

Club to Discuss Homeless Folk

The future fate of the thousands of homeless men, women and children in Europe will be discussed at the International Relations club meeting in the YMCA building at 8 o'clock tonight.

The discussion will be led by John Malik, a political science major, who spent 17 years in Hungary. Malik came to the United States not long before the country entered the war, and served in the army in both the Asiatic and European theaters.

While in Europe, he was stationed in Hildesheim, in northern Germany, where over 4000 displaced persons were encamped. Because of his on the spot observation of their plight, he is well aware of the problem which these people have created.

This is the second of a series of meetings which the club has scheduled for the study of international issues. The meeting is open to everyone who is interested in discussing or learning of a possible solution to this situation.

Club Elects Officers

On January 8 the Spanish club elected the following officers: president, Nancy Swem; vice-president, Nan Humphrey; secretary, Salvador Marcias; and treasurer, Janet Casterday.

Exchange students from Columbia attend the meeting, and Pio Porta, student from Guatemala, gave a short talk.

The next meeting will be held in the alumni room in Gerlinger hall on Thursday at 7 p.m.

Hoop Heads Set Meet

Basketball managers of women's house teams will meet tonight at 7 in room 121, Gerlinger. They are requested to bring blank entry sheets.

First Draftee Still in Army

In 1940 tens of thousands of American men were glad they weren't the guy in this picture—No. 158, first man drafted! But Sgt. Elmer Banks of Lexington, Ky., is still in the Army, having re-enlisted. He's shown at Kadena Air Base, Okinawa.

came through with a wonderful Christmas serenade that made the campus sit up and take notice.

If you've noticed PiPhi Marilyn Turner wandering about campus with a black eye, here is the explanation.

She got hit in the eye with the elbow of her date, Sig Ep Bill Barnum of the Sig Ep house dance Saturday night.

Kappa Sig Joe Caulfield has been making tracks every weekend between here and Corn Valley to see a co-ed named Marge. SAE Bob Wallace, chairman of the forthcoming SENIOR BALL, has been soring it up with Theta Joan LaRue of late.

Incidentally, the staid and austere seniors throw this whinging, known as the SENIOR BALL, every year, and this one promises to be a great success—good music, provided by Dick Jurgens, and programs are promised by Kay Sneider to all those early birds who stroll in before 11:50. Mr. Wallace insists that the reason Jurgens has such a good band is because he is a Sacramento lad.

Time for a hot cup in the College Side so see you in print Thursday.

Potential Advisers To Contact Board

Sophomore women who wish to be junior advisers to YWCA freshmen commissions next year are to contact the Y office as soon as possible, according to Beth Basler, commission chairman.

These women will assist in commission work this term and take an active part in the spring term program.

Gilmer Turns Pro

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19—(UP)—Harry Gilmer, Alabama's slingshot-armed quarterback who led the Crimson Tide to three post-season bowl games during his college playing days, has signed a two-year contract to play with the Washington Redskins, owner George Marshall announced today.

Gilmer's signing, which took place last night after a conference with Marshall and Redskins Coach Turk Edwards, confirmed a United Press report immediately after Alabama's Sugar Bowl game with Texas, New Year's day, that he had agreed to turn professional with Washington.

The terms of the contract were not disclosed, but it was believed that Gilmer received much less than the $20,000-a-year salary he originally had demanded in a five-year, $100,000 agreement.
