

The Weather
Partly cloudy with scattered light showers. Slightly cooler. Fair Sunday.

Sales Tax
Watch for the pro and con of the sales tax question in Tuesday's Emerald.

Ducks Battle Wolfpack Today

Tag Sale Precedes Hello Day

WAA Open House Draws Spotlight Monday Evening

AWS-sponsored University Women's Week will commence Monday morning as co-eds will tie on their "Hello Day" tags.

The ten-cent tags with a blank line for the wearer's name will be a "must" for all women students. They are now being sold in all women's living organizations. There will be a booth in the Co-op on Monday.

The yellow tags will serve as an admittance ticket to the AWS assembly Thursday night at McArthur court. Chairmen of the tag sale are Helen Sherman, Marguerite Johns, Mary Stadelman, and Jean Swift.

WAA will hold the spotlight Monday evening when they hold open house from 7 to 9 p.m. After the club presidents are introduced, Barbara Borrevik, WAA president, will explain the activities of the organization.

Beverly Bennett will lead folk dances and all in attendance will be invited to join the activity. Miss Rosamond Wentworth, assistant professor of physical education, will call the square dances.

Following this program in the main gymnasium, there will be a swimming demonstration by the Amphibians and a free swimming period. Patricia Mounts will be in charge of the pool. She emphasized that everyone should bring her own bathing cap.

Coralie Thompson is planning refreshments to be served at the open house.

Cookie Lavagetto Breaks Up Fourth Game in World Series

NEW YORK, Oct. 3. (UP)—Cookie Lavagetto, an old man with one leg in retirement, broke up a no-hit ball game today when two were out in the ninth inning and gave the battling Brooklyn Dodgers a 3 to 2 victory over the New York Yankees that squared the World Series at two games all.

Big Floyd Bevens, a lad from Salem Oregon, who came within one hit of becoming the first pitcher ever to hurl a series no-hit game, had two men on bas who had walked, when he served a fat one to Lavagetto.

The stocky little utility infielder promptly rapped it high against the right field wall to score two pinch runners and turn what appeared sure defeat into victory.

Baffled Dodgers

Bevens through eight and two-thirds tense innings baffled the Dodgers—a team which kenotes youth and speed. The big fellow from Salem, a "tough luck" guy who seems fated to lose one-run games, had everything but control.

His stuff was working, even though he was the wildest pitcher in series history. He walked 10 men, breaking the mark set by Jack Coombs of the Athletics in 1910.

Independent Party Outlines New Year New Physicists Serve Science

Initial meeting of the ISA was held Thursday evening in 105 Chapman, Don McNeil presiding. Dick Williams, educational activities manager, explained the proposed $5 increase tuition.

McNeil outlined the plans for the coming year and welcomed the new senators as well as members of the ISA cabinet who had been serving the group previously. McNeil said that he would like to see the ISA as a functioning organization for the off campus non-affiliated students as well as for the non-affiliated students living on the campus.

Orides Plan Pledging

Orides, organization for University women living off campus, will have their formal pledging ceremony at 7 p.m. Monday night in alumni hall.

The physics department boasts two new associate professors, Dr. Eugene P. Cooper, and Dr. Frederick W. Paul. A new instructor, Philip A. Goldberg, and graduate assistants complete the staff, announced Dr. A. E. Caswell, head of the department of physics.

Dr. Paul, a spectroscopist, will continue his research on metals, which he began at the University of Rochester, where he recently studied. Dr. Cooper has been transferred from the naval ordnance testing station at Inyokern, Calif.

In addition to the above-mentioned research, Dr. E. G. Ebbighausen, associate professor of physics, will undertake a research, assisted by the University, on beta ray spectrum of artificial-producing radioactive substances.

Fourth in the line of research projects, in the physics department, is a contract with AAF to undertake a two-year research on physical properties of the upper atmosphere to 100 miles or more. Financed by the army, the research, under the direction of Dr. Caswell, will be conducted by the staff of the physics department: Dr. Cooper, Dr. Ebbighausen, Mr. Lyman A. Webb, Ronald S. Paul, and Mr. Goldberg.

Yell King Requests White Blouses, Lids

Johnny Backlund, yell king, requested yesterday that rooters at today's game wear white blouses or shirts. He also suggested that men, no matter what their year, wear rooter's caps.

Pom poms, which have been sold in the living organizations by members of Kwama, should also be on hand, he said. Members of Kwama and Phi Theta Upsilon will sell pom poms at the game.

MANAGER TO SPEAK

City Manager Deane Seeger will speak to journalism students Wednesday.

Oregon Team Favored To Annex Second Win In Non-conference Play

Oregon's fighting football team clashes with the Nevada Wolfpack today on Hayward field, in the third non-conference tilt of the season for the Ducks. Kick-off time is 2 p.m.

An estimated 10,000 fans will witness the fray. The weatherman has again changed his mind, and predicts shirt-sleeve warmth for the third consecutive week.

