Attorney To Handle Pro-Side

Former Army EM Disputes Attitude Which Downs UMT

The affirmative side of the universal military training question will be discussed by Rex Kimmell, deputy attorney general for the state of Oregon, on February 24 at 7:30 p.m. in Room 3, Fenton hall. The talk is sponsored by the educational activities board.

Kimmell requested the opportunity to discuss the subject after Brigadier General Herbert C. Holdridge talked on the negative side of the question last month.

"We cannot let the matter pass unchallenged," said Kimmell whose topic is entitled "Training for American Security and Citizenship." An enlisted man in World War I, he claimed that it will "be a privilege to dispute a general."

Kimmell was born in Indiana and received his law degree from the University of Idaho. He was assistant United States district attorney for Oregon for three years, 1930 to 1933. In 1947 he assumed his present post of deputy attorney general for Oregon. Kimmell has been a member of the American legion for 28 years.

Her concert is fifth in the series sponsored by the Eugene Civic Music association for townspeople and University students. She will be accompanied by Leo Taubman.

Since Miss Heidt attracted nationwide attention on the Metropolitan Opera auditions of the air several years ago she has sung leading roles with nearly all the major opera companies in the United States.

She was featured soloist with the NBC symphony under Leopold Stokowski, the New York Philharmonic symphony society, the Detroit symphony under Fritz Reiner, and the Toronto Promenade symphony in Canada. The young contralto has also appeared on several NBS and CBS radio shows.

Vets' Favorite

The first volunteer concert artist to go overseas for the USO during the war, Miss Heidt is still a favorite of ex-GI's whom she entertained. She gave more than 100 concerts in the last year of the war.

Future May See Fewer Oregana Books Printed

Unless the student body purchases a sufficient number of 1948 Oreganas in the immediate future it may be necessary to reduce the number of books printed from 4200 to 4000, declared Olga Yevtich, business manager, after a conference yesterday afternoon.

Miss Yevtich pointed out, however, that if enough students indicate their desire to purchase a copy of the yearbook by Thursday, February 19, the proposed cut may not be necessary.

May Be Fewer

If the number of Oreganas to be printed is reduced by 200, students now registered but who have not ordered the book will not be assured of a copy when it is released next spring.

If the cut is made the books not already reserved will be held for spring term enrollees.

Students may evidence their intention of buying by placing a $2 deposit and a promise to pay the $4 balance by April 15 with the educational activities office.

Partial Payment

The temporary partial payment plan was instituted, said Miss Yevtich, for the benefit of those students who are not able to pay the full $6 at this time but who want a copy of the book.

On November 18, 1947, the educational activities board authorized the printing of 4200 copies of the yearbook. Since that time, however, sales have failed to reach the needed quota thus necessitating the proposed cut.

But Still Good

Ross Yates, editor of the 1948 Oregana, emphatically declared that any such cut would in no way affect the quality of the yearbook.

The educational activities office in McArthur court is open from 8 to 12 noon and 1 to 5 p.m. daily.

State Newsmen Plan Business Session, Forums

Harold E. Stassen, candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, and Charles E. Gratke, foreign editor of the Christian Science Monitor, will be the featured speakers at the Oregon Press conference Friday and Saturday.

The conference is under the sponsorship of the Oregon Newspaper Publishers association and the University school of journalism.

Stassen, former governor of Minnesota, will discuss "The Struggle for Freedom" at the conference banquet Friday at 6:30 p.m. at the Eugene hotel.

Public Meeting

Stassen will speak again Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in McArthur court in a public meeting for students and townspeople.

Gratke will address the general session of the conference Friday afternoon on the subject, "Covering This Foreign War."

Other speakers scheduled for this weekend are William L. Blizzard, publisher of the Oswego Review; Quincy Scott, editorial cartoonist on the Oregonian; William L. Thorniley, representative of the J. Walter Thompson company, Seattle; David Eyre, Oregon Journal's assistant news editor; and Dr. Laurence Campbell, professor of journalism at the University.

General Session

Friday will be devoted to a general session of the conference. Saturday morning three group breakfasts, followed by conference forums, have been planned. Mary E. Brown, Redmond Spokesman, will be chairman for the press women of Oregon. Walter W. R. May, Oregon City Enterprise, will conduct the daily newspaper section, and J. W. Forrester, Jr., Coos Bay Harbor, North Bend, will be chairman of the weekly newspaper group.

The semi-annual meeting of the ONPA will be held at 11:30 a.m. Saturday, with President O. G. Crawford presiding. The conference will close with a luncheon Saturday noon. Fred Lockley, editorial writer and columnist for the Oregon Journal, will speak. Officers for the coming year will be elected at the luncheon.

Honorary to Hold Dinner Wednesday

Sigma Delta Chi, men's journalism honorary, will hold its second annual Gridiron banquet at the Osburn hotel Wednesday at 6 p.m. Ross Yates, president, announced yesterday. Don McNeil is general chairman of the banquet. Wally Hunter, Larry Lau, and Ward Christensen and professional pledge Les Schlangen will be introduced to the group.

All members of SDX, past and present, undergraduate and graduate, on and off campus, are invited, said Yates.

Schools to Get Objective Sex Film

A colored movie on human reproduction and growth, believed to be the first of its kind in the world, will be made available to the schools of Oregon and other qualified agencies next week.

Technical director of the motion picture, "Human Growth," is Lester F. Beck, associate professor of psychology. The E. C. Brown trust fund administered by Dr. Adolph Weinzirl of the University medical school, financed the project. It was filmed by the Eddie Albert productions of Hollywood.

The movie began as 80 slides on sex education study, prepared in August, 1946, and was showed to some 1600 persons in PTA groups for comment and criticism. A reworking of the film from the slides was the result.

PTA Approves

The film has received the written endorsement of the Oregon Congress of Parents and Teachers, and has the guarded permission of the state department of education. The movie received "a warm welcome" by teacher-training institutions and particularly by the physical education department of the University, according to University officials.

The movie is designed for careful coordination with health classes in junior high schools, and will be shown under the supervision of competent teachers.

In giving a "go-ahead" to the use of the film, Rex Putnam, state superintendent of public instruction said, "It may be shown in those districts where the proper arrangements have been made to show the picture to the pupils and where it has been passed by the parents beforehand. Sex instruction in this state is in the stage of experimentation, and we are having to educate in advance of a trend."

The film, running about 20 minutes, emphasizes general processes of growth and reproduction rather than anatomical detail. The stylized drawings, screened in carefully chosen colors, do not have the detail of medical drawings and show both the male and female reproductive organs.

The finished film has now been shown to some 3000 persons, mostly parents and teachers. Statistics on their reactions, compiled by Marcille H. Harris, graduate student in psychology at the University, are completed for the first 1131 respondents.

Only 16 of those persons say they would not want a child of theirs to see the film. The largest negative response, in a small very conservative community, was only five per cent. The percentage of all groups combined is only one and four-tenths per cent. The film has been shown only on a voluntary request from each school and has not been shown at any parochial schools.
