

Varied Slate of Entertainment To Honor KOAC's 25th Birthday

The Eugene studios of state station KOAC will mark that station's 25th year in operation Sunday with an hour-long variety broadcast at 2 p.m. Featuring contributions from the finest talent in the University, the broadcast will help KOAC to honor its founders and former staff members on its silver jubilee year. The entire program is produced and directed by John MacDonald, and will be announced by Ken Lomax.

Opening the University show will be Bob Weber, who will play two of his original piano compositions, "Twilight Blues" and "Christmas Lullaby." Adele "Sugar" Collinson will follow, singing two numbers in her takeoff of the Dorothy Shay style. Sally Peabody, lyric soprano from the school of music, will sing the aria, "Deh Vieni Non Tardar," from the opera "Marriage of Figaro" by Mozart. She will be accompanied by Pianist William Hornbrook, whose later solo will be "In the Night," by Schumann.

A chorus of 67 voices, composed of students from the Springfield junior high school and voice students from the University school of music, will continue the Jubilee hour with a program of carols and songs of celebration. Under the direction of Miss Maude Garnett, associate professor in charge of public school music, the chorus will sing "Hello Song," "Singing Along Together," "Sing When You are Happy," "Upon a Housetop," "The First Noel," and "Land of the Empire Builders—State of Oregon Song." Featured soloist with the chorus will be Jim Kays, Lyric tenor, from the school of music.

Dr. Roy C. McCall, newly-appointed head of the University speech-drama-radio department, will be interviewed by Paul Ryman during the Jubilee hour. The interview was recorded on the department's wide-tape recorder by Ryman, a member of the radio workshop staff.

Following the interview will be "A Morality Play for the Leisured Class," a short radio drama presented by the University radio workshop players. The morality play is unique in that its cast will include only two players, Bob Litten and Warren Dobbins.

Highlights from the early history of the University of Oregon, utilizing the current "Campus Headlines" show, will conclude the Jubilee broadcast from Eugene. Both narration and drama will be used in this program. Radio workshop players who will appear in the cast are Bob Litten, Warren Dobbins, Jack Puffenbarger, James Fulton, Mary Esther Brock, Jens Jensen, and Gene Deutschman.

Joining in the Sunday salute to the station KOAC will be Oregon radio stations KEX, KGW, KUGN, and KOIN. The Corvallis transmitter will be on the air for a full hour broadcasting schedule on Sunday to carry these programs.

Student Sunday Forum Speaker

The final Westminster forum for the fall term will feature student-explorer Willis Caldwell and his favored movies, according to Clell Conrad, Westminster president.

Caldwell, a senior in the school of business administration, took part in several expeditions into unexplored areas of Peru, taking thousands of feet of motion picture film, and collecting scientific data.

Caldwell will show two reels on his unsuccessful attempt to ascend Mt. Huascarán, a 22,180 foot peak in the Peruvian Andes.

The program will begin at 6:30 Sunday night at Westminster house. All students and faculty members are invited.

Marines Recruit During Next Week

Master Sergeants R. W. Solomon, J.S. Kipp, and Staff Sergeant S.B. Swanson, of the Portland Marine recruiting office will be in Eugene on the 8-9-10 of December. They will be at the Post Office, and anyone interested may receive information concerning the Marine corps.
