

Cupcakes to Go Like Hotcakes

Cupcakes will be sold in the library this afternoon from 2-5 p. m. by the house librarians. This sale is sponsored each week in order to raise money for new books, which will be added to the collection for the living organization libraries.

In charge of the sale today is Allene Stiz, Delta Zeta and Lee Peprash. Sherry Ross, 2-3 p.m.; Lois Epperson, Gamma hall and Bob Erickson, Stitzer hall, 3-4p.m.; Jean Armstrong, Gamma Phi Beta and John Borquist, Sigma Phi Epsilon, 4-5 p.m.

Executive Council To Study Millrace

The executive council of the ASUO Monday night agreed to invite authorities on the millrace problem to their next meeting to discuss restoration of Oregon's famous landmark.

The members also recognized their responsibility in furthering the student union project, but took no action, pending receipt of further information as to their responsibilities.

Sad Weekend For Infirmaries

Spending the weekend in the infirmary are: Mary Ann Miller, Dolores Becker, Ann Ruth Morton, James Montague, Rilda Steigleder, Ray Ryerse, Don King, Fred Scoggin, James Hayden, Morman Riddle, Frank Ieralli, Cale Bonnell and S. G. Hefflin.

Repairman Henrich

Although he raked in a winner's $5800 share of the World Series melon, Yankee outfielder Tommy Henrich apparently isn't going to spend it needlessly, you gather from this picture of him repairing a drain pipe on his home at Massillon, O.

Child Care Sponsored

In order that veteran's wives may be able to participate in campus activities, the YWCA is sponsoring a child care program. Girls interested in participating in the program should call Shirlye McCarton at the YWCA between 12 p. m. and 12:45 p. m. any day this week.

About three-fourths of the cultivated land in humid regions of the United States needs lime.

Danish Graduates

is part of UNESCO's plan to start education on a great scale. It is an international organization with policy determined on an international level.

Dispelling fears that the money used to promote and aid communism, he said that the main concern of students in countries such as Poland and Finland is to keep contact with Western Europe. "Their countries are now being built up and the fact that our students send aid helps keep their spirit bright for democratic liberties," according to Jorgensen. English-written books give them a picture of the Western world. They otherwise might not obtain such books as the Russian government may not consider them as important for distribution as those with the orthodox Marxian policy.

Living Conditions

Jorgensen, who arrived in this country on September 8, presented detailed knowledge of WSSF with conviction. He spoke of the situation at the University of Rome this winter citing the case of two Italian girls living together. The girls can only attend school every other day because they share one pair of shoes.

In his underground work he worked with gestapo agents friendly to the Allied cause. He found it necessary to make contacts with "the heart of the enemy," and once helped one friendly member of the gestapo escape in an ambulance.

He spent last summer with an international group of students in Yugoslavia doing cultural work and visited a WSR-supported rest home in France before sailing for the United States.

A law graduate, Jorgensen is vitaly interested in the United Nations, and hopes to work for it when he returns to Europe next January. He left Eugene by plane last night so that he could speak on the University of Washington campus today.

Broadcasts on KUGN

While on the campus, Jorgensen spoke at six religious organizations, the Delta Gamma house, the Chi Psi house, at Gerlinger hall, the Northwest Christian College and a wire recording of one of his speeches was broadcast over KUGN last night.

WSSF is working to build peace by giving relief largely through education as books and scientific equipment. Oregon's funds will be specifically earmarked for a library at the University of Rangoon.

Most of the university buildings at Rangoon were dynamited by the Japanese and the books of the various libraries were collected and burned. The Medical College with its large library was looted. Equipment and books are almost non-existent, there, and classes are being taught in bamboo huts erected on the campus.

UNIVERSITY MODELS...

Aside from our appointments for portraiture, brides, babies, children and social affairs, we are under contract to an eastern publishing syndicate for fashion, story and catalogue illustrating. We are immediately interested in registering models for general illustrating. Non-professionals are paid $4.00 per hour, professionals $10.00 per hour. Our current assignments require mostly female models but men are invited to register now for assignments in January.

For the convenience of those not having free time during the day, a call to our salon may result in evening registration.
