Grants Set For Medics In Atomics

Many Fellowships Awarded Students In Medical School

An undetermined number of fellowships for the training of qualified persons in the medical and biological aspects of atomic energy will be awarded to the University as a result of a conference held at the University medical school in Portland February 17, Dr. R. D. Clark, assistant to the dean of the liberal arts school, announced yesterday.

The University is tentatively scheduled to receive ten fellowships at the bachelor level, four at the doctorate level, and two at the post-doctorate level. The University medical school, Reed college, and Oregon State college will be awarded a similar number of fellowships.

Clark, Bowers in Portland

Dr. Clark revealed that Dr. John Z. Bowers of the biology and medicine division of the atomic energy commission, the organization granting the fellowships, is now in Portland for further conferences with the Western fellowships committee, and may visit the campus in the near future.

He emphasized that the program is still in the preliminary stage of organization.

Approximately one million dollars has been budgeted by the AEC for the first year of the fellowship program which is designed to help alleviate the shortage of scientific personnel in the atomic energy field.

Advanced Study Is Goal

The Western fellowship committee decided at its February 17 meeting that one fundamental objective for fellows at the bachelor and graduate levels should be advanced study of radiation instrumentation in nuclear and electronic physics.

Another objective decided upon is the study of radiation effects in advanced biology and chemistry. Approximately two years will be necessary under this program to gain the master's degree.

Candidates will be favored who intend to follow a career in research in one of the basic biological or physical sciences relating to the field of atomic energy.

Portland Symphony Orchestra To Appear in McArthur Court

The Portland Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Werner Janssen, will appear in McArthur court March 10, Dick Williams, educational activities manager, announced yesterday. The concert sponsored by the educational activities board, will be free to University students.

The orchestra will play the overature to the "Symphony No. 2 in D minor" by Caesar Franck and Ravel's "Bolero."

Appearing with the symphony artists will be the Eugene Gleemen who will present several vocal selections.

Included in the Gleemen's program are "Crucifixus in B minor" by Johann Sebastian Bach, "Hallelujah Chorus" from the "Mount of Olives" by Ludwig von Beethoven, and "Hallelujah, Amen" by George Frederick Handel.

The Gleemen sang the "Hallelujah Chorus" from the "Mount of Olives" at their concert February 10 in McArthur court. It was so well-received that they are singing a repeat performance of the same number for the combination Portland symphony-Gleemen program.

Brotherhood's Daily Lectures Resume Today

Brotherhood Week observances will continue today when the Rev. Francis J. McConnell, bishop of the Portland area of the Methodist church, delivers his first address on "Albert Switzer" at 4 p.m. in Alumni hall, Gerlinger. Bishop McConnell will give a second lecture tomorrow at 3 p.m. on "Mahatma Gandhi."

Two talks will make up the evening program beginning at 7:30 in room 207 Chapman hall. Rabbi Leo Trepp will speak on "Martin Buber, a Modern Jewish Mystic" and "Father Leo J. Linahen will lecture after Rabbi Trepp on "John Henry Newman His Life."

Dr. Trepp, rabbi of the Sinai temple in Tacoma, began the Brotherhood observance yesterday when he spoke on "The Philosophy of Saadya."

Father Linahen is associated with the Roman Catholic chancery office of the archdiocese of Portland. He received his licentiate in sacred theology from Gregorian university in Rome and his doctorate of civil law from the Catholic university in Washington, D. C. He was ordained a priest in Rome in 1933 and was a professor at Marylhurst college from 1943-44.

Newman to Be Subject

"John Henry Newman His Coat of Arms" will be the topic of Father Linahen's second address to be given at 4 p.m. tomorrow in Alumni hall, Gerlinger.

The Rev. McConnell became a bishop in the Methodist church in 1912. Before that time he had held pastorates and served as president of DePaw university in Green Castle, Indiana from 1909 to 1912.

Bishop McConnell, listed in "Who's Who in America," was president of the federal council of Churches of Christ in 1926, a Barrows lecturer to India in 1930-31, and a visiting professor at Columbia university in 1942-

Theme Contest Well Underway

Entries in the contest to choose the Junior Weekend theme will be accepted until next Tuesday, Hank Kinsell, general chairman of the weekend, announced yesterday.

The theme and the winners' names will be announced next week following their selection by Junior Weekend committee chairmen. Awards will be $10 for first prize and $5 for second.

Development of the theme for use in the Junior Prom and other weekend activities may be submitted with the suggestions. Entries are now being accepted by Kinsell at the Chi Phi lodge and Beth Basler at the Delta Delta Delta house.

