

Morris Consults Rhode Aspirant

Students interested in Rhodes scholarships should consult with Victor P. Morris, dean of the school of business administration, in Commerce building, or Dr. P. B. Means, head of department of religion, in Friendly hall, before Wednesday noon for aid in completing applications. To be considered for election for 1948 scholarships, these applications must be filed by November 1.

Veterans with remaining time under public law 346 can expect these benefits to continue at Oxford. The scholarships of $2000 per year normally given to cover tuition and costs will be granted them in addition to GI benefits.

Forty-eight students will be chosen from among the candidates from the United States. These scholarships, designed for study at Oxford university in any field chosen by the student, cover two and a possible three years.

Headlines Show Returns To Air

A combined listening audience of more than 200,000 will be introduced to Oregon campus life this week when "Campus Headlines" returns to the air from the University radio workshop. Scheduled as a public service release over station KOAC Tuesday at 9 p.m., the program will also be broadcast over station KEX in Portland at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, and over Eugene's station KUGN Thursday at 9 p.m.

Featuring an all-student cast, with a combination of all-student writing, directing, and production, "Campus Headlines" will follow the life and trials of the typical student at the University of Oregon. Through the eyes of Joe Smith, the mythical student, Oregon's radio public will see just what classes and activities the University offers to its students. Joe will be followed through the hectic registration period, to his classes, and to such outside activities as the Saturday games, the Frosh Glee, and the spring drama program.

Pictures of this first in the new series of shows dealing with higher education in the state will be taken during the first broadcast Tuesday evening, according to Glenn
