Old Oregon Article To Feature Dentists

Last Old Oregon of winter term will be in the mail next week. It features a story on the dental school by Bill Wasmann, associate editor of the alumni magazine.

The March issue includes articles on retired Oregon professors, Patrons and patronesses will in on improvements of the athletic plant written by Fred Taylor, co-sports editor of the Emerald.

Bert Moore, editor of Old Oregon, said the magazine contains a book review by Dean George Turnbull of the journalism school. He reviewed "We Called It Culture" by Robert Ormond Case and his sister Victoria Case. They are both Oregon graduates.

A cover sketch of the Oriental art museum is supplemented with a story of the building in the magazine.

The steering committee met March 4. Mrs. S. M. Dicken is the group adviser. Present treasurer is Violet Meisenholder.

WORLD HEADLINES

BRUSSELS, March 4—Fog in the North sea area has delayed the second session of the five-nation western European conference despite the record speed with which Britain and France have prepared their answers to original proposals, it was disclosed today.

A conference announcement said today's scheduled meeting has been postponed until 10 a.m. (5 a.m. EST) tomorrow because representatives of Britain and France, on their way to Brussels with instructions from their governments, have been held up in the North sea area by heavy fog.

The original proposals were submitted yesterday by the Benelux (Belgium-Netherlands-Luxembourg) countries. It was reported they called for a broad five-nation pact, including military clauses, to halt the westward march of communism.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 5—House Republicans teamed up with southern Democrats to eliminate an anti-racial-discrimination clause from a government money bill for fiscal 1949.

The latest round in the civil rights battle was fought in the house appropriations committee, which pruned $30,119,379 from President Truman's request for funds to run the labor department and federal security agency in the next fiscal year.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 5—A five-pound, two-ounce boy today became the first baby to be born on the busy San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge.

The baby was born in an ancient automobile in which Mrs. Helen Bensen, 17, of Vallejo, had been riding on a hastry trip to the hospital.

Highway patrol officers heard Mrs. Benson's cries for help as the vehicle pulled up to the toll plaza. They provided an escort in an effort to get the woman to the hospital, but the baby was born during the dash across the bridge to St. Francis hospital.

WASHINGTON, March 5—Sen-Robert A. Taft, R., O., today came out against a proposal to set up a veto-less "supreme council" outside the United Nations to meet aggression with armed force.

Taft's opposition, together with that of Senate President Arthur H. Vandenberg, appeared to doom the proposal. It was put forth by GOP "revisionists" as an amendment to the European recovery plan.
