

Music School Concert Tonight

The University Symphony orchestra's final concert of the year will be given tonight in the music school auditorium at 8:15 p.m. There will be no admission charge.

Featured on the concert will be four members of the Oregon music school and as a guest, Bertram N. Haigh, who is a horn player with the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra. Faculty members who will appear on the program are George Boughton, violinist, George Hopkins, piano, Robert Hord, piano, and Wade Parks, piano.

The program for tonight includes Bach's Concerto in D Minor for three Claviers, which will be played by Hopkins, Hord and Parks; Mozart's Concerto in E flat for Horn, which will be played by the guest soloist, Haigh; Franck's Variations Symphonique for piano and orchestra, with Hord as soloist; and Dvorak's Concerto in A Minor for violin and piano. George Boughton will be the soloist.

The guest soloist, Haigh, will be in Eugene this week only, where he is holding a horn clinic for high school students.

Dr. Edmund Cykler will conduct the 65-piece orchestra.

Architects Survey Landscape On Annual Four-Day Field Trip

About 25 landscape architect students last weekend participated in the first annual field trip to be taken since the war.

Accompanied by F. A. Cuthbert, professor of landscape architecture, and George Jetty, assistant professor of landscape architecture, the group left last Thursday on the four-day trip which had Portland as its final destination. At Corvallis it was joined by a number of Oregon State College students.

In Salem Friday they inspected the grounds of the state capitol building and Belcrest Memorial park. The Salem firm of Lord and Scriber took them to visit gardens of residential sites designed by it.

On Saturday the students visited Vancouver housing projects, later arriving in Portland, where they joined the Oregon Society of Landscape Architects for its annual meeting, which had been planned especially in conjunction with the trip. A committee from the society aided the University group in planning its whole trip including entertainment.

W. R. Matsler, Oregon graduate who is now landscape architect for the Portland park system, Sunday morning took the group to inspect new park work now under construction. The group returned to Eugene Sunday evening.

The trip is again expected to become an annual event for landscape students as it was before the war, according to Cuthbert, who said that future trips may be planned for San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Seattle.

Editor Stresses Part of Science

The value of a sound background in college science courses for students entering the journalism profession was stressed by Phillip F. Brogan, city editor of the Bend Bulletin, in talks Monday before both the senior editing and public opinion classes.

Brogan returned to the campus Monday for the first time since his graduation in 1923 to tell students that knowledge in scientific fields is necessary to keep pace of this scientific age.

In addition to his editing duties, Brogan is associate director for Oregon of the American Meteor society and chairman of the Oregon Geographic board. His abilities as a science reporter and writer are well known in Oregon.
