

Kirschmen Head North

Nine Faces Idaho WSC, UW on Trek

The Oregon Ducks left this morning at 7 o'clock on the first leg of their baseball road trip. First stop is Moscow, Idaho, where they tangle in a two-game series with the Vandals Friday and Saturday.

A chartered bus will take the Webfoots on their inland tour of Idaho, Washington State, and Washington. The trip will extend from today through a week from this Saturday.

17-Man Squad

Mentor Don Kirsch named a traveling squad of seventeen players, including six pitchers, two catchers, DeWayne Johnson will be included in the traveling squad if his leg is in condition. Yesterday Kirsch was in doubt as to his condition, and said it would depend upon just how much help Johnson would give with his leg in its present shape. If Johnson remains behind, Willard Stradley, another left hander, will take his place on the list.

The squad named for the road trip includes:
Pitchers: Lokan, Brobst, DeBernardi, Henwood, Walker, Johnson (or Stradley).
Catchers: Burgher, Rodiger.
Infielders: Bartle, Kirsch, Cohen, Stratton, Kimball.
Outfielders: Dibble, Wohlers, Zurcher, Kovenz.

WSC, Huskies Next Week
After the two contests with Idaho, the Ducks rest a day, and then engage the Washington State Cougars at Pullman Monday and Tuesday. They travel to Seattle Wednesday and meet the Huskies in two games Thursday and Friday.

Kirsch plans to have his squad arrive in Eugene after the trip some time late Friday night. The squad will leave Seattle after the last game against the Huskies.

Up in Portland Tuesday, Skipper Kirsch gave quite a few of his second stringers a chance to perform against the Portland U. nine. However, Kirsch's attention was more on the performance of some of his untried hurlers.

Henwood, Walker to Go
The Ducks split the double header, dropping the first game 11 to 5 and dropping the night cap 7 to 3. From these two games, Kirsch was able to choose the two pitchers who will round out his travel squad. He selected Henwood and Walker to make the trip.

Henwood pitched the first part of the opener, and although he was somewhat wild, he made a good showing. Bob Walker hurled the last two innings of the final contest and according to Kirsch looked very good.

Pitchers on Spot
What kind of a showing the Ducks make on this road trip will depend entirely upon the pitchers. If they come through, Oregon will have a good chance to return to Eugene with a chance at the title. Kirsch was somewhat optimistic (Please turn to page seven)

There will be an Order of the O meeting at the Phi Delt house this noon. Newly-elected President Roger Wiley requested that all members be present as it is an important meeting. Other new officers for Order of the O are Reedy Berg, vice-president, and Hal Zurcher, secretary-treasurer.

Oregon's Par-Busters Prepare for Washington

By KEN JOHNSON

Northern division golf supremacy hangs in the balance Friday when Oregon's 1947 champions play host to the Washington Huskies at the Eugene country club.

With three victories behind them, Coach Sid Milligan's Webfoot linksters are given a slight edge. But the Huskies have been rated second only to Oregon this year, and the match should be close.

The Duck collegiate has the requisite for all collegiate sports... depth in reserves. The showing of Bob Sederstrom against WSC and Idaho and the sparkling sub-par 69 shot by Bruce Fischer against OSC last Saturday are testimonials to that fact.

Fischer Moves

Fischer is now fifth man on the team after a victory over Al Riebel. Dom Provost advanced to second position and Al Crosbie and Rod Taylor will play off to decide the third and fourth spots. Riebel and John Prince are matched to sixth man.

Some individual medal scores that have been posted this year would be good enough to place in the money on the "golden trail" of professional golf, and these have been shot in poor weather. Provost's scores of 70, 72, and 67 and Stafford's 71, 72, and 70 would be welcomed by many pros in the circuit.

Bruce Fischer's 69 against OSC wasn't just a flash in the pan, according to other team members. They say that Fischer has been playing well consistently—well enough to beat Prince, Sederstrom, and Riebel out of team positions, and those men are potent competition in any match.

Injury Forces Abbey to End Football Career

Sending his first string linemen to the showers early, Coach Jim Aiken concentrated upon the lesser lights of the football team Tuesday, in a lengthy, blustery workout.

Drawing special attention was Earl Stelle, the quarterback up from the Frosh eleven, whom Aiken is attempting to groom into the supporting quarterback role for Friday's scheduled intrasquad game. The head mentor thinks the youngster has a good throwing arm, but needs polish on his footwork and experience under game conditions before he will be ready for the big time.

Ball Carriers Shine

Several ballcarriers managed to run through the opposition with comparative ease. John McKay as usual stuttered his way into the clear, as did Bob Oas and Keith DeCoursey. Tom Lyons, a newcomer to the pigskin packing fraternity, slashed deep into the secondary several times, and once cleared a path all the way. Woody Lewis looked good in the left half position.

Unless it rains, the intrasquad battle will be performed Friday afternoon, on the practice grid field. Hayward field will not be used until the final game of the spring session, during the football coaches' clinic. The gridmen will be in full uniform Friday, under present plans, and although they have had less than 20 of the permissible (Please turn to page seven)

Henthorne to Miss Meet With Huskies Saturday

A winless Oregon track squad will play host to the highly-rated University of Washington cindermen on Hayward field Saturday afternoon, with the invading Huskies already listed as heavy favorites.

The meet promises to be a re-peating performance of the 81-50 lacing handed the Ducks last year in Seattle. The defending ND champions are strong in every event, and should have no difficulty in handing the under-manned Oregon team its second conference loss in a row.

Henthorne Out

The outlook was further darkened yesterday when Mentor John Warren disclosed that sprinter Dave Henthorne will be unable to compete Saturday.

Henthorne, Northern Division title holder in both the 100 and 220, suffered a leg injury several weeks ago that will keep him on the sidelines until at least May 6. He will be replaced by Bob Weber, a transfer from the 440.

Warren Pessimistic

Warren forecast a clean sweep for the northerners in the track events. The Ducks have been woefully weak in the longer distances all season, and with Henthorne on the injured list, they stand little chance of outpacing the Huskies in the sprints.

Most of Oregon's points will be garnered in the field events. George Rasmussen, pole-vaulter turned high-jumper, who annexed both events against WSC last week, is expected to duplicate his feat Saturday. Ray Heidenrich in the discus, broadjumper Merc Brown, and Lou Robinson in the javelin are all better than average performers, and stand a strong chance of contributing points for top spot in their respective events.

The beautiful 67 shot by Provost against OSC was something to watch. Combining long, straight drives with flawless iron control, Provost was never far from the pin on his approaches and many times had "gimme" putts, some for birds. Even with his terrific playing, had his putter been hotter (Please turn to page eight)

Streetcars Named Dodgers to Retire

NEW YORK—(UP)—The streetcar that named the Dodgers is on the way out.

The trolleys were so rambunctious three decades ago that all Brooklynites were tabbed "Trolley Dodgers," or, more briefly, "Dodgers."

The Brooklyn baseball club inherited the nickname.

But it was revealed that the trolleys are being retired. Trolley buses will take their place.