All-Campus Sing representatives from living organizations will meet at 6:30 p.m. today at the Pi Beta Phi house to receive instructions. Joris Benke and Jerry O'Leary, co-chairman of the All-Campus Sing, have asked that the living organizations select their songs by next week.

They have also called for petitions for work on subcommittees of the Sing. Positions are open to aid with publicity, decorations, tickets, and invitations.

Registration Held Up By Recommendations Of Liberal Arts Heads

A recommendation from the heads of departments of the college of liberal arts to hold off adviser counseling and approval of class cards until the first week of March is responsible for the slow-down of pre-registration, an investigation made yesterday revealed.

Only 77 students of more than 3,000 securing enrollment material had completed registration by yesterday afternoon, the third day of pre-registration.

Dr. D. E. Clark, head of the history department and chairman of the committee, said that the recommendation was made because the department heads believed a two-week period for pre-registering was not necessary.

Avoiding 'Disruption' Tried

According to Dr. Clark, the school is able to handle advising in three days and stamp cards in three days, making a longer period unnecessary. Two-week time limit would also result in too much disruption of office work in the school departments, he said.

Students in the liberal arts college must wait until March 4, 5, and 6 to secure liberal arts departmental approval of class cards. It was pointed out that with a majority of the student body taking at least one liberal arts course, most students can not complete their registration this week.

Extra Workers Dismissed

The Co-op reported that very few students, mostly non-veterans, had picked up books. This was attributed to the fact that class cards must be signed before veteran students can pick up their books.

Non-vet students usually do not purchase books until they have completed the entire registration process and paid their fees. Extra workers hired by the Co-op to handle the expected rush for supplies were reported to have been temporarily dismissed.

Pre-registration will continue through March 6. Students may pick up material in Emerald hall through Saturday noon. New students and those who do not finish registration by March 29, will register March 29. Spring term classes will begin March 30.

Ingram Scheduled For Friday Dance

Joe Ingram and his band will play Friday night in Gerlinger annex at the campus-clothes dance sponsored by the educational activities board. The affair is free to students.

Two previous dances have been held in the annex this term. The first with music by Johnny Lusk, and last week's music by the Herb Widmer combo.

Both dances were successful, according to Dick Williams, educational activities manager, and justify the continuing of the practice.

Mortar Board Sets Discussion

Pursuing their 1947-48 project, members of Mortar Board this week are visiting campus living organizations to discuss the honor system with students, Helen Hicks, president of the senior women's service group, has announced.

Members are going to the women's living organizations, and holding informal educational discussions after the meal. The members next week will go to the men's living groups, and follow the same procedure, Miss Hicks said.

Spring Effort Due

Those organizations who will not have a representative this term will be visited next term, Miss Hicks commented.

"We wanted to lead off before winter term finals," she added, "but we find we won't be able to get to each group before final week. However, we will make a concentrated effort spring term to contact as many students as possible."

The '47-'48 project is an educational program with the idea of instituting an honor system on this campus, patterned after working systems in other state schools and universities.

Johnson to Seminar

Elgeon Johnson, graduate assistant in physics, will speak on "Ultrasonics in Liquid Helium" at the physics seminar at 4 p.m. today at 105 Deady.

Congress Slates Whitman Speaker

Olav Paus-Grunt, chief of the educational division of UNESCO, has been secured by Whitman college to speak at the Pacific Northwest College congress March 3 to 6 on the Whitman campus in Walla Walla, Washington.

Thirty-three colleges and universities plan to send delegates to the conference. University of Oregon will be represented by Warren Miller, senior; and Bob Allen, junior in political science. Paul S. Dull, assistant professor of political science and history, will be the faculty representative.

Paus-Grunt will be the keynote speaker the night of March 3. It may be his final United States appearance before he returns to Norway and resumes teaching at a university.

Wheeler to Speak

Other main speaker will be Charles Leigh Wheeler, shipping and lumber executive of San Francisco, who will give the major talk for the section on the Marshall plan.

Miss Dorothy Robins of New York will be present as an observer. She is college program adviser of the American Association of United Nations, an organization to stimulate interest in the UN among college students.

Delegates from each of the colleges will bring back the resolutions adopted at PNCC for discussion and approval by the students. Delegates to present the approved resolutions at a meeting of the UN will be chosen on the basis of the interest shown by students when discussing the resolutions on each college campus.

Lois McConkey Putnam, UO delegate in 1946, represented the first PNCC at the UN meeting.
