Parties Formed by Platforms

Parties would be formed on the basis of their platforms, under Henderson's plan, and students would file petitions to run with the party whose platform they endorse.

A portion of the ASA platform was announced by Marv Rasmussen, ASA number one candidate who was introduced by Dick Savinar. All campus unit through student assemblies was the first point mentioned by Rasmussen.

Return of Student Assemblies

"Such assemblies would contribute to the return of University spirit," Rasmussen averred. "They would also aid in freshman orientation, restoring of traditions, and would help to unite all students."

Independents, cooperatives, and fraternal organizations would hold meetings for the purpose of getting the voice of all students to reach the administration, under the second plank in the Rasmussen platform.

Bill Hayward Memorial

"Because honoraries represent the campus as a whole," Rasmussen stated in his third point, "I would appoint a committee to meet with the presidents of all honoraries to discuss the choosing of members."

Last point mentioned by Rasmussen was a memorial for "Colonel" Bill Hayward—"something of a tangible nature."

"We have talked too much and done too little," reported Diana Dye, USA candidate for ASUO position number two, "in working for student government."

Miss Dye noted that now is the time not only for thinkers, but for thinkers and doers. She supported in every way the principles of USA. "I will do what I can," commented Miss Dye, "in making the student government more representative, more dependable, more efficient, and more responsible."

Bobolee Brophy introduced Miss Dye for USA.

Helen Nickum, ISA candidate for ASUO position number two, was introduced by Geneva Davis, who cited the past activities of the candidate.

Clarification of Platforms

Clarification and elaboration of the ISA platform was given by Miss Nickum who "wants done what everybody wants done—a better student government."

Strengthening of intramurals, publication of constitutions, executive council reports, educational activities budget, better counseling and orientation program, and the backing of the new rally board were points mentioned by Miss Nickum.

Actual participation on the part of each one of us," said ASA candidate Jean Swift, "will result in unit, making our school greater in the eyes of those that observe."

Yell King Demonstrations

Miss Swift, who was introduced by Kay Schneider, reiterated the platform of Rasmussen, and in addition asked for more participation on the part of the women students in particular.

Demonstrations were given by yell king candidates Steve Gann, ISA, and Marv Horenstein, ASA. USA has no candidate but indorses both men running.
