

Movie Author Here to Write Of Local Scene

Joseph H. Cole, of Wilding Picture Products, Inc., arrived on the University campus Friday morning and began research for a movie based on the natural resources of Oregon.

The young script writer said that the University was an ideal spot to "neer," will be shot in the spring to seem to be the heart of Oregon and there is much research material from which to choose.

"Pioneer" Title

The movie, which Cole said will be called "The Return of the Pioneer," will be shot in the spring or early summer and will be added to the U. S. bureau of mines collection of pictures on the natural resources of each state. It will be a three-reel film photographed in color and its object will be to give a full picture of the states natural resources, industry, cities, and people.

The theme of the film will be built around the belief that the spirit of the pioneer returns now and then to see what progress has been made since the days his covered wagons rolled over the old Oregon trail, Cole said.

From Chicago

Cole, who works from the Chicago office of the Wilding Picture Productions, Inc., said that he expects to have the movie scenario completed in a couple of days and will then continue to Washington for a similar assignment.

The picture is under sponsorship, as no money was appropriated by congress for the project. Richfield oil refinery of California will sponsor the Oregon picture. Other pictures filmed on states throughout the nation will be sponsored by similar organizations and companies.

With Men Who Know Best... It's Bare, Black and Tight!!!!

By DIANA DYE

With eyes right to the Military Ball, local femmes are dithering about what formal to wear. It's an established fact that she will dress just to please "him" according to opinions expressed by a group of collegians who served on Cosmopolitan magazine's male-tested fashion jury at the Stork club, New York.

"Men like daring dresses on the other fellow's girl—not their own," the board found out. They voted consistently for gowns with some covering over shoulder or upper arm or with narrow straps. The completely bare shoulder decolletage was something delightful—

Grad Courses Offered by KKG

Announcement of scholarship offerings to women students by Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority has been received by Mrs. Golda P. Wickham, dean of women. Available are three $500 fellowships for graduate and foreign study, graduate counselor, and undergraduate scholarships, and student loans.

The graduate study scholarships are open to any woman not over 30 years of age if she is a citizen of the United States or Canada and has received her bachelors degree, or will obtain it prior to July 1 from a college or university where a Kappa Kappa Gamma chapter is located.

Applicants should have made "a real contribution to their school and have a well outlined plan for graduate work," the announcement stated. Application blanks are available at the deans office.

All college women who have successfully completed two years of college or university work (at least one year on a campus with a Kappa Kappa Gamma chapter) are eligible for the student loans.

Foreign study, graduate counselor, and undergraduate scholarships are limited to members of the sorority. Further information may be obtained at the office of the dean of women in Emerald hall.

only on the other fellow's girl.

Kay Wister, fashion editor of Cosmopolitan, said the fellows liked a "dreamy" look that had sophistication but not too much exposure.

One of the winning gowns is a "royal blue crepe that bared the shoulders but covered the arms completely. The skirt with a sophisticated hip-line drape tapered to a narrow hemline, but was slit to allow plenty of freedom for dancing."

The national opinion was for the "dreamy" look, but the Oregon males voted for the black strapless dresses. Only one fellow questioned liked the sleek look; the rest preferred bare shoulders, a tight waistline, and full skirts. Black was the favored color although a few chose the light pastel organdy gowns.

One local male connoisseur said that on his wife he preferred something tight around the arms and ankles, high around the neck—sort of a pastel mother hubbard. On other people's wives, he liked anything that looked like a French bathing suit.

Most of the fellows while expressing views on the female formals, admitted that a girl should dress to type. They didn't want her to appear as a "vixen" if she belonged with the "southern belles" and vice versa.

After this, the coed will probably still be confused if she is thinking of buying a new formal. The Oregon men prefer bare shoulders; other collegians don't. Maybe it would be a good idea to wear that old dress after all.

Fogdall Commends Top GPA Groups

Vergil S. Fogdall, dean of men, gave his congratulations yesterday to campus organizations which came out on top in last week's announcement of fall term house grades.

The dean especially commended Delta Gamma sorority, highest women's house, which received a GPA of 2.78, and Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity, highest men's group, which averaged 2.65.

"It should be a goal of every living organization," Fogdall said, "to achieve scholastic recognition along with participation in campus activities."
