

Administration Moves Into 'Emerald Hall'

Freshman Week Opens September 14

Freshman week, the week of orientation and settlement, will commence Sunday night, September 14, with an all-freshman assembly at McArthur court. New students must attend this meeting, if they are to stay in the registration pipeline, Associate Registrar Clifford L. Constance warned.

At this assembly they will hear from University officials, and will be given appointment cards for their freshman week dates.

Majors' meetings Monday night will give the students in the several schools and colleges an opportunity to meet the dean and faculty of their major school before classes begin.

Physical examination, placement test, conferences with advisers and actual registration will follow.

An English placement test is being added this year to the general and math placement tests already given incoming students.

Classes begin Monday, September 22.

Graduate Wins Ohio State Job

Newel W. Comish, Eugene, who has been a graduate assistant in economics during the past year in the University of Oregon, has been appointed to a teaching assistantship in marketing at Ohio State university.

Working under Dr. Calvin Crumbaker, head of the economics department, he is writing his thesis on the history, organization, and operation of the Eugene Water Board.

Professor Has Article In Literary Journal

Dr. Anibal Vargas-Baron, assistant professor of Romance language, has an article in the recent issue of Revista Iberoamericana, official publication of the International Institute of Spanish American Literature.

The 32-page study, entitled "Vida Y Pensamiento de Jose Joaquin Vargas Valdes," is the second of two articles dealing with the life and thought of this Columbian writer and statesman.

THEY'RE 10 INCHES THICK

Registrar Curtis E. Avery examines the 10-inch reinforced concrete walls of the fireproof "vault" in Emerald hall, which will house many of the University's records, which had been filed in Johnson.

Campus ROTC Rated Highest

The reserve officer training corps unit at the University has received a rating of "excellent" as a result of the 1947 annual inspection, President H. K. Newburn was advised this summer by Col. Oliver L. Haines, chief of staff of the sixth army headquarters at the Presidio of San Francisco, Calif.

Inspection of the University unit, of which Col. John McCammon is professor of military science and tactics, was in May. The unit includes arms of infantry and air forces.

Deadline Delayed

The deadline for reinstating national service life insurance without medical examination, has been extended from August 1, 1947, to January 1, 1948, according to Donald C. Schworer, veterans' contact representative on the campus.

Offices Contacting Students Now Together in One Building

The confusion and running around generally associated with registration will be somewhat relieved this fall, as a result of a new administration building on the campus. The new structure is Emerald hall at 13th and Emerald streets—one block East of the infirmary.

The H-shaped frame structure which looks like nothing so much as a regimental headquarters, was moved to the campus in the late spring from Camp Adair.

First to move into the new building was the office of the registrar, and by fall the new structure will house the business office, cashier's office, personnel office, office of the dean of men and dean of women, all veterans administration offices, and the counseling center.

Their space in Johnson hall will be occupied by the office of information, state system of higher education offices, the University news bureau, and the bureau of municipal research.

James D. Kline, new assistant registrar in charge of veterans affairs, arrived on the campus July 14, just in time to begin work in the new building. His first conferences with his secretary, Celeste Olson Giesecke, were a bit informal with workmen moving chairs and desks around them at a furious pace. His office is in the southwest corner of the new building.

Floor plan of Emerald hall is so arranged that students will be able to enter the southwest door, pass through the building filling out forms and paying money, and come out the southeast door all registered.

University records will be stored in a new fireproof vault with walls of 10-inch reinforced concrete. The vault is also in the southwest wing.

Journalism Graduate Writes of Argentina

"Revolution Before Breakfast," anecdotes about life in Argentina between 1941 and 1945, will be off the press sometime in August, according to notices from the publishers, the University of North Carolina Press at Chapel Hill, N.C.

Written by a University of Oregon graduate and his wife, this is a first book for the authors, Ruth and Leonard Greenup. Leonard Greenup was graduated with a bachelor of science degree in journalism from Oregon in 1937. He is now with the United Press in New York.

Rush Week Plans Told

Freshman girls desiring to go through rush week must sign up at the dean of women's office by August and must have paid their $10 rushing fee by that time, according to Barbara Williams, president of Panhellenic, intersorority organization. Eugene girls are charged only a $5 fee.

Oregon girls must have a "prep decile" of 5, or a cumulative GPA of 2-point, and out-of-state girls must have a decile rating of 8, or a GPA of 2.75 to pledge. Because of their peculiar grading system the decile rating does not apply to Portland girls who must be "average or above" in their high school work.

Rushing handbooks are being mailed out to the more than 300 girls who are expected in Eugene for the pre-school week, September 8 to 13. From 275 to 300 out-of-town girls will be pledged to campus sororities, Miss Williams estimates.

The week opens at 2:15 Sunday, September 7, with a Panhellenic assembly. Girls will be allowed to move into the dormitories at noon that day. They will file preferences Thursday night, and pick up bids Friday morning. They must be out of the dormitories by 8 a.m. Friday to make way for incoming students who will live there fall term.

Rush week for men will run from the 8th to the 12th of September, and is strictly invitational. Houses are submitting lists of rushees they desire to entertain to the office of the dean of men. Invitations are mailed to the prospective rushees as soon as they have been admitted to the University. There is no decile or GPA requirement for men.

Old Students May Sign Early

Old students may begin registering Monday, September 15, according to Clifford L. Constance, associate registrar. Last day of registration without payment of a late registration fee is Saturday, September 20.

They will pick up registration material at the registrar's office in Emerald hall, new administration building at 13th and Emerald streets, and will then work out study programs with appropriate advisers. Class cards will be stamped by the departments, and students will bring all cards back to Emerald hall, where the registrar will compile a study program from them.

Fees will be paid at the business office in Emerald hall.

Art association, a member of the Committee on International Relations of the American Institute of Architects, and was one of the founders of the American Society of Architectural Historians.

Two Appointed to Architecture Faculty

North Dakota Man Joins Building Staff

The appointment of Theodore Reyhner as associate professor of architecture has been approved by the Oregon state board of higher education. He will join the structural architecture staff.

A New York university Ph.D., who has taken graduate work at Harvard and Columbia, Mr. Reyhner comes to Oregon from the University of North Dakota where he was assistant professor of engineering. He holds a B.S. degree in civil engineering from Newark college of engineering, and has been on the staff of the Newark technical school, Cooper Union School of Engineering, and Lehigh university. He has worked in the forest products laboratory at the East and Middle West with the United States forest service.

DR. ROSS

DR. REYHNER

Art Historian Here From Pennsylvania

Dr. Marion Dean Ross, formerly associate professor of fine arts at Pennsylvania State college, will join the University staff in September as an assistant professor of architecture in charge of architectural history. His appointment has been approved by the Oregon State board of higher education.

A graduate of Pennsylvania State, Harvard, and the Universidad Nacional de Mexico, Mr. Ross will join the staff here the first of September.

Before serving as a naval officer overseas during the war, he had traveled extensively in Europe and in Central and South America. He is a registered architect in Louisiana, a member of the New Orleans