

Kwamas Honor OSC Talons At Campus Dance

The Talons, sophomore women's honorary on the Oregon State campus, will be guests of the Kwamas Saturday night at an all campus dance to be held in Gerlinger annex from 9 to 12. Music for the dance, which will be short silk and free to all students, will be furnished by Johnny Lusk and his orchestra. Kawama President Bill-jean Riethmiller urges maximum attendance in order to make the dance a success.

Entertainment for the visiting Talons is promised at intermission by Mary Stadelman, chairman of the committee. The dance climaxes a weekend of Kwama hostessing to the Talon organization, in return for a similar weekend enjoyed by the Kwamas and Skull-and-Dagger as guests of the Talons and Thanes at OSC last term.

Arriving about noon on Saturday, the guests will be honored at a Kwama-Talon luncheon in Alumni hall at 12:30. A softball game is planned for the afternoon. Those girls who are staying over will be guests at the Kawamas' living organizations for Sunday dinner.

Professor Rael To Conduct Tours

Two 30-day educational tours of Mexico for students and teachers will be conducted by Professor and Mrs. Juan B. Rael of Stanford university this summer. The tentative dates for the two tours are June 29 to July 28 and August 24 to September 22.

The itinerary will include Guadalupe, Mexico City, Puebla, Tehuacan, Cordoba, the volcano, Morelia, Cuernavaca, Taxco and Acapulco.

Persons wishing further information about the tour may secure it by writing to Professor Rael, 574 Lasuen St., Stanford university, California.

Reading Help Offered Students

Students who desire reading assistance can arrange to get into the reading clinic by checking at the counseling center office in Emerald hall, J. S. Carlson, acting director of the counseling center, announced yesterday. They should make arrangements within the next week, he said.

A $5 fee will be charged students entering the clinic, Carlson said.

Anti-UMT Marchers Showered By Fellow Washington Students

SEATTLE, March 30—(UP)—An attempt by 35 University of Washington students to represent sentiment at the university as being opposed to universal military training was nearly broken up by about 350 fellow students who showered fruit and abuse upon the parading group here today.

The paraders, calling themselves the "students for Wallace," marched from one end of the campus to the other and back again, accompanied by half a dozen motorcycle policemen.

They carried a large American flag and numerous placards expressing opposition to military preparedness. One automobile accompanied the marching group, which had obtained a police permit for the rally and had advertised in the university daily that it would be held.

Their fellow students, reportedly outnumbering the marchers by 10 to one, lined the parade way. They threw tomatoes, apples and grapefruit at the marchers and shouted that they should "go back to Moscow."

Much of the fruit found targets, and some even struck the accompanying police officers. However, the paraders completed their march, posed for photographers from Seattle's daily newspapers, and then dispersed.

Art Exhibition On Display

"I Remember That", an exhibition of watercolor drawings of American interiors from 1850 to 1900, will be on display from 1 to 5 p. m. in the museum of the school of architecture and allied arts from April 3 through 24.

The exhibition has been loaned to the art school by the National gallery of art, Washington D. C., and has been one of the most popular shows loaned by the gallery. It was shown at the Metropolitan museum in New York for five consecutive months and later made an extensive tour of the principal museums in the East.

Subject matter includes typical common place interiors and modes of transportation.

Frosh Jobs Open

Applications by freshmen who wish to be assistant managers of the Frosh baseball team will be accepted by either Don Kirsch varsity coach, or Barney, Yearling instructor, at McArthur court. The assistants are urgently needed according to Kirsch.

New Addresses Called

Students who indicated one address upon pre-registration, but who have since moved to a new address, were asked yesterday by Vergil Fogdall, dean of men, to supply University officials with their new address.
