Gay Weekend To Greet Visitors

By JANET BEIGAL

A preview glimpse of college life awaits over two hundred Oregon high school girls who will arrive Friday for AWS Preview Weekend, planned under the supervision of Barbara Johns, outgoing AWS president.

Beginning with the Nickel Hop Friday night, and ending with exchange dinners Sunday, the planning committee has arranged a varied schedule to acquaint the girls with the Oregon campus.

Women's living organizations will hold open house Friday night from 9 to 12 p. m. for the annual Nickel Hop. Guests will be encouraged to wear their identification tags at the Hop.

Exchange luncheons have been scheduled for Friday and Saturday to give the guests an opportunity to visit different types of living organizations. Arrangements for the exchange meals have been made by Dorothy Boles, Ruth Eades, Bep McCourry and Renee Cowell.

An innovation in the weekend agenda is the Fun Fest, scheduled for 2 to 4 p. m. Saturday in Gerlinger gym. Chairmen for the fest are Beth Basler, Joan Ioanne Frydenlund, and Pat King.

An informal open house is planned for 4 to 5 p. m. Saturday in women's living organizations. This open house will give the guests an opportunity to see the inside of as many houses as they wish.

Living organizations received the list of their guests Wednesday. It was compiled by Nancy Bedingfield, Helen Hicks, Barbara Williams, and Mary Stadelman, members of the housing committee.

Many of the preliminary plans for the weekend were made by the co-chairmen of the steering committee, Bev Pitman, president-elect of AWS, and Prudy McCrosky.

Dear Mom:

Do you realize that Junior Weekend, with accompanying Mothers' Weekend, is coming up in only two weeks? This is my personal plea to you to try your very best to visit our campus May 7, 8, and 9 and be royally entertained at this, the very biggest event of the year.

These three days, packed full of wonderful events, promise to be the most super ever and they're all for you! The campus is buzzing with big plans and I can hardly wait to show you around.

Just to give you an idea of what goes on during this glorious weekend—

It all begins Friday night with the All-Campus Sing, following dinner in the living organizations. The whole campus has devoted a lot of time and practice toward winning the cups awarded for the best performance, and I'm sure you'll enjoy hearing all the songs. Also, coronation of the Junior Weekend Queen will take place during the evening. This will be particularly exciting since this is the first year that no one will know who is Queen until the weekend gets underway.

Next on the agenda is the all-University luncheon which is held on the lawn on the old campus. There'll be many things going on throughout the luncheon, including "dunking" of violators of Junior Weekend traditions by Order of the O men; tapping of new members of Scabbard and Blade, Friars, and Mortar Board; and the Queen's Processional. Oh, yes, there'll be music furnished by Joe Ingram and his band. And count on beautiful decorations for the event.

The Mothers' Tea sponsored by the Eugene Mothers Club will take place after the luncheon at Gerlinger Hall. Here you may relax over a cup of tea and chat with the other mothers. I told you this would be a busy day.

The float parade with an entry from each living organization will begin winding its way around the campus at 4 p. m. and after passing the judges' stands at Johnson hall, will continue up the street past Gerlinger so that all the mothers still at the tea will get to see them. "Storybook Wonderland" is the theme of Junior Weekend; so the floats promise to be very colorful.

After dinner, we'll all be getting ready for the Prom, the big dance of the year. There'll be a balcony lounge for all the mothers (including comfortable couches) so that you can enjoy the music and entertainment in complete relaxation. At intermission you'll be served punch and cookies and we'll come upstairs to talk with you and watch the entertainment, which will include awarding of the Float Parade cup, the Koyl and Gerlinger cups to the outstanding junior man and woman, and tapping by Druids.

After church Sunday we'll have dinner together again. Then at 3 that afternoon there will be a Sunlight Serenade held in the beautiful open-air auditorium of the Music school.

So you can see, Mom, there is a big weekend awaiting you. Joanne Frydenlund, general chairman of Mothers' Weekend, the junior class officers, and those working with them have been busy making preparations to fill the three days with a series of memorable events. Be sure to let me know if you aren't able to make reservations anywhere (Eugene will be a busy town that weekend) and I'll contact Nancy Petersen who's taking charge of the housing problems.

They're planning to have some of the mothers stay at the women's living organizations—some of the fellows' mothers, too—so you may get a touch of the life of a coed those two nights.

The whole campus is in a state of excitement about this big weekend and I'm anxious to show you all the events that are planned. And in addition to everything else, we've arranged for the best weather in Oregon's history. Let me know right away when you'll be down.

With Love,
Your sons and daughters at Oregon
