

Theater Ticket-Sale Competition To Begin On Campus Monday

The annual sale of season tickets for the University Theater will begin Monday, Mrs. Marjory Allingham-Ramey, business manager, has announced. They will sell at $4, including tax.

This year's campaign will be conducted on an individual salesman basis instead of competition between living organizations as has been done in past years. Representatives will be chosen from each living organization to handle the sales with the salesman selling the most tickets receiving a prize at the end of the two week campaign period. A meeting for the representatives will be held Monday at 4 p.m. in the drama studio.

A variety of productions is being planned for the coming season with comedies, dramas, classics, and a spectacle show in McArthur court which has been tentatively scheduled as "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Season ticket holders will be guaranteed admission to all productions and will be given first choice of reserved seats. No season ticket will be sold after the last performance of the first play, "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

The regular admission price is set at 80 cents and $2.40 for the spectacle show, making the saving on a season ticket $2.40. More than one of the six admissions purchased on the season ticket may be used on a single production if desired.

The dates for the two fall term plays are October 24, 25, 29, 30, 31, November 1 for the first show and Dec 3, 4, 5, 6, 9, and 19 for the second show.

Speech, Hearing Correction Offered

Students with speech difficulties are being encouraged by Dr. K. S. Wood to contact him at the speech and hearing clinic, 262 Emerald hall. The clinic is open to all students for corrective programs. Students may make appointments by calling at the clinic office or by calling extension 375 on the campus exchange.

Oregana Sets Schedule For House Pictures

Individual pictures for all members of living organizations have been scheduled to begin September 30, according to Oregana Editor Ross Yates.

The earlier than usual schedule is due to the addition of seven living organizations and the increased enrollment on the campus. This brings the total of organizations in the 1948 Oregana to 64.

Schedule Speeded

Kennell-Ellis photographers, who are again handling the individual pictures, are also pushing the schedule so that page layouts may be made by winter term.

Schedule blanks will be delivered to the organizations a week ahead of time. One is to be kept by the house and one is to be returned to Kennell-Ellis studios a day previously.

Dress for the men will be, as in previous years, white shirt, sport coat, and tie. Women's organizations are allowed their choice, but the house must be uniform.

The first week is scheduled as follows: September 30, Alpha Tau Omega and Omega hall; October 1, Beta Theta Pi and Chi Psi; October 2, Delta Tau Delta and Delta Upsilon; October 3, Phi Delta Theta and Phi Gamma Delta.

Religious Council Discusses Week

Under the direction of student chairman Tom Hazzard, the first meeting of this year's University religious council got under way Thursday afternoon with a discussion of the group's plans for the coming year.

Highlighting their activities for the year will be the annual "Religious Evaluation Week," October 26-30. Twelve speakers will be on the campus to present topics of interest to the students. Other activities for the week will include book exhibits, breakfasts and dinners, forums, skeptic hours and firesides.

Dr. George Pedley, economics professor at Mills college, will speak at the opening session on Sunday evening, October 26, and will also lead the skeptic hour discussions during the week.
