

Fund Benefits Three Students

Three University art school students, Alfred Staples, special student in interior design; Norma Driscoll, junior in drawing and painting; and Mary Lewis, junior in sculpture, were awarded tuition scholarships from income from the Ellen M. Pennell scholarship fund.

The late Mrs. Pennell was connected with the University of Oregon from 1908 until her retirement in 1932. While with the University, she served at various times as assistant in the English department, instructor in the school of architecture and allied arts, assistant dean of women, acting dean of women, and assistant in the library.

Upon her death in 1941, Mrs. Pennell's estate, valued at over $11,000, devolved upon the University of Oregon. The income of the major portion of the estate was to be used for the payment of tuition of deserving students in the art school.

Dr. Dixon Receives Research Contract

A research contract from the U. S. naval research office has been awarded Dr. W. J. Dixon, associate professor of mathematics, Dr. A. F. Moursund, head of the mathematics department, announced this week.

The funds are to extend over a period from September 2, 1947, to November 30, 1948, to furnish necessary personnel and facilities for research in mathematical statistics. Specifically, the study is directed toward the development of distributions of simplified statistics.

"During the war it was found necessary to have statistical procedures which could be applied more rapidly than those previously developed," Dr. Dixon said. He explained that this project is an outgrowth of developments started during the war.

Dr. Dixon did undergraduate work at Oregon State college, and graduate work at the University of Wisconsin. He was awarded a doctorate at Princeton in 1944.

Forest fires burned enough lumber in 1946 to build 200,000 five-room houses. Ninety per cent of all fires are due to carelessness.

'Gold Diggers' To Have Bad Time

To protest the lowering hemline, rising operating costs on dates, and the pseudo-sophistication of coeds, the men students of Whitman college in Walla Walla, Washington are holding a "We Hate Women Week" during which the campus males will completely ignore all campus females.

The men claimed that they were moved to action by the social and financial burdens imposed by girls described as "gold-digging sophisticates." It was decided by the men to deprive the Whitman girls of their favorite indoor sports by refusing to speak, telephone, or otherwise communicate with them.

Like Children? Santa Needed

Are you a born actor? Do you have a magnetic personality, especially attractive to children? If you do have both of these traits, plus a jolly, rotund laugh, you may be one of the men that Dean Karl Onthank is looking for.

One local store already has placed a request with the campus employment agency for a man to play Santa Claus in their toy department. Other similar positions will probably be available soon, Onthank said.

Men interested in holding one of these positions on Saturdays until school is out and full time thereafter, are asked to see Dean Onthank in the employment office in Friendly hall.

These plans were decided upon only after the college psychology department had assured Whitman campus leaders that the shock of buying cigarettes and coffee would not produce irremedial psychoneuroses effects upon the girls.

The Whitman males are also minimizing feminine suffering during the period by sitting on different sides in classrooms and similar segregation in other mixed groups. Traditional niceties favoring the fair sex are also abolished, the gals must open doors for themselves.

The only exceptions to the rules will be in the case of married students who may converse with their wives on the subjects of price of food, light, and rent, the condition of Junior's health, and deductions from the budget to be used as hubby's beer money.

As reported in the Whitman Pioneer, the men hope that after this week the gals will show more favor to shorter skirts, lower date expenditures, and better spirit in general.
