

Disc Jockey to Salute University

Peter Potter, Chesterfield disc jockey, plans to salute the University of Oregon on the "College Corner" feature of his Wednesday, January 14, radio program, according to word received this week by Kit Wilhelm and Bob Chapman.

Chesterfield representatives on the campus. Purpose of the salute is to find the platter pulse beat of the Oregon campus.

Postcards will be distributed this week by members of Phi Theta Upsilon and Kwama. Students will be polled for their three favorite tunes which will be tabulated and revealed on Potter's broadcast January 14 over KORE from 10:30 to 11 p.m.

The first "College Corner" for 1948 will be the first of a series honoring the various colleges on the Pacific coast. Noted Oregon alumni will also be interviewed in the Los Angeles studio for this salute to the University.

A drawing from collected ballots will be taken during the week and cartons of Chesterfields will be awarded the lucky winners, according to Miss Wilhelm.

Wesley to Start Series on 'Life' In Sunday Talks

"The University of Life," a new program for students, will be launched by Wesley foundation at 1347 Onyx, Sunday evening at 5:30, according to George Gordon, Wesley president.

Because of the demand of University students for an opportunity to discuss problems in important areas of living and a desire to become better acquainted with the world's religious culture, the "University of Life" program was organized by the Methodist students on the campus.

Three Talks Weekly

Chief feature of this new program will be three discussion groups operating simultaneously each Sunday evening. The topics to be discussed will be "We, The Peoples," a study of the United Nations and the problem areas of the Orient, Southeast Asia, Greece and the Balkans, France, Germany, Palestine, and Russia; "Methodism has a Challenge," a study of the background and history of this Protestant church; and "Religion in Music," a study of man's religious expression through music.

Leaders of the discussion groups will be Mrs. Paul Means, University faculty member; the Rev. David Seaman, director of Wesley Foundation; and Glenn Griffith, music instructor at Eugene high school. These leaders will be assisted by a large number of competent persons from the University faculty and the city of Eugene.

Winter term the "University of Life" program will run from January 11 to March 7. Each course will hold eight sessions giving ample opportunity for thorough study and discussion.

Register Sunday

Registration for the new program will be held from 5:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Sunday. Each course will be limited to the first 30 persons who register, but, in case of a larger demand an expansion of the program will be effected. Everyone interested in this program is invited to attend and all college-age people in Eugene, whether attending the University or not, are welcome.

Other features of the new program include a get-acquainted mixer and sing from 5:00 to 5:30 p.m. each Sunday evening followed by a snack supper served from 5:30 to 6 p.m. at a cost of 25 cents, and a chapel service held from 6 to 6:30 p.m. The chapel service is entirely student planned and directed and will feature special music, a devotional, and a ten minute talk from student or adult leaders.

Began in Chicago

The "University of Life," a program which is being used by youth groups all over the United States, was originated and developed in 1935 by Rev. Philip Landers, now of the International Council of Religious Education in Chicago.

The decision to adopt this plan came from the members who participated in the "Christian Behavior" series of meetings held last term at the foundation. Its purpose is to present vital issues to the students and serve a larger portion of the student body than could enter in the previous types of programs.

Medal Slated For ROTC Cadet

Presentation of the first annual Air Force Association medal to the outstanding Air-ROTC student at the University will take place in the near future. This was announced by Lieut. Colonel John W. Watt, professor of air science and tactics at the University.

Name of the student who will receive the medal is being withheld pending completion of plans for the presentation at a formal review.

The silver-plated medal bears the Air Force insignia suspended from a red, white, and blue ribbon. It is presented by the Air Force Association in order to stimulate achievement in air science and provide recognition of ability and accomplishment. The Association is composed of former Army Air Force men and women.

Selection is based on leadership qualities displayed by the student and performance in academic and military subjects.

reduction . . . of the proper type. He agreed that taxes that are too high discourage business but declared that the solution lies in the erasing of inequities in the tax structure and broadening the basis of taxation rather than removing millions of people from the tax roles.

He said that although labor would not like it he must go on record as saying that labor's insistence in another wage boost next spring would not be for the best interest of either labor or the public.

In a declaration directed to labor leaders Morse stressed that further wage demands will do nothing but further devalue the dollar and increase inflation.

Favors Marshall Plan

On the international issue Morse said he would go down the line with Vandenberg, who was praised most highly by the Oregonian, and hold the view that we cannot have long prosperity unless we recognize that the last war was no football game and that the cost will be with us for half a century.

He declared that he favored the Marshall plan and would not agree with anything that would sabotage it. Morse said we must face the international obligation from a point of self interest. He emphasized that we dare not walk out on Europe now, that our national security cannot risk it.

Declaring that this is not a peace time economy Morse said that labor must offer something better than a plea to "remove restraints of trade" if domestic economy is to be achieved. Saying that the government must not go into the background and leave the problem up to business, Morse added that he was not in favor of returning to the drastic price controls.

What is needed, he said, is legislation that can be used on any seg-

Vets May Sign Allowance Slips Through Friday

The deadline for pre-registered veterans to complete the process by returning to Emerald hall and signing the pledge part of their veteran's card has been extended until tomorrow, announced J. D. Kline, assistant registrar. Flood conditions which will prevent many off-campus veterans from coming to the campus today was given as the reason for the extension of the deadline.

It is necessary for the veteran to return to Emerald hall to sign this pledge card if his subsistence allowance is to be continued. The veterans administration requires the University to notify it of the veterans who are specifically in school at the start of the term. Because some veterans pre-register and then do not return to school the pre-registration figures are not accepted by the VA, Kline declared.

The assistant registrar explained that the signature on the pledge card indicates the veteran's presence in classes. All veterans who fail to sign the card must be reported to the VA as not in attendance, he said. Kline added that the VA would then drop the veteran from its rolls and discontinue subsistence allotments. It has been the policy of the VA to carry a man on its rolls only when it can be proven that he is attending classes.

No regular attendance reports are registered of the University, Kline said, but failure to attend must be reported. In serious cases of non-attendance for classes the VA will remove a man from training, in minor cases they merely reduce the subsistence allowance, he added.

ment of society that places itself above the common welfare. He declared that this "gun behind the door" type of legislation for credit control, allocation, and rationing where needed will be passed within three months by those who now think the problem should be kept at the White House door.

Music Seniors Slate Sonatas

Sylvia Killman, pianist, and Janet Shafer, violinist, both seniors in music, will present a joint recital Thursday at 8 p.m. in the school of music auditorium.

The chamber music program featuring three sonatas is perhaps the first of this type at the University in recent years. Beethoven's "Spring" sonata, a Grieg sonata, and a sonata by Walter Piston completed in 1939, comprise the group.

Of the last featured work the composer said, "Elements I have sought chiefly are clarity of form, simplicity and directness of style, and continuity of melodic expression. Above all, I have hoped to make music that players will want to play and that listeners will want to hear."

Miss Shafer will be soloist with the University orchestra later this month in a Mozart violin concerto.

Oregon Ski Club Plans Hoodoo Trip

Plans for a ski trip to Hoodoo Bowl will highlight the evening's discussion when the University Ski club meets tonight at 7:30 in 105 Oregon. Fresh snow has offered ideal skiing conditions, and the club is ready for its first big activity.

Acting ski club prexy, Saul Zaik, urged that everyone interested in skiing attend the meeting. Anyone wishing a P.N.S.A. racing classification card may obtain one at the meeting.
