De Gaulle Favored In France Consul Tells Emerald Reporter

By BETTY LAGOMARSINO

Should a national election be held right now, de Gaulle would be voted prime minister, Raoul Bertrand, French consul-general, said in an interview here Saturday.

Bertrand was on the Oregon campus as the guest of the American Association of Teachers of French, who held a conference here November 21 and 22. The conference was under the direction of Laurence LeSage, who is regional president of the AATF.

"The trend of the French nation has shifted from the left to the right," the consul continued, "but the Red menace has by no means vanished."

M. Bertrand attributed the reversal of French politics to realization by the people that Communism is not trying to help the country, but to stir up unrest and seize power.

He cited as an example the recent trolley strike called by the Communists. The workers refused to obey the order, and the strike failed.

Has Little Similarity

Oregon is the second American campus that the consul has visited. "There is little similarity between your American colleges and the French universities," he claimed.

Among the differences that impressed the diplomat were the emphasis placed on activities, social life, and organizations on American campuses as well as the "whole attitude of the students," he added.

Regional president of the American Association of Teachers of French and assistant professor of Romance languages at the University, who directed the AATF conference on the campus last week.

Mr. Bertrand was appointed consul-general to San Francisco in May, 1946. His position is second only to that of the French ambassador in Washington.

His first diplomatic position was on the staff of the French delegation to the League of Nations in Geneva. Next he was appointed attache to the French embassy in Berlin.

Served in Morocco

At the outbreak of the World War, he was an attache of the embassy in Morocco. He was called home, and served as an officer in the French navy during the war.

In 1940 he was a representative of De Gaulle's "Free France" in London, where he remained until the end of the war. His next appointment was to the Egyptian embassy.

Previous to his appointment as consul-general to San Francisco, Bertrand was in charge of repatriation in Paris.

He spoke to the convention in French Saturday morning on languages in general. Bertrand contended that knowledge of other
