

Talks Slated For Conference

Panel discussions on Saturday morning will be part of the state conference of Oregon high school students on international relations, scheduled for April 9 and 10 on this campus.

Five members of the University International Relations club will conduct the panels, according to Dr. Charles P. Schleicher, professor of political science. Dr. Schleicher is chairman of the faculty committee in charge of arrangements.

To be conducted between 8:30 and 9:30 a.m., a panel on "Sanctions and the United Nations" will be chaired by Robert L. Miller. Robert Allen, president of the International Relations club will conduct a discussion of "Human Rights," and John H. Horn is chairman of "International Control of Atomic Energy."

Five University students will take part in the panel on "Human Rights in My Country" from 1:30 to 2:30 Friday. They are Fely Corcuera, Philippine islands; Francisco Moreno, Columbia; Capt Hsu Kai Yu, China; Peter Linde, Austria; and Winston Wright, who will represent American Negroes. Warren Miller, senior in political science, will act as moderator.

A panel on "Palestine" is being arranged by Arthur Barre. "Trusteeships" under the leadership of Glenn Morgan will complete the five-panel program.

The conference is sponsored by the Oregon Education association.

Ducks Publish Gresham Paper

Eugene Bird took over the reins of the Gresham "Outlook" as managing editor when 20 members of the University of Oregon school of journalism put out the April 1 edition of the paper during the spring vacation. Heading the business staff was Robert Bechtle. Assisting managing editors for the 22 page issue were Oliver Larson and Kirk Braun. Merle Pugh was news editor.

Sports was in the hands of Fred Taylor, and LaVerne Gunderson took over as society editor. Nancy Peterson was farm editor. Reporters were Alene O'Rourke, Helen Sherman, Arnold Porter, Betty Ann Stevens, Jeannine Macaulay, and Ruthe Foreman. Editorials were written by Eugene Bird, Marvin Myers, Betty Ann Stevens, and Miriam Sullivan.

Warren Ward, George Claseman, Steve Gann and Dedo Misley handled the advertisements. George S. Turnbull, dean of the school of journalism, acted as faculty advisor.

The edition of the "Outlook" contained several April Fool's day angles including a front page story stating that President Harry S. Truman was to speak at the local high school. The gag was revealed in the last two lines of the story.

The edition also featured many photographs by Kirk Braun.

Chairman Calls For Prom Petitions

Joe Conroy, chairman of the Junior Prom, announced yesterday that he will accept petitions for chairmanships of Prom subcommittees until 5 p.m. April 9 at Sherry Ross hall.

The subcommittees are decorations, ticket sales, programs, patrons and patronesses, and cleanup. Petitions for committee members may be turned in at the same time.

Conroy explained that petitioners do not necessarily have to be juniors, but may be members of any class.
