Dads' Day Top Signs Get Cups

Simplicity, Interest, No Movable Parts Keynote of Signs

Two cups will be awarded to the student living organizations which display the best welcome signs for their dads on Dads' Weekend, Feb. 14 and 15, Jardis Benke, special events chairman announced yesterday.

The signs must be flat with no movable parts. Cost is not to exceed two dollars. Miss Benke said that the most interesting, but simple sign is the type being considered. A cup will be awarded to the winning men's and women's house.

Judging is to be Friday afternoon, Feb. 13.

Thursday morning, Feb. 5, is the date of the letter contest under the leadership of Donna Kletzing.

An invitation to dads is to be published in that morning's Emerald. Stamped addressed letters are to be turned in to the Emerald office. The first two women's and women's living organizations to attain 100 per cent will receive prizes.

The contest staff will see that will be announced in Friday's Emerald.

A report yesterday from Dean Karl W. Onthank's office, room 6, Friendly hall said that luncheon tickets are selling fast. There is a limited number and students have been urged to make their purchases early.

Alex Murphy, basketball chairman, has announced that tickets will be sold at the time of registration.

Registration of dads is scheduled for 9 a. m. to noon and 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. at Johnson hall and in the lobbies of the Eugene and Osburn hotels on Saturday of the weekend.

Awards to the houses having the largest percentage of dads in attendance will be made at half time of the basketball game that night.

Janet Beigal, hospitality chairman, is urging all students who have not made reservations for their fathers to contact Mrs. Alice McDuff, University housing secretary.

Weidenreich To Speak Here

"Problems of Human Evolution" will be discussed by Dr. Franz Weidenreich Feb. 18 and 19 when the fourth series of the Condon lectures will be conducted.

Dr. Weidenreich, who is now carrying on research with the American museum of natural history, will speak on "General Problems of Human Evolution" Feb. 18 and "Evolution of the Brain" on Feb. 19.

The Condon lectureship was established in 1944 by the Oregon state board of higher education upon the recommendation of the late Dr. John C. Merriam, a member of the Oregon faculty. The series has been named in honor of Dr. Thomas Condon, first professor of geology at the University of Oregon.

Hettinger to Play Leading Role In New University Production

By PAT KING

To be known as "the most hated woman in the cast" is not, as some might think, any disparagement to Geraldine Hettinger, who plays the role of Mrs. Zero in the latest University theater guild production, "The Adding Machine," to be presented February 6, 7, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, and 14. It really is quite a compliment to her interpretation of Mrs. Zero.

As the possessor of a vicious, nagging tongue that never ceases lashing out at her poor, cowed husband, Geraldine pronounced the role as "a good brief for marriage." In fact, Paul Bender, as Mr. Zero, is able to get in only one word during all their scenes together. Actually, Geraldine herself is a very likeable young woman who recently proved her popularity by being chosen president of Alpha Xi Delta sorority.

"I've always preferred to do character roles, but I secretly have a terrific yearning to do a Gertrude Lawrence type," admitted the tall, slender drama major.

Transfer Student

Geraldine came to the University as a junior after going two years at Boise junior college where

Beaux Arts Ball Tickets on Sale Ball Similiar to Parisian Event

By JUNE COWELL

Tickets for the art school Beaux Arts ball will go on sale Feb. 6. The ball will be held Feb. 28 in the girls' outdoor gym.

Tickets may be purchased at the art school in the second floor drafting room for $1.75 per couple. Anyone who is interested in this costume event can attend.

Best costumes of either couples or stags will be selected by having those in attendance parade past the judges.

Spectacular and unusual entertainment is promised to highlight the evening.

Oregon's annual Beaux Arts ball is a diluted adaptation of its forerunner, the Quatz Arts bal, which is presented annually by the students of St. Germain des Pres in Paris.

Their entertainment consists of the finest champagne and the loveliest ladies. The ladies are reputed either to die within two weeks after the "bal" or to join a convent.

The evening begins and ends with the boistrous singing of "Ecole des Beaux Arts" which is their school song. After dining in the Latin Quarter cafes, the students riot through the streets to their school, where they are admitted after a thorough questioning to prove their identity. The doors are bolted at 11 p. m. and no one is permitted to leave until the following morning at 5.

A complete splashing of silver, gold, or indigo paint completes the most elaborate costume.

Parisians themselves are accustomed to these student antics and either ignore the bal or try to crash it. The penalty for gate-crashers is a dunking in a weird shade of green paint, which makes the prospective gate-crasher easily recognizable if he should again attempt entrance.

While U. O. alumnae protest student laxness, the St. Germain graduates complain of the lost art of abandon formerly represented in this springtime event.

Dean of Men Has Co-ed Trouble

"But I'm not a man!" the co-ed with dark-brown hair protested over the phone, yesterday.

