

French Instructors to Meet

By BETTY LAGOMARSINO

The two-day regional conference of the American Association of Teachers of French officially opens at 2 p.m. today with registration of out-of-town delegates at alumni hall, Geerlinger.

An annual affair, the conference is sponsored by the northwest chapter of AATF. The program includes several exhibits, talks, and discussions.

M. Raoul Bertrand, French consul-general from San Francisco, will be among the guests. He will speak Saturday at 11 a.m., and will attend the Oregon State game as the guest of President Newburn.

Following registration, Laurence LeSage, president of the northwest chapter, will conduct election of officers and a discussion of the aims and activities of the organization.

At 3 p.m. in alumni hall, Pierre Van Rysselberghe, professor of chemistry, and Paul B. Jacobson, dean of the school of education, will address the convention.

"The Place of Modern Foreign Languages in Secondary Education Curriculum" is Jacobson's speech topic. Van Rysselberghe will talk on "Science and Foreign Languages."

French films will be shown at 4 p.m. in 207 Chapman hall. Perry J. Powers, instructor in Romance languages, will be in charge.

Delegates to the convention will be the guests of the language department at the Faculty club for 6 p.m. dinner. Reservations can be made with Christina Crane, secretary-treasurer of the group, or Carl L. Johnson, chairman of the dinner committee.

Dinner speakers will be David M. Dougherty, head of the language school, whose topic will be "The University of Oregon," and Mrs. M. R. Sponenburgh, who will speak in French on "La France D'Apres Guerre. Mrs. Sponenburgh, wife of M. L. Sponenburgh, instructor in sculpture, is a native of France.

Saturday's program will begin with a realia exhibit in the browsing room of the library at 9 p.m. The exhibit, under the direction of Lois E. Richter, instructor in Romance languages, includes objects of interest and use in language instruction, especially at the secondary school level.

Mary Rogolino, instructor in Romance languages, will discuss French text books, and Carl L. Johnson, assistant professor of Romance languages, will speak on visual aids in education.

The convention will end with a series of discussions and talks in the browsing room, starting at 10 a.m. Chandler B. Beall, professor of Romance languages, will conduct a discussion of research and graduate study at the University of Oregon in French language and literature.

Following Beall's talk, there will be a panel discussion of opportunities for study abroad and in French campus. Nita M. McGuire, graduate assistant in Romance languages, is in charge. Closing the program will be a short address by Raoul Bertrand, French consul-general, at 11 a.m.

In addition to the realia exhibit, now on display in the French seminar room, Friendly hall, is an exhibit of modern French art in the sculpture gallery of the art building.

A third exhibit now on display in the circulation department of the library is a collection of letters from M. Estaunier, noted French writer. In charge of the exhibit is Miss Crane, who was a personal friend of the early 20th century author.

The conference is under the direction of Laurence LeSage, who is regional president of AATF.

Eager Coed Seeks Enrollment for 1952

At least one prospective coed is not going to be caught short in any future landslide of registrations at Oregon, at least not if her anxious mother can help it. A letter received this week from California by Curtis E. Avery, University registrar, contained this worried query:

"Although my daughter, 13 years of age, is only in the eighth grade, several friends have stated recently to me that increasing congestion in desirable universities makes it advisable to register her for admission in the fall of —1952!"
