

Touring Dean Visits Oregon

Miss Helen Moreland, dean of women at the University of Southern California, spent yesterday and this morning discussing university building and management problems with Mrs. Golda P. Wickham, dean of women, Mrs. Genevieve Turnipseed, director of dormitories, and other officials.

Miss Moreland, who flew to Eugene from the University of Washington, is making a tour of the universities of the west coast with the hope of returning south with new ideas for residence halls and campus policies.

As a sidelight, the dean is investigating women's activity programs in the schools. She stated that USC officials are concerned with campus activity life because they feel life outside the classroom is as important as that inside and that their job is to give outside activities an educational value.

Representatives of the AWS, YWCA and the dean of women met

'Puddles Gone' Keeper Wails

Puddles was discovered missing from his cage yesterday morning by his owner, Jim McClintock.

McClintock left Puddles in a hiding place after bringing the duck in to leave in the pet corral the next morning, until Homecoming. When he called the duck, no answering "Quack" was received, and upon investigation, Puddles' cage turned out to be an empty box.

According to McClintock, this is the second time within the last two weeks that a kidnaping has been attempted of Puddles. Two Stanford students attempted to walk away with the duck in the St. Francis hotel were stopped before they could get away.

Last year, OSC students carried off Puddles about a week before the Oregon-Oregon State game. They returned the duck during the halftime, with extensive ceremonies.

No word has been received from Corvallis of the Duck.

with Miss Moreland yesterday afternoon to discuss Oregon campus life. Miss Moreland will visit Oregon State college today before continuing to the University of California and Stanford.

Grads to Receive Application Cards

An application card for students expecting to graduate in 1948 will be included in the winter term registration materials which will be distributed Monday, November 24. These cards should be filled out and returned to the registrar's office by the beginning of winter term this year, advised Curtis E. Avery, University registrar.

Registrar Avery has advised the Emerald that no premium should be placed on early registering for winter term. He stated that places will be reserved in sequence courses for students already enrolled in those classes, so that registrations may be completed with a minimum of rushing and standing in lines.

"Above all, don't let registering interfere with classes," Mr. Avery said.

The question for the first regular debate tryout will be "Should we prohibit smoking on the campus?"

The Webfoot will be discontinued as a separate publication, the Student Publications committee decided.

The University library will be open Sunday evenings from now on.

Thirty-one to zero, was the score that the Oregon varsity racked up against the frosh team in a practice session.

strong feeling on the subject that subsidies and high wage inducements are unnecessary to get volunteers for Arctic colonies, he continued.

The basic reason for the sluggish response to Arctic development in other nations, he felt, was that they do not wish colonization for economic reasons.

As examples of this he pointed out the unpopularity among Canadians of opening the Polar sea route because it would interfere with development of the railroads and cut down the number of jobs in transportation in southern Canada. This same attitude was behind the opposition to opening up wheat lands in northern Canada, Stefansson said.

The Soviets have been highly successful in building pre-planned towns in the Arctic, said Stefansson. He explained that although these towns, such as Vorkuta with a population of nearly 40,000, are plotted out on drawing boards in Moscow, they are expected to be self-supporting towns rather than exporting camps.
