Rugged Life

Oregon Anthropologist Living With Natives in South Pacific

By HELEN SHERMAN

Dr. H. G. Barnett, associate professor of anthropology, and Allen Murphy, graduate student in anthropology, have established headquarters in Ulinam on the northernmost part of the island of Dabeldoap in the Palau islands, 500 miles east of Mindanao, according to a letter received this week by Dr. L.S. Cressman, head of the department of anthropology.

They left San Francisco on August 1 to participate in a scientific survey of Pacific islands mandated to Japan after World War I, but now controlled by the United States. After landing in Honolulu, they spent several days briefing on details of routine with the natives.

Hike Overland

From there they flew to Guam and then to Koror island in Palau in a Navy PB4. The last part of the trip was made in a small landing craft and they hiked two miles overland to reach their destination.

Situated in a remote spot of the island, barely influenced by civilization, they are living in a house built for them in a coconut grove

Former Student Visits University

Mrs. Erven L. Kincaid, the former Nellie Carroll, a graduate of the University, was a visitor on the campus last weekend and a guest at the Alpha Delta Pi house of which she is a member.

Mrs. Kincaid was in Eugene to attend the open house held at radio station KASH. Her husband, also a UO graduate, is president of the new radio station which is going on the air this week.

The Kincaids and their three children are living in Portland at present but will move to Eugene soon.

Male Enrollees Exceed Gals

A breakdown of the registration totals showed that 1800 men and 876 women had completed registration. Included in this total were 1512 male veterans and 43 female veterans.

At the end of the third day of registration 2676 students had completed the entire process. Associate Registrar Clifford Constance estimated that 6000 students had already picked up their materials and that last year's all time high of 5696 should be passed by the end of the week.

The registrar's office announced that nearly all freshmen had picked up their materials and should have no difficulty in finishing the registration process today. A very few old students were not able to pick up their dexigraphs until yesterday afternoon but they too should be ready to start classes Monday morning, Constance said.

Tuesday was the biggest single day of registration as 1064 students paid their fees. Only 845 completed registering yesterday and smaller daily totals are expected the remainder of the week.

Hotels Full; Nails Still in Abundance

Students planning on entertaining parents and friends at Homecoming weekend, Nov. 22 and 23, may be soon hunting for convenient nails on which to hang their guests.

According to owners of Eugene hotels, the two largest hotels are completely filled with reservations which have been pouring in for the last three months. Many of the larger auto courts have reported that they, too, are booked full for Oregon's colorful weekend which will feature the traditional Oregon-Oregon State football game.

Space is going fast as thousands of alums make plans to "come home" to the University for the weekend.

New Football Band Slates Rehearsal

All prospective members of the University football band, whether freshmen or transfers, are asked to attend a band rehearsal tonight at 7 in the bandroom of the ROTC building, according to John Stehn, director of the band. Following the meeting, short rehearsal auditions will be held for new players, Stehn said.

The meeting is being held in preparation for the Montana State game Saturday at Hayward field. All members of last year's band will play for this game, and a few new members, designated tonight, will also play. Members are to meet in the bandroom Saturday at 1 p.m. No uniforms will be worn for this game.

Stanford Trip

Stehn emphasized that due to the early football schedule it is essential that the organization of the football band be completed this week. The band will play for five home games, two in Portland, the Stanford game in Palo Alto, and for rallies and other activities. The regular football band will consist of 75 men selected from the second, concert, and ROTC bands.

For home games and the two Portland games, a selected group of girls will be used to augment the band, but they will play only from the stands.

Oh Boy! Majorettes

The approximate instrumentation of the band, as announced by Stehn, is 18 cornets and trumpets, 10 trombones, 6 baritones, 6 basses, 8 drums, 6 French horns, 4 saxophones.

More Spirit Noted

Leaders of Oregon's service honoraries were unanimous in the observation that this year's incoming freshmen seem to have more of the Webfoot spirit than past classes. The organization heads also expressed a hope that this spirit would lead to much greater student support of the University and its athletic teams.

Kwama President Billiejean Riethmiller announced that pom poms would be on sale at the Co-op the rest of the week and at Hayward field before game time Saturday. She and Laura Olson, Phi Theta president, joined in urging all women students to wear the pom poms at all football games.

Ed Dick, Order of the "O" president, asked that all men students wear rooters lids to the game. Ed Anderson, Skull and Dagger prexy, also stressed the wearing of rooters lids for a better appearing rooting section. It was also suggested that men students wear white shirts or white sweaters to the games.

The men's and women's rooting sections will be segregated as in the past. "Pigging" (dating) at athletic events is definitely not on the approved tradition list.

SU Fund Receives $19,403.62

Activities Board Kicks Through With Savings

A total of $19,403.62, which was accumulated from profits of the educational activities board over a period of years, has been added to a fund of $10,000 set aside last year to furnish the Student Union building, it was decided at a meeting of the educational activities board held Wednesday.

The money was earmarked for the millrace property to develop the immediate area into a general recreational area for students. The money was not for the millrace itself, according to Dick Williams, educational activities manager.

"The educational activities board recognizes and accepts its moral obligation of developing the immediate millrace area for canoe fetes and a general play area when water is in the millrace and when it is feasible to do so after the projected highway development is completed," Williams said.

The funds are not leaving the board. They are staying in the hands of the board to furnish the Student Union when the building is ready. When the millrace is ready for canoe fetes and recreational purposes, the educational activities board will set aside funds for the necessary improvements, Williams said.

Homecoming Head Petitions Sought

Petitions for homecoming chairman have been called for by ASUO Vice President Bobbe Fulmer at the Alpha Omicron Pi house, Stan Williamson, ASUO president, announced yesterday.

The annual event is slated for November 22, when the Oregon football team will meet Oregon State on Hayward field.

Any student may apply for the position as long as he fulfills the University's requirements for participation in activities, Williamson said.

Petition forms may be picked up at either the dean of men's or dean of women's offices and must be turned in to Miss Fulmer by October 4.
