

Homecoming in Pullman as . . .

Palouse Junket Begins Today

Guard Combo—Berwick, Meland To Lead Carnivorous Webfoots

By FRED TAYLOR

Ted Meland and Jim Berwick, alternating right guards, were named co-captains of the Palouse bound Oregon grid team for the weekend battle with the Washington State Cougars, at the conclusion of Thursday's practice session.

Meland fills the guard position on offensive plays, while Berwick relieves him on defense.

The Oregon team leaves for Portland today at 2 p.m., where they will board a plane for Spokane. Plans call for the team to spend the night in Spokane, and then travel to Pullman by bus Saturday morning.

Last workout before the Saturday battle was concluded yesterday with the Webfoots concentrating on adding luster to their running attack. Fast going on the Cougar turf may greet the Ducks, as reports indicate that the field may be frozen. Snow flurries have also been reported in the college town so the Eugene club may be up against a new element this week. The gridders worked without pads in their final session but Coach Jim Aiken showed plenty of respect for the often-defeated Cougars as he warned the Ducks that the fray would be a rugged affair.

Oregon will again call upon its newly-developed power attack to do a big share of the offensive duties, especially if snow makes the ball-handling difficult. Van Brocklin's aerial prowess has been virtually unused in the last two games, as a powerful crew of groundmen have been the workhorses.

Alternate sets of ball-carriers will again see action, with Jake Leicht, Jim Newquist, and Bob Koch operating together; and Keith DeCoursey, George Bell, and Bob Sanders in the other set.

The 37 players named for the traveling squad are as follows:

Ends—Dan Garza, Lou Robinson, Pete Torchia, Wayne Bartholemey, Larry Stoeven, Darrell Robinson, J.D. McCowan, Pete Miller, Art Milne.

Tackles—Steve Dotur, Don Stanton, Bob Roberts, Larry Thompson, Dean Sheldon, Harry Edwards.

Centers—Brad Eckland, Clark Stokes.

Quarterbacks—Norm Van Brocklin, DeWayne Johnson, Ar-

Bitter Weather Outside; Cougars Huddle Inside

Bitter weather drove the Washington State gridders into the field house again yesterday, as they completed preparations for the Oregon Webfoot battle Saturday. Defensive tactics aimed at stopping Jake Leicht were the order of the day for the Cougars. Washington State scouts were highly impressed with Leicht's ball-packing capabilities in Oregon's last games and reported that the Webfoot halfback is a threat any time he gets the ball.

With the recovery of Fullback Bob George, who has been on the injury list, the Cougars are in top physical shape for the game. George is the only Oregonian on the Cougar roster. He comes from Milton-Freewater.

Coach Phil Sorboe is not sure of his starting eleven but has named several players that are sure of considerable action. Frank Bacoka is a certainty at one end position and is highly regarded by Sorboe. Andy Lazor at center is another two-year letterman that needs no introduction and is deserving of the starting nod from Sorboe. Big Bob Doornink is another sure-fire regular at a tackle slot.

The Cougars can call on a number of versatile backs to match tricks with Leicht et al. Billy Lippincott, Dean Eggers, Gordy Brunswick, Don Paul, Jerry Williams and Bob George are all No. 1 backs that can pass, run and kick with the best of them. In addition they have the find of the year in Hal Akins, who has turned in several sparkling performances. Akins scored a pair of TDs in the Portland game Saturday and set up a third with a 31-yard punt return.

Frosh Mentor Drills Wet Weather Unit

By ELWIN PAXSON

With a muddy, slippery field virtually assured for Saturday's game, Frosh mentor Carl Heldt said yesterday that he would start the same hefty forward wall that has seen opening action in the past two encounters, and a "mudhorse" backfield.

Heldt disclosed that Big Jim Hanns, former Eugene high star, has been tentatively shifted to left half for the Portland game, where his power and speed can be used to best advantage in running the T-formation plays on the soft, treacherous turf. Replacing him at the tailback spot will be John Parsons, a 185 pounder, who will win the nod over Steve Button and Bob Sutton because of his all-around defensive and offensive ability.

Rounding out the backfield will be Earl Stelle, rifle-armed Medford ball-handler, at quarterback, and Dennis Sullivan, whose combined drive and speed assures him a berth at right half.

On the flanks will be Doug Coghill and Dick Mobley, who will be the principal targets for Stelle's passes. Beside them in the tackle slots, Bill Marker and Hank Cedros, who have both shown steady improvement since the season began, are slated for starting duty. Chet Daniels and Art Harris, a pair of 210 pounders at guards, and a defensive stand-out, Dave Gibson, at center, round out the first eleven.

Thursday's workout consisted of a scrimmage between the second and third stringers, while the starting squad ran through signals and worked on offensive and defensive punting maneuvers.

The Portland Babes are scheduled to arrive in Eugene Saturday morning and limber-up in a brief practice session before game time, set for 2 p.m.

Bear Story

BERKELEY, Cal. — California found itself down to its last right halfback Thursday as breakaway-artist Jack Swaner once again was counted out of the Washington game Saturday because of a sprained ankle.
