employment during the year should contact the employment secretary.

Art School Gets Space

Arrangements have been made by President H. K. Newburn for the use of 2500 square feet of space in the University's new and modern concrete warehouse, by the school of architecture and allied arts this fall.

An area 43½ feet by 45 feet is being converted into a small auditorium and a drafting room to accommodate 50 students. The space is designed to help take care of the large enrollment of lower division students in drawing, graphic art, and design.

Three Oregon Alumni Hold Association Jobs

University of Oregon alumni hold three of the 36 positions on the National Council of the American Association of University Professors. They are Dr. Harold N. Lee, chairman of the department of philosophy in Sophie New-comb college, Tulane university and member of the Oregon class of 1922; Orlando John Hollis, dean of the University of Oregon law school and member of the class of 1926; and Edward Hicks of the class of 1934.

Dr. Lee is on the summer school staff here this year.

Pay Measure Fails to Pass

The hopes of 3,000 Oregon veterans that their government subsistence checks would be increased next year were dashed this summer when congress adjourned without passing the bill.

The measure would have increased the subsistence allowances of single veterans in college to $75 a month, and would have raised the allowances for a married man to $105, and for a married man with children to $120.

The senate passed the measure the week before adjournment, and passage by the house of representatives was believed assured, but when the house adjourned the measure was in the stack of unfinished business. The bill was sponsored by Oregon Senator Wayne L. Morse, who was supported by Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio. Morse had said he introduced the bill in the hope that its provisions could take effect at the beginning of fall term.

Assistant Dean of Men Appointed

Virgil S. Fogdall of Northern Montana college, Havre, Montana, has been named assistant dean of men.

The new personnel man received his baccalaureate degree from Ottawa university, Ottawa, Kans., in 1932, and his masters degree in 1934 from Iowa. His major fields of study included history, political science, education and educational administration, and psychology.

From 1934 to 1940 he was instructor of social studies and director of publications in the Junior college at Burlington, Iowa, and from 1940 to 1946 was dean of the junior college. In 1946 he took the position at Northwen, Montana, as dean of men. He has also held positions with the Great A. & P. Tea company, the civil aeronautics authority, and the war department.

He is a member of Phi Kappa Delta, forensics honorary, Phi Gamma Mu, social science honorary, National Education association, and the National Society for the Study of Education.

The new assistant dean will arrive on the campus August 15.

University Girl Wins Redhead Roundup Title

Barbara Bennett, University of Oregon co-ed, has been selected as "purtiest" redhead at the Taft, the "purtiest" redhead at the Taft, Ore., Redhead Roundup, walking away with all honors including a big gold cup. She was sponsored at the event by the Whiskalantes Committee of the junior chamber of commerce of Eugene, who were their advertising the Oregon Trail pageant to the coast dwellers.

Miss Bennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Carnutt of Eugene, was schooled here, and is now running for the title of Suzanne VI, Queen of the Oregon Trail pageant.

Federation Director Expects Fewer Veterans This Fall

Most of the freshman class of 1951 will be high school graduates coming straight to the University without taking the almost traditional military stop-over, in the opinion of Harry Glickman, director of the Oregon Federation.

Glickman who has been touring the state all summer assisting prospective students, finds very few veterans attending federation meetings. Most of the students who attend the films and talks, sponsored by students, alumni, and business groups, seem to be in the 18 to 20 age bracket, he finds.

Earlier in the summer he visited the principal cities in eastern Oregon, swinging south to southern Oregon in July. He will visit the coast and Willamette valley in August. Sometimes he is accompanied by a coach or two, but usually he visits the town alone, shows the film on campus life and answers questions about the University.

Climax of the federation's activity will be the Jantzen Beach picnic August 21. Other promotion work in Portland includes the establishment of an information desk at one of the department stores. Plans are under way for similar services in other cities.

Political Science Teacher Named

Announcement of the appointment of Leon David Epstein of the University of Chicago as assistant professor of political science has been made by Dr. Eldon L. Johnson, dean of the college of liberal arts.

Since his release from the army in February, 1946, Mr. Epstein has been at the University of Chicago working toward his doctorate. During the past six months he has served as a part-time instructor in Chicago's Roosevelt college.

He received his bachelor of arts degree in 1940 and 1941 from the University of Wisconsin, with majors in political science and economics. Work for his doctor's degree is almost completed.

During the war Mr. Epstein rose from private to captain, and for two and a half years he served in the European theater, commanding supply and administrative troops.

From 1941 to 1942 he was junior economist and assistant economist with the national resources planning board in Washington, D.C.

The new Oregon man is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic honorary; Artus, national economics honorary; Delta Sigma Rho, national speech honorary; and the American Political Science association.