The situation arose when Weslie Eyres, a sophomore in liberal arts and living at University house, received a card from the Dean of Men's office requesting that he (she) report to that office immediately, to verify some information.

Weslie seemed to be having a very difficult time trying to convince the office of her sex, over the phone, when the reporter last heard the conversation.

French Speaker To Lecture On Philosophy

Jean Paul Sartre's French school of philosophy, existentialism, will be the lecture topic of Dr. Lucien Wolff, of the University of Rennes, France, Thursday at 8 p. m. in 207 Chapman hall. Dr. Wolff's lecture will be the second in the winter term lecture series.

Dr. Wolff, who has just completed a semester of lectures at the University of California, is a holder of the degrees of Agrege de l'Universite and Doctorat es Lettres from the Sorbonne. He was also awarded an M.A. degree from the University of Cambridge, where he was an assistant in French for two years.

A professor of English literature at the Faculte des Lettres at the University of Rennes, France, Dr. Wolff also served as chancellor of the University during the war years.

During the years 1945-36 Dr. Wolff was visiting professor of French at the University of Buffalo and during the school year 1938-39 lectured at numerous colleges and universities in the United States. Before going to the University of California he was a visiting professor at Cornell university.

Bible Talk Series On West-M Slate

A series of studies on "The Modern Approach to the Bible" will begin at 8 p. m. Wednesday at Westminster house. The Rev. D. Hugh Peniston, minister of the Cottage Grove Presbyterian church will give the group of six lectures.

New Club Established By ASUO

Campus Club Heads Compose Advisory Coordinating Group

A world affairs council was established yesterday by the ASUO executive council to coordinate and advise activities at the University in the field of international and world affairs.

Presidents of the International Relations club, Political Science club, One World club, YMCA, YWCA, Wesley house, and Westminster house compose the group. Any group which notifies ASUO president Stan Williamson that they wish to participate on the council will be considered as possible members.

First major undertaking of the council will be to sponsor the student assembly which will discuss resolutions adopted by the Pacific Northwest College congress held in March.

The need for the organization became apparent when last year's PNCC assembly did not meet the expectations of the University, according to Williamson.

Howard Lemons, ASUO vice-president, will call the first meeting of the group this week to discuss organization.

To sponsor a mass meeting of Eugene citizens and students on the campus to discuss problems of International organization, the council will cooperate with the Eugene World affairs council.

Alcohol Series Lecture Tonight

Alcoholics Anonymous, an organization of former alcoholics who offer their own experiences for the benefit of other alcoholics who are seeking to cure themselves, will be the subject of the fifth lecture in the University alcohol studies series. The conference series, which meets Wednesday evenings at 7:30 in room 106, Oregon hall, is open to the public.

Speaking at tonight's meeting will be Cecil Farnes, Portland businessman, with Dr. J. R. Jewell, former dean of the University school of education, serving as moderator. The lectures are sponsored by the general extension division and the educational advisory committee to the Oregon liquor control commission.

Sinfonia Names New Pledges

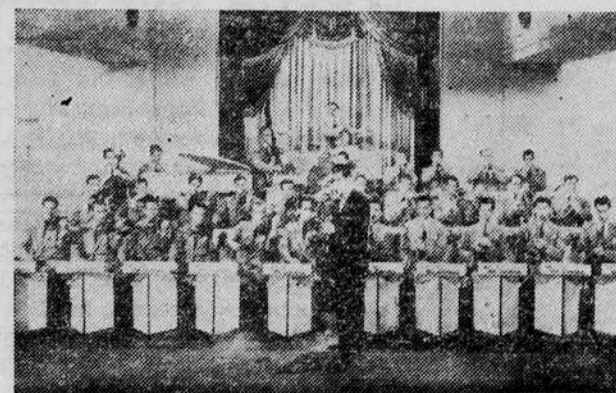

Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, national men's music fraternity, held a formal pledging ceremony for 12 future members Monday night at the music school auditorium.

Following a program, refreshments were served at the Side. New pledges are:

Donald L. Bunyard, Francis W. Bittner, Clell L. Conrad, Lyall J. Gardner, Don Jordahl, John C. Kienzle, Bob Luoma, Richard L. McClintic, Ed Peterson, Lynn Sjordlund, Gene D. Slayter, and Steve Stone.

Bill Putman is president of the group.

Students to Enjoy Romantic's Music

Until midnight tonight, Oregon co-eds may dance to the melodies of Tex Beneke and the Glenn Miller orchestra appearing in Eugene on a one night's stand. Floodlights, spotlights, and soft-colored lights will transfer the Eugene armory into a one-night ballroom.

Dancing will begin at 7:30 p. m. and a stage show will be put on early in the evening. Forty-seven people, including 36 musicians make the Beneke outfit the largest traveling band in the United States.

Beneke, since he took over the Miller orchestra two years ago, has recorded over 100 sides for RCA Victor records. He will play all of the Moonlight
