

Thomas to Talk Over KOAC

Norman Thomas, perennial candidate on the Socialist party's presidential ticket, will be interviewed today over the 4 p.m. "University hour" radio broadcast from KOAC. The recorded interview will be under the production of Harry White of the radio workshop staff.

"The Lions Roar," a half-hour comedy, will also be broadcast this afternoon. Cast in the play, under the direction of Rod Nelson, will be Paul Ryman, Harry White, Bill Minehart, Bob Houghlum, Jay Ryerse, Anita Jackson, and Gene Deutschman. Music will be directed by Marge Truchon.

Concluding this afternoon's radio show will be the "Something for You" musical program, under the direction of Jessie Binford.

Wesley Forum Series Continues This Term

The "University of Life" forum series, started at Wesley house last term, will be carried on through spring term, George Gordon, president, has announced.

From recommendations made by the students in last term's discussion groups, three new discussion topics have been chosen and a complete schedule of weekly topics has been made up. Many well-known men and women in this area have been obtained to speak and lead the discussion meetings.

The three major subjects for discussion this term are: "Comparative Religions," a study of the great religions of the world; "Understanding the Bible," a study of four great themes of the Bible; and "Love, Courtship, and Marriage," a study of a basic human relationship leading to the establishment of strong and vital homes.

Each University student interested may register in the class he prefers, as long as there is still room. The first class meeting will be held on Sunday evening and the meetings will continue for the next seven consecutive weeks.

Registration started last Sunday evening and will continue until 6:30 p.m. Sunday. Those who plan to attend a particular class are advised to sign up soon since lack of space has made necessary limitation of the number in each class.

The topics and speakers for the seven discussion meetings of the term are:

Study Group I, "Comparative Religions": "Judaism"—Mrs. David Halpern; "Protestantism"—Rev. L. O. Griffith; "Catholicism"—Allen Hugh Smith; "Mohammedanism"—Paul B. Means; "Shinto"—Wade L. Carter; "Religions of India"—Justina Singh; "Religions of China"—Mrs. David Campbell.

Study Group II, "Understanding the Bible": "God"—Elsworth Tilton; "Man"—Joseph Ellris and David Seaman; "Evil"—Robert Bull; "Immortality"—H. C. Dobson. The first three subjects will be given two weeks each and the last one week.

Study Group III, "Love, Courtship, and Marriage": "What Is This Thing Called Love?"—Virgil Fogdall; "College Dating"—Student panel led by Shirley Fossen; "Is a Philosophy of Life Necessary?"—to be announced; "Divorce"—Paul Geddes; "Parents-Eye View of Marriage"—Parents panel; "Religion in the Family"—L. O. Griffith; "Living Happily Ever After"—Frank Brown.

This program, started in a large Middle Western church, has spread rapidly in the East in the last few years. Oregon Wesley is now pioneering the "University of Life" in the western states. All meetings are open to all University students. The Sunday evening program starts at 5 p.m. with a mixer, followed at 5:30 with a snack supper, a chapel talk at 6 and the Interest group discussions at 6:30.

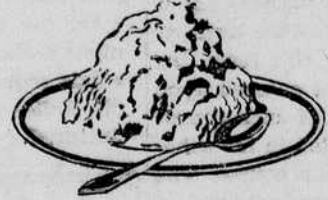

Machinery Ready To Build New Dorm

The contractor for the new women's dormitory started to unload machinery on the campus preparatory to starting work on the project, I. I. Wright, superintendent of the physical plant, announced yesterday. The site is already being cleared, and it is estimated that in about 18 months women will be able to move into the completed building.

Russian Professor To Translate Play

Alexander Koiransky, assistant professor of Russian, has been requested by Katherine Cornell and her director, Guthrie McClintic, to translate a Russian play, which will be produced next season. The play is "Cherry Orchard" by Anton Chekhov.

Koiransky has previously translated "The Three Sisters" from the original Russian and acted as technical adviser when it was presented by Miss Cornell and McClintic. Others in that cast were Ruth Gordon, Edmund Gwenn, and Judith Anderson.

Lighting Fixtures Received for Libe

The lighting fixtures for the University library have been delivered to the physical plant and will be installed in about two weeks when the special eight-foot tubes are to be received. These fixtures will be placed in the main reading room on the first floor, the reference room, and the recent periodical room on the second floor.

Lutheran Group to Meet
