Flower Market Work on Dorm Is Explained by Due Next Term Eugene Florist

The problems of marketing flowers with their high degree of perishability was explained to the class in distribution of Dr. N. H. Comish by Elmo B. Chase, manager of the Eugene retail stores of the Chase Gardens.

"For most flowers there are only four or five days from the cutting to the ash can," said Mr. Chase, "and the flower industry is constantly speeding its distribution in order to reach a wider market."

He said that when his father first went into business 58 years ago in Eugene, five miles was the greatest distance he could transport his perishables. Today, the florist pointed out, gardenias cut in the Eugene green houses in the morning will be worn the next evening at a dance in New York city.

Air Charges

The coming of Air Express has changed the entire flower industry, the speaker declared. He used the illustration that roses grown locally now must compete with gladiolas, flown from Florida and orchids that were brought out of Philippine jungles 48 hours before.

Increasing speed and use of new techniques in marketing is reducing the loss to the florist and making a wider selection available to the public at a smaller cost, Chase concluded.

It costs about $100 a year, or $1.70 per ton, to operate an average mow hay-curing system.

Bids for the construction of the new women's dormitory will be opened early in March, I. I. Wright, superintendent of the University physical plant announced Thursday.

Architectural plans are practically completed, he added, and actual building should begin spring term.

Last minute details of the blue prints were ironed out last week at a Portland meeting between Wright and the architectural firm Lawrence, Tucker and Wallman.

The building will be located across the street from Emerald hall.

Eisler Ordered Deported

NEW YORK, Feb. 12—An attorney for Hanns Eisler, Hollywood composer, said today that immigration officials in Philadelphia had entered an order for his deportation, with permission for him to leave for any country of his choice, except Canada or Mexico. The attorney, Mrs. Carol King, said Eisler's wife, Louise, was granted voluntary departure without issuance of a warrant for deportation.

Anderson Denies Charge

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10—(UP)—Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson denied today that government operations caused the commodity market crash and defied congressional investigators to name one speculator who used "advance inside information" to profit on the break.

the employment office. Mr. Guy Lang, manager of the state employment service office in Eugene will tell you that college students are an important factor in the Eugene labor market. There is hardly a merchant in Eugene who hasn't at some time or other had a college student in his employ. Statistics (they are in good reliable black and white) of the employment office on the campus are about the same for 1946 as for 1947. For last month that office placed a total of 194 students.

It may be true that college students, like most other normal people do not LIKE to work, but the facts seem to indicate that a goodly portion of them do work . . . like most normal people.

We don't know how much work was expected for the room Mrs. McCormick offered. We do know that Eugene, like other cities in the U.S. has been plagued with a serious housing shortage since the war. In January, 1946, prospective students had to hold up the process of registration because of inadequate housing facilities both on and off the campus. The statement that no one would take her up on the room is one of the most
