President Scheduled To Speak

New Students To Get Lowdown On Registration

Over 2000 new students are expected to take their first step toward a University education tonight at a special orientation assembly in McArthur court. The assembly, which starts at 7:30 p.m., will be compulsory for all students entering the University this term.

Dr. Harry K. Newburn, president of the University, will keynote the assembly with a short address of welcome. Following the president will be Dr. R. D. Clark, associate professor of speech and drama who will give the new students a general picture of life at the University of Oregon.

Procedure Explained

Registrar Curtis E. Avery will then explain the registration procedure which each student is expected to follow during freshman week.

The assembly will end with the issuing of a special appointment list containing a time schedule that each student must adhere to when he appears to receive his physical, general, and English placement examinations.

The appointment list will also contain a map to aid the student in finding his way about the campus.

Meetings Scheduled

On Monday night a series of major meetings will be held on the campus to give new students a chance to learn the various special requirements and courses in their major fields of work. These meetings will be under the direction of the deans of the various professional schools.

A schedule for these major meetings will appear on the appointment list.

Philosophy Course Added to Curricula

The department of philosophy has announced the addition of a new year-sequence course—two hours each term—dealing with some intellectual problems of the contemporary world.

The first term will consist of twenty lectures by various members of the science faculty on the beginnings of modern science. Prof. A.R. Moore will be in charge.

The second and third terms will consist of lectures by Prof. H. G. Townsend, head of the department, and other members of the staff. They will lecture on the place of man in nature and other implications of the modern scientific prospect.

The sequence bears a 300 number and is open for credit to juniors and seniors. Other members of the University, both students and faculty have been invited to attend the lectures.

Counselors to Meet

The counselors of the YWCA Duckling will attend either of two meetings to be held Monday at 4 and 7 p.m. at the YWCA bungalow. At that time they will receive the addresses of their ducklings. The Duckling is published each year to inform new students about the University.

Greek-Letter Houses Grab 474 'Nuggets'

Fraternities, Sororities Report 1947 Rushes To Be of Particularly High Caliber.

University fraternities and sororities grabbed 474 pledges during the 1947 rush week just ended. According to spokesmen from the Interfraternity council and Panhellenic, this year's rush week was very successful.

Chi Omega led the sororities in the number of women pledged with a total of 22, with three others, Alpha Chi Omega, Gamma Phi Beta, and Pi Beta Phi, each with 21, following close on the leader's heels.

Sororities pledged a total of 258 women, while fraternities added 216 "nuggets" to their memberships.

Leading the men's houses in the number of rushes pledged was Alpha Tau Omega with 22. Beta Theta Pi was second with 18, and two houses, Pi Kappa Alpha and Sigma Alpha Epsilon, tied for the third highest with 17 pledges each.

A poll of rushing chairmen revealed that this year's rushes were of particularly high caliber. One sorority chairman reported that she had been through four rush weeks during her University career but believed this year's crop of girls to be the "prettiest and most intelligent" she had seen.

Fraternities reported that the male rushes seemed also to be of particularly high quality. One fraternity man noted that most of this year's freshmen have come directly from high school. "They seem to have a little more spirit and pep than the men we rushed last year," he said.

Rush week was officially ended Friday night with a pledge dance in Gerlinger hall.

Rising Costs Up UO Board Bill

Two dollars per month will be added to the present board rates at the University, effective immediately. Room rates will remain unchanged.

The increase, which will bring the cost to $42 per month, is intended to compensate in part for rising food prices, according to Mrs. Genevieve Turnipseed, director of dormitories.

Mrs. Turnipseed said that there is a large waiting list for rooms at the men's dorm, which has been filled for several months. Mrs. Alice B. Macduff, housing secretary, is attempting to get rooms in town for those on the waiting list, and any cancellations at the dorm are given to those on the waiting list in order of precedence.

Help Requested

The grounds around Veterans' hall have recently been seeded. Cooperation is asked in giving the grass a chance to grow.

Cars parked close to the buildings at Veterans' hall would present a problem to firemen in case of a fire. It is requested that the parking lots south of the music building and Veterans' No. 1 be used.

Changes For Vets Announced

Several changes in the registration procedure for veterans this term were announced yesterday by James D. Kline, new assistant registrar in charge of veterans affairs.

Veterans this term will be issued a new style identification card which will be used for one term only instead of for three terms as in the past. Each time a veteran registers for a new term he will receive a new card. In the past, the same identification card was used for all three terms of a school year.

