

Train Display Reviews Start

"The only train rolling with a cargo which could never be replaced," as the Freedom Train has been termed, will arrive in Eugene next Saturday. With the appearance of the red, white and blue streamliner, a collection of important historical documents such as never before have been gathered together will be on display to Eugene citizens.

On loan from the Library of Congress, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, the New York state library, and other sources, the documents are arranged in departments, starting with "Beginnings," and ending with "Flags of Freedom." Included in the display are a 13th-century copy of the Magna Charta; a letter of Columbus' describing his voyage to America, printed in Rome in 1493; the original manuscript of Thomas Jefferson's rough draft of the Declaration of Independence; the official original manuscript of the Bill of Rights; the original Washington's Farewell Address; the manuscript copy of the Gettysburg Address held by Lincoln while making his address; the original manuscript of the Star Spangled Banner in the handwriting of Francis Scott Key; the official American copy of the Declaration of United Nations; and many other original historical documents.

The train is also called the "most tightly guarded" in the country, with a picked unit of red, blue and gold uniformed marine guards, consisting of 24 enlisted men and three officers, all combat veterans averaging six feet and 185 pounds.

In other cities, people have stood in line for as long as seven hours and once inside the train each visitor spends on the average of 25 minutes viewing the documents.

Gaels Choose New Headman

SAN FRANCISCO, March 31—(UP)—Joe Verducci, brilliant young San Francisco high school coach, tonight was selected as head football coach at St. Mary's college to replace Irish Jimmy Phelan.

Verducci, 37, was the unanimous choice of St. Mary's athletic officials from a field of nearly 100 candidates "because of his outstanding record" as coach of Polytechnic high school here and of the U. S. Coast Guard eleven at Alameda, Cal., during the war.

Bay Area Visited By Job Seekers

Many University of Oregon students were in the San Francisco area during spring vacation following up job leads, according to Karl Onthank, dean of personnel administration. Onthank himself was in the Bay area the week before spring vacation to attend a meeting of the Edward W. Hazen foundation, at which arrangements were made for a conference on guidance and personnel, to be held next summer at Berkeley.

He spent several days making contacts toward getting positions for members of the graduating class.

The dean said that a number of last year's class are placed in San Francisco, and praised the help of alumni advisers in the area.
