

Two UO Teams Drill for Playoff In Hockey Meet

Two hockey teams, the Evergreens and the Cascades, will represent the University of Oregon at the Pacific Northwest women's playoffs at Portland this weekend. They will compete in a league of 14 teams from Oregon, Washington, Idaho and British Columbia.

Both Oregon teams play at 9 a.m. Saturday. The Evergreens start against Washington College and the Cascades against the Ex-Kitsilano (one of the Canadian teams). At noon the same day the Evergreens will engage Vancouver.

Following that game the Cascades will play College of Idaho. The schedule on Sunday has the Evergreen team pitted against the University of Columbia at 9:15 and the Cascades against the University of Washington at 11:15.

All of the games are scheduled for Grant and Irving parks. Members of the Evergreen team are: Janice Neeley, Hermie Kroeger, Bev Bennet, Pat Arnold, Emily Autenrieth, Harriet Minot, Robbie Mulkey, Mary Bowman, Margaret Steinberger, Mable De Vos and Hazel Peterson. Players tentatively placed on the Evergreen team include Randi Raanes, Shirley Baker,

Journalism Faculty To Attend Meeting

Professor George Turnbull, dean of the school of journalism, Professor Laurence R. Campbell, Associate Professor Warren Price, Assistant Professor Harry E. Heath, and Graduate Assistant Jack Billings will represent Oregon at the Pacific universities' journalism conference to be held November 28 and 29 in San Francisco.

The conference, first since the war, is held annually for journalism instructors of the Universities of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, California, Southern California, Nevada, San Jose State college, and Stanford to discussing journalism teachers' mutual interests and problems.

Dean Turnbull is head of the program committee for this year's meeting.

Yvonne Keith, Imogene Love, Dorothy Anne Outz, and Beverly Wadsworth.

The Cascade members are: Jean Neeley, Jeannette Masilionis, Maryann Hansens, Maryann Blinkensop, Pat Miller and Wilma Earnest. Trying for positions on the Cascade team are: Beth Hershey, Frances Blinkensop, Ruth Ehrlich, Dr. Dorothy Moir, Catherine Russell, Lois Larson, and Viola Robbins.

Speech Article Tells Disorders

"Speech correction occupies a strategic place in the whole field of education," writes Dr. Kenneth S. Wood, associate professor of speech pathology and clinical practice, in an article published in the September 10 issue of the "Journal of Speech Disorders."

Speech correction is important because it is concerned with the key problems of the individual. "Whatever we do for his speech that we also do for his whole being," the writer states.

The article entitled "A Philosophy of Speech Correction" assumes the number one position in the issue and deals with the aspects of speech correction and their relation both to the individual affected and the speech corrector. Early in his training the student clinician needs to devise a rational philosophy about speech correction, the author advises, which will give him an over all sense of direction, relation, and purpose.

We should constantly be concerned with the justification for speech correction as a special field or as a fact of general speech education. Correction is often criticized for failure to accomplish its purpose, but the critics fail to regard the cases that have been corrected by the proper training, he adds.

The instructor, the writer continues, should show the student the solidity of scientific approach to the study of speech relating it to the entire field of abnormal behavior. This is one of the ways to accomplish the task of fitting it into other problems of education and learning.

Speech correction is bound up with the dynamics of human behavior in relation to environment, Dr. Wood states, and it is the di-

Oregon Graduate Named to VA Post

Richard Mengler has been named chief training officer for the veterans administration in Eugene, it was revealed by that office.

He succeeds Thomas L. Karnes who will take a similar post in Corvallis.

Mengler is a graduate of the University of Oregon, class of '40, and was assistant principal of Corvallis high school before the war when he served in the Pacific theater.

Donations Low

As all forms of competition have been eliminated from the current campaign, the amount of the total funds collected will serve as a measurement of student willingness and enthusiasm to support the drive, the chairman said.

University students join an aggregate of 2,000,000 American students in protection for the future by aiding the potential leaders of Europe and Asia. Releases from WSSF headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, show that students of 16 other countries are giving to meet the challenge of the need.

Bible Study Scheduled

Bible studies will be conducted under the auspices of the Inter-Varsity Christian fellowship from 8 to 8:50 a.m. in the men's lounge of Gerlinger hall and from 11 to 11:50 a.m. in the committee room of the University YMCA today.
