

West-M Slates Winter Term Luncheon Plans

Lowell M. Campbell has announced winter term luncheon plans for Westminster house at 1414 Kincaid street. He stated yesterday that the traditional Tuesday noon luncheon will be resumed today. Campbell pointed out that the program should be of particular interest to students who eat off campus.

The luncheons are designed primarily for those students who do not eat in a regular commons or living organization. It gives them a chance to come together once a week and meet other students. The luncheon is so designed that students may bring their own lunches with them, or call a day in advance for a hot meal costing 40 cents. The luncheons last from noon until 12:45.

Luncheon-director Campbell said that his committee plans to feature campus organizations at each meeting. University organizations will send representatives to explain their purposes and put on programs. Campbell contacted these groups by letter this week. As soon as their answers are received, the program will be arranged.

Today's program will feature a panel discussion by Bob Stephenson, junior in journalism, and Lowell Campbell. They will explain the commission student-organization plan, as it will apply to the local Westminster foundation, if the student council approves it. The plan is presently in operation at the Westminster foundation in Corvallis.

A new aluminum, electric popcorn popper has been designed to serve also as a hot plate or as container for the preparation of soups and stews.

French Tryouts Near

Final casting for "Les Precieuses Ridicules," French language play, will be held at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, in 114 Friendly hall.

The French satire will be presented as a joint project of the Romance languages and drama departments. Tentative date for the production has been set in late February.

While the comedy is under the direction of Robert Over, senior in drama, the Romance language department will coach players in their French lines. Advisor is C. L. Johnson, assistant professor of Romance languages.

"Les Precieuses Ridicules," translated as "The Affected Women," is a satire on affectation of manners and speech during the reign of Louis XIV.

The play, premiered before the French court, was Moliere's first successful production. It has been called "the best comedy of the Louis XIV period."

Four parts, three of them male, are still open, according to C. L. Johnson.

Employment Men Visit UO Campus

John Ahrens, personnel representative of the Campbell Distributing company is on the campus today, the first of numerous representatives slated to arrive during the term to interview applicants for positions, according to Karl W. Onthank, dean of personnel administration.

W. W. Burton, representing the Minnesota mining and manufacturing company will be here Jan. 16, and

L. L. Robinson, coast personnel manager for Montgomery Ward will be here Jan. 29.

Onthank said that two accounting positions are now open with Crown-Zellerbach paper company and Weyerhaeuser timber company. Applicants should see him.

New York votes on a soldier bonus this year and two states vote next year, Iowa and Minnesota.

Plans Meet Set For Librarians

Phi Iota Rho, house librarians' organization, has scheduled their first winter term meeting this afternoon at 4 in the browsing room of the library. At this time a short business meeting will be held to discuss the plans and activities for the term. All members are requested to attend or representatives should be sent from living organizations.

Phi Iota Rho, under the guidance of Miss Bernice M. Rise, has served the University students by sponsoring the pastry sales in the library, assisting in the browsing room, promoting lectures, and offering individual house library col-