Second Change

The second change will affect the issuing of books and supplies. Beginning this term veterans will use the official class cards to secure textbooks. Under the new registration set-up—which will affect all students—class cards are not left at school or department offices. They will be left with the cashier when a student pays his fees at Emerald hall.

A veteran must first get each of his class cards endorsed by the school or department before presenting them at the book store in the Co-op. If a veteran drops a course he must return any textbooks for that course which he has drawn under the G. I. Bill of Rights. The drop card will be stamped at the Co-op when all books for the course have been returned.

A drop card will not be accepted by the registrar's office unless it has been stamped by the Co-op.

Oregana Sales Start Monday

University students will get their first chance to order a 1948 Oregana while registering this week, Olga Yevtich, manager of the yearbook, announced yesterday.

Sales booths will be set up in Emerald hall tomorrow morning and will remain open throughout the week. The Oregana, which is distributed spring term, will be edited this year by Ross Yates, senior in journalism.

8-Page Editions To Start Tuesday

This special four-page edition of the Oregon Daily Emerald has been published primarily to aid both old and new students about to begin registration at the University this term.

Beginning Tuesday, the Emerald will go on a regular eight-page, daily schedule. The paper is published by the students of the University each day except Sundays and Mondays throughout fall, winter, and spring terms, with the exceptions of one week just prior to final examinations in each term.

Several special organizational meetings to secure staffs for both the editorial and business departments of the paper will be held soon. Dates of these meetings will be announced in Tuesday's edition.

Ticket System Is Revamped

A special ticket book will be used for admission to athletic events this year instead of the student body card as in the past, according to an announcement by the University ticket office.

The regular student body card will be issued at registration and the fall-term ticket book may be picked up at the booths in McArthur court upon presentation of the student body card. Both student body card and ticket book will bear the same serial number. The ticket booths will be open all registration week until Saturday noon.

It will be necessary to have a ticket book to be admitted to the Montana game September 20.

Although the books will be registered by serial number they will not be replaced if lost. The books are also non-transferrable.

Law School Record Ends After 8 Years

An enviable record of eight years in which no graduate of the University law school has failed to pass the state bar examinations was at an end this week with the announcement by Dean Orlando J. Hollis that 15 of 16 graduates of this year's class had successfully passed.

Approximately 80 University-trained lawyers have passed the stiff examinations since 1940, Hollis said.

Successful candidates this year were William F. Bernard, Donald Walker, Murray D. Agate, Robert B. Carmichael, Raymond C. Coulter, Alva A. Granquist, Dale E. Helikson, Loren S. James, Gerald Norville, Roland K. Rodman, Elmer B. Sahlstrom, Thomas C. Stacer, Norman J. Wiener, Gene B. Conklin, Paul Jolma, and Rollin B. Wood.

The list includes the name of one special student who did not receive his degree at the University.

Enrollment Procedure Explained

Registration for old students will begin tomorrow in Emerald hall, new administration building on Thirteenth avenue between Onyx and Emerald streets, and will continue until noon Saturday. Classes will begin Monday, September 22.

Registration tables will be set up in the north unit of the hall. They will be open from 8 a.m. until noon and from 1 until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. until noon on Saturday.

Register Early

Old students have been urged by Registrar Curtis E. Avery to be present for registration early in the week if possible to avoid confusion when new students are processed at Emerald hall later in the week.

Students will find only two forms in the registration envelope this year—a registration card which combines the several cards used heretofore, and the usual class cards. The student will also receive a time schedule book. The last page of this will include trial study programs for the year.

Also contained in the envelope will be each student's dexigraph. This will be left with the adviser or at the department office, as the dean or department head directs. It will not be returned to the registrar's office.

Must Complete File

Before leaving Emerald hall, all veterans must complete a file of special documents and obtain their validated identification cards.

Each student goes next to his adviser. Adviser assignments and appointments should be made at the office of the dean of the school or head of the department where the student has his major. After consultation with his adviser each student will receive an endorsement on his registration card.

Next, students must take their class cards to the departments where a special department stamp will be placed on the card. Under the new registration system being inaugurated this term all class cards will be retained by the student until he completes his registration.

Return to Hall

After all class cards have been stamped students will return to Emerald hall where they will get a housing endorsement on their registration card. Following this a representative of the registrar will check the cards for completeness.

The student will then proceed to the cashier where the payment of fees will be made and all class cards and the registration card will be turned in. This step completes registration.

All registration steps in Emerald hall will be clearly marked by signs.

First Classes Near

Fall term classes will begin at the University on Monday, September 22. October 5 is the last day a student may register.
