Honoraries To Present Concert

Double Vocal Quartet To Feature Anthem By Local Instructor

Contemporary American music will be presented in a concert given by Phi Beta and Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia Sunday beginning at 4 p.m. in the music school auditorium. Phi Beta is the women's national music and drama organization and Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia is the men's national music fraternity.

A featured composition "O God of Mercy" by Milton Dieterich, instructor of cello, will be sung by a mixed double quartet with an organ accompaniment. Members of this group are Helen Thorburn, Treva Rice, Miriam McCallum Fulton, Geraldine Hettinger, Lowell Chase, James Armet, Earl Anderson, and Robert Fulton. They will also sing "White Birches in the Rain" and "Design for October."

Barbara Eagleson and Rodney Wagner, general chairmen for the concert, said that the program is intended to advance the cause of music in America and to familiarize the public with contemporary American music and composers.

Vocal and instrumental solos will be included on the program, they added.

"O God of Mercy," an anthem, is one of the 25 published works by Dieterich, a member of the University string quartet. This is Dieterich's second year on the University music faculty. He is also organist and choirmaster at St. Mary's Episcopal church.

Handling the publicity for the concert were Pat King and Allen Kirk. Mrs. Maude Garnett, associate professor of public school music, and Donald Allton, assistant professor of music, are advisers for the event.

See program on page 7.

Foreign Students Depict Rights As Established, but Hindered

By WALLY HUMPHRIES

Well-established but somewhat hampered human rights were depicted by University students telling the high school international relations conference of conditions of their own native countries. They spoke at 1:30 p.m. yesterday at the general session.

Fely Corcuera of the Philippines told the delegates that the human rights in her land are hindered by ignorance, tradition, and corruption.

Peter Linde, speaking for Denmark, said that racial discrimination is almost nonexistent in his country. The principal reason for this attitude, he said, is that the country is so reliant upon the trade of tourists of all races and creeds.

Although the government exercises strong control over the people, human rights are upheld and religion is taught freely in the schools, Linde said.

Rights in China are well established but somewhat restricted because of war conditions, Capt. Hsu Kai Yu of the Chinese Nationalist army told the visiting students. He pictured his homeland under its present restrictions of martial law.

The case of the United States Negro was presented by Wilson Walker. He said that although the Negro's rights are guaranteed by the Constitution, enforcement has been difficult. He attributed this difficulty to the lack of public sentiment of racial equality. Still, in the United States, every man has a purpose and the right to make what he can of himself, he said.

Dean O. Meredith Wilson of the University of Utah explained situations in international conflicts to aid the delegates in their discussions and panels held during the rest of the day. He was introduced by Roger Middleton, Salem, president of the state international relations league.

Dr. Charles P. Schleicher, chairman of the University committee, is in charge of the campus activities of the delegates.

After the adjournment of the panel, delegates attended discussion groups.

Freshmen to Disclose Mystery Sreggip Theme At All-Campus Dance

Revelation of the mysterious theme, the Skull and Dagger tapping, and the music of Freddie Keller, will highlight this year's Frosh Glee. The annual freshman dance will be held in McArthur court, tonight from 9 p.m. to 12 p.m.

"Sreggip" is the only clue given by the committee members as to the theme of the event. This word, splashed about the campus for the past week, is connected with the dance, Steve Button, general chairman, said, but he refused to reveal further information.

At 10 p.m., Skull and Dagger, sophomore men's honorary, will climax the intermission entertainment when they tap 26 members for next year's group. Each one of the present members will tap one of the men chosen. The men were selected on the basis of scholarship, leadership, and activities, President Ed Anderson announced.

Freddie Keller, who will be making his second appearance at a Frosh Glee, is well known to the Portland set. He and his orchestra have played in and about Portland and Seaside for several years, as well as at the Hollywood Paladium, the Sherman hotel in Chicago, Casa Loma in St. Louis, and other well known night spots. Featured with the Keller aggregation, will be singing star Judy Bevin, Eddie Beach's piano, and Bob Crowley, billed as "tops in trumpet."

The intermission entertainment has been completed by Kelly Harris, chairman, assisted by Martha Piper, Nan Gaven, and Mac Montague, and will be preceeding the Skull and Dagger tapping. Master of ceremonies will be Ray Muesig.

Helen McFetridge, popular campus pianist, will play a series of her own compositions and she will be followed by a "Corn-ball" duet, a hill-billy act featuring Stan Smith and Newt Thornton.

Steve Button, general chairman of the dance and freshman class president, will address the crowd and immediately following will be the Skull and Dagger tapping.

Eve Overback, chairman of ticket sales, announced yesterday that ticket sales had been going along nicely and more were expected to be sold today. Tickets will be sold at the door, she said. Price per couple is $1.60.

The affair will be short silk.

Chi O's Await French Student

Miss Christiane Belyier, a 20-year-old from Paris will arrive on the campus this morning to begin studies on the University campus.

Miss Belyier is being sponsored by the local chapter of Chi Omega as a special scholarship student and will live in the Chi Omega house. She also has a University of Oregon scholarship and will enter as a freshman.

Mrs. Paul B. Means, instructor in English, was instrumental in making arrangements for the scholarship. Dr. and Mrs. Means and family were personal friends of the Belyier family in Paris. During the war and until her trip to the states, Miss Belyier worked as a private secretary in the Lucian Lelong company. She is flying from New York to Eugene.

Theta Sigma Phi Notes Founding At Matrix Table

Matrix Table on April 16 will celebrate "Matrix Milestones," the 39th anniversary of the founding of Theta Sigma Phi, the first and only national professional and honorary journalistic organization for women.

In 1909, the year women were making their first successful attempt to break into the field of journalism, the first chapter of Theta Sigma Phi was founded at the University of Washington with seven charter members.

Since that time many members have become famous in the field of journalism and creative writing. Notable among the Theta Sigma Phi graduates of the University of Oregon are Nancy Wilson Ross, authoress of "Left Hand Is the Dreamer"; Katherine Kressman Taylor, who wrote the provocative war time sketch, "Address Unknown"; and Victoria Case, contributor to the Saturday Evening Post.

Miss Case, in collaboration with her brother, Robert Ormond Case, has recently published a new book, "We Called It Culture," about the Chautauqua organization, famed in America during the early part of the century.

Matrix Table is presented annually throughout the United States in honor of outstanding women students and professionals in journalism. The matrix, brass mold used in the linotype machine, was adopted as the symbol of Theta Sigma Phi to illustrate their association with the working press.

At Oregon's Matrix Table in the Eugene hotel, Helen Ross of the University of Washington, will deliver the main address of the evening. She will be introduced by Maryann Thielen, president of the local chapter. The subject of Mrs. Ross' speech has not been announced.

The outstanding sophomore and junior women in journalism at the University will be introduced. Outstanding third-term sophomores, juniors, and seniors in the school will be tapped.
