

Times Writer Visits Campus This Week

George E. Jones, Oregon journalism graduate in the class of 1937, now a member of the editorial staff of the New York Times, with headquarters in New York, visited the campus with Mrs. Jones this week while spending a few days at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Jones.

Mr. Jones, who has spent several years in the western Pacific area and in the Orient, first for the United Press and later for the New York Times, is recuperating from an illness contracted during the more than a year he spent as Times representative in New Delhi. Meanwhile he is completing a book on the Indian situation, entitled "Tumult in India," which has been accepted for publication in New York.

Thursday morning Mr. Jones addressed the editing class in the school of journalism, giving his interpretation of the status of India politically and economically, as obtained from his personal observation as well as reading and study.

Among the leaders he has met and interviewed are Gandhi the mystic, Nehru the political intellectual, and Jinnah the Moslem head of Pakistan. The Times man told the class he was impressed with the difficulty of understanding India, and while believing India and Pakistan might be a little better off to retain dominion status in the British commonwealth, is inclined to believe the severance of ties will be complete.

Oregon Professors To Attend Philological Meeting At Stanford

Oregon professors will take a prominent part in the 47th annual meeting of the philological association of the Pacific coast, opening November 28 at Stanford university.

Included on the two-day program are papers by Hoyt Trowbridge, professor of English, and Laurence LeSage, assistant professor of Romance languages.

Professors Read Papers

"Pope's Eloisa to Abelard—A New Interpretation," a paper developed out of his course on Alexander Pope, will be presented by Professor Trowbridge. The paper by Professor LeSage will be "Marcel Proust's Appreciation of Alfred DeMusset."

Dr. P. W. Souers, head of the department of English, serves on the executive board of the philological association and will also act as chairman of one of the English sections at the Stanford meeting.

Chairman of the American literature section will be F. M. Combellack, assistant professor of Latin and Greek. F. G. Black, associate professor of English, will head the classics section.

The meeting of the association, a west coast branch of the modern language association, will also feature a number of talks by professors who have recently traveled in Europe.

Among other members of the University faculty who plan to attend are: D. M. Dougherty, head of the foreign language department; E. P. Kremer, professor of German; C. B. Beall, professor of Romance languages; H. H. Hoeltje, professor of English; R. D. Horn, Professor of English; Anibal Vargas-Baron, assistant professor of Romance languages; O. M. Willard, assistant professor of English; C. L. Johnson, assistant professor of Romance languages; L. E. Richter, instructor in Romance languages; N. H. Oswald, instructor in English.

Song, Yell Contest Deadline Extended

The songs and yell contest, currently being conducted by Web-footers, has been extended from the previous deadline of today until December 12. This will give those who still wish to submit entries sufficient time to get them finished.

First prize for the winning fight song is $25, and $5 will be awarded for the three best yells entered. Several songs have been submitted so far, but only a few yells. Those who still wish to enter the contest are asked to turn their entries in to Joanne Frydenlund at the Alpha Phi house by December 12.

Boys in Boards Do Sidewalk Duty

Those sandwich board men who appeared on the campus Thursday morning are not so short of funds that they have to resort to huckster techniques to finance this coming weekend's expense account. Actually the 11 men are Alpha Delta Sigma pledges performing traditional duties of the organization.

The super salesmen are Virg Tucker, Al Pietschman, Bob Zeller, Earl Walters, Leo Nuttman, Jack Ward, Fred Mathias, Tom McLaughlin, Merle Aden, Doug Hayes, Norm Bishop.

Art Gallery Shows Textile Collection

Exquisitely designed fabrics are in the collection of textiles that will be on display in the art gallery of the school of architecture and allied arts today from 1 to 5 p.m.

Ranging from re-creations of 17th and 18th century French, Italian, and English fabrics to modern designs and reproductions of contemporary paintings, the fabrics were woven by the Scalaman-dre Silk company of New York and will be displayed every afternoon until December 4.

Of particular interest are the textiles that are reproduced through the textures of silk paintings by modern artists and mark a renewal of an alliance between painters and textile craftsmen. Examples of these effective reproductions are fabrics in the exhibit with designs based on a famous Chirico painting. These textiles, through the silk screen process, have captured the essential spirit of the painting.

Tea to Honor Wives

Susan Campbell hall will honor the wives of Oregon football players at a tea this afternoon from 4 to 5. All faculty wives are invited. Miss Fannie McCamant, house-mother, and Mrs. Jim Aiken, wife of the head football coach, will pour.

ROMANIA REBUKED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19, The United States has handed another stinging rebuke to the Romanian government, denouncing it as "unrepresentative" and dismissing contemptuously the charge that American officials took part in a revolutionary conspiracy against the Communist regime in Bucharest.
