

Avery Reports 5629 Students Enrolled in UO

Fall registrants at the University numbered 5,629 when the Emerald hall offices closed Wednesday, according to the report of C. E. Avery, registrar. During relatively the same period of time last fall 5,604 students had enrolled at the University, with final registration for the fall of 1946 totaling 5,696.

Avery estimated that the final fall enrollment figure this year will probably only slightly exceed last fall's registration total, falling considerably short of the more than 6,000 registration cards received by the University from prospective students before fall registration.

Congestion which marked the forenoon of the first registration day, with long lines of students extending up 13th street from Emerald hall, was caused through an underestimate of the number of students who would pick the first day in which to register, according to the registrar.

The newly installed registration system proved more efficient than the method used earlier despite the loss of seven girls from the office staff, who contracted colds at the height of the registration period, Avery asserted.

The registrar expressed special satisfaction at the speed with which his staff has been able to handle the recording work under the new system.

A class breakdown of the registration figures will be released by the registrar Monday.