Both squads go into the game with records of one win and one loss. Both scored their winners in their opening tilts. Oregon outran Montana State college, 27-14, while Nevada trounced Flagstaff (Arizona) State 50-0. The Ducks were hit 38-13 last weekend, and the Wolfpack dropped to the classy San Francisco Dons, 37-13.

Changes in UO Ticket Policy Draw Criticism

Complaints were received by the Emerald Friday regarding a new ruling of the University ticket office which discontinues the early sale of general admission football tickets to wives of University students.

Formerly, married students were able to purchase the tickets at McArthur court prior to the time they were put on sale at Hayward field booths.

According to Mrs. R. J. Wren, ticket manager, early ticket sales were discontinued due to a deluge of demands on the part of students and their wives who found they were not going to be able to attend games for which they bought tickets, and wished to be refunded the purchase price in return for the ducats.

Not Redeemable

Mrs. Wren explained that it is a policy of the ticket office that tickets sold are not redeemable.

To avoid lengthy explanations and confusion in the ticket office, the practice of selling general admission tickets before they go on sale at the game will be discontinued," the ticket manager said.

Similarly no advanced sale will be made on general admission tickets to the Washington-Oregon game October 18. The reason behind this ruling, Mrs. Wren revealed, was a flood of letters received by James Richardson, manager of the Multnomah Athletic club, from irate Portlanders protesting the early admission of Oregon students' wives to the Texas game at Multnomah stadium last Saturday.

Tickets Sold Early

A total of 224 tickets had been sold to University students prior to the time they went on sale at the stadium. However, only a part of the holders of these tickets found their way into the bleachers before Richardson ordered that no more persons would be admitted to the stadium on general admission tickets until the ducats went on sale at the regular ticket booths.

Arrangements have been made for a general admission booth to be located at gate 17 on the east side of Hayward field today so that students' wives may more conveniently buy their tickets and enter the gates with their husbands.

Non-student wives will be admitted to the student section of the bleachers only if they are in the company of their husbands.

Webfoots Picked to Win
Oregon was rated seventy-second nationally and Nevada ninety-fourth late in the week and the Webfoots are picked to beat Joe Sheeketski's Wolfpack.

Oregon will probably be without the use of defense Bill Abbey, one of the hardest-tackling men on the squad. Abbey suffered a leg injury in the Texas fray, and was in uniform for practice only one day during the week. Otherwise the squad is in nearly top physical condition.

Backfield Hindered

Nevada's backfield performance may be hindered by the loss through injury of their top running star Halfback Tommy Kalmanir. Kalmanir broke his hand in the San Francisco game.

This will be the first meeting between the Webfoots and the Reno squad, but not the first between Oregon Coach Jim Aiken and the Wolfpack. Aiken was head mentor at the Nevada for eight years and his old pupils will be out to show the coach they learned their lessons well.

Dr. Dean to Speak On Big Molecules

With emphasis on big molecules, the type found in wood, cotton, nylons, silks, and rubbers, Dr. Robert Dean, assistant professor of chemistry, will deliver a lecture at 8:00 Monday evening in 103 Deady hall.

The one-hour public lecture is sponsored by Sigma Xi, men's science honorary. Preceding the lecture, at 7:30 p.m. in 105 Deady hall, will be a business meeting of the University chapter of Sigma Xi. Immediately following his lecture, Dr. Dean will open the assembly to a general discussion period from the floor.

Students Eat in Dark When Power Fails

Students at the vets' dorms and sorority row attempted to eat dinner and study in the dark between 6 and 7 p.m. Thursday evening due to a power shut-off at the Seventeenth and Pearl street sub-station.

An emergency crew from the power and light board reported that the power was turned off by automatic safety devices when power overload developed.

Cornell Answers Nevada Edits Concerning UO Ticket Policies

By HANS WOLD

Two indignant editorials denouncing policies of the Oregon athletic department appeared in Friday's "Sagebrush" student newspaper of the University of Nevada.

According to information offered by the University athletic manager, Anse B. Cornell, the grievance arose from a misunderstanding on the part of the University of Nevada Sagebrush editorial staff in one case, and an error, since rectified, on the part of the Oregon athletic department.

Voices Complaint

One "Sagebrush" editorial decried an Oregon ruling refusing free admittance of Nevada students to Saturday's football game at Hayward field upon presentation of their student body cards. Visiting Nevada fans will be required to pay regular admission charges.

"We are wondering," the editorial read, "why an institution the size, and with the background of the Pacific Coast conference school, has gone on record to fail to honor the student cards of a friendly rival . . . now, with Oregon playing cheap skate, we think the number making the jaunt (to today's game) will be smaller."

No Favorite

Cornell explained Friday that Oregon is not discriminating against the Nevada school, but is following a policy generally accepted in the Pacific Coast conference.

The athletic manager pointed out that Idaho university, U.S.F., Washington, Washington State, and Oregon State are among other Pacific coast schools whose students pay their own way to out-of-town games.

An exception to this rule appears in the football contract between UCLA and Oregon specifying that student body cards of both schools will be honored when they meet in coast conference contests.

Cornell explained that the clause was made possible because the distance between the two universities

(Please turn to page eight)