

Westminster Hostess 'Aunt Eva' to Regulars

By WALLY HUMPHRIES

Newly appointed hostess at Westminster house, University Presbyterian foundation, is Mrs. Eva B. Starr, who recently moved here from Portland. Mrs. Starr, a very amiable and congenial woman, is already well known as "Aunt Eva" to the regulars around the house.

Although originally from Pennsylvania, she likes to claim Elwood, Indiana, where she lived the longest, as her home town. While living in Elwood, also the home town of Wendell Willkie, the Starr and Willkie families were very good friends.

Picture in Papers

"Aunt Eva" once had her picture in the newspapers with the Republican author and world-traveler. She still uses the trouble she had with people who tried to meet and ask her about Willkie, as an excuse for not wanting her picture taken, but she was finally convinced that her picture should appear in the Emerald.

The places she has lived make an impressive list. Born in Appolo, Pennsylvania, she later lived in Elwood, Cleveland, Seattle, Portland, and now Eugene.

Moves to Eugene

The last few years the Starrs lived in Portland, but, after her husband passed away last year, Mrs. Starr decided to move to Eugene so she could live with her daughter and son-in-law, the C. J. Sullivans. Dr. Sullivan is a philosophy professor on this campus.

"Aunt Eva" was educated at Ferry Hall women's seminary at Wake Forest, Illinois, and later at a Presbyterian school in Indianapolis, Indiana. More recently, since her family has grown up, she has taken several courses through the University of Washington extension division.

When queried as to her plans for Westminster house Mrs. Starr said, "I want to put a lot of pep in the house first, and will keep the tradition that all students are welcome and invited to participate in all of our activities, regardless of race, creed or color."

Wesley Is Host To Three Leaders

Wesley Foundation's "University of Life" will be host Sunday evening to three more leaders in the student interest groups, "We, the Peoples," "Methodism Has a Challenge," and "Religions in Music."

Dr. D. M. Dougherty, head of the Romance language department, will speak on conditions and problems in France; Rev. Ellsworth Tilton, minister of the Ebbert Memorial Methodist church of Springfield, will have "John Wesley" as his subject; and in the music group, students will hear Sam Rosen discuss "Hebrew Worship Music."

Marjorie Beckett, senior student, will be guest chapel speaker; Les Jones will conduct the 5 p.m. "get-acquainted mixer"; Weslie Eyres will serve as chairman of the supper committee; and Ed Moe is chairman of the house committee.

Christian Group Holds Gathering

An all-state conference sponsored by the University of Oregon's Intersity Christian fellowship will be held February 6, 7, and 8 at the Friends' Conference camp, two miles south of Twin Rocks, Oregon.

Calvin Chao, head of IVCF in China, who is just completing a speaking tour of this country before returning to his native China, will be the principal speaker.

Other speakers include: Murray Smoot from Seattle, who expects to accompany Chao as a missionary when he returns to the Orient; Miss Rosalind Rinker, Intersity staff member for the state of Oregon and a former missionary to China, where she plans to return in March and Herbert Nietsch, IV, staff representative for Washington, Idaho and western Montana.
