Oregon Claims Services

nalists to be the best English paper in the Middle East.

Military service interrupted his journalistic career when he joined the British army as a public relations manager, serving in Belgium, Holland, and France.

In 1946 he went to work for the Middle East Opinion, a Cairo weekly, as an editorial assistant. He also served as a foreign correspondent for the International Observer of Paris, a weekly newspaper on the order of Time and Newsweek.

Censorship Questioned
Asked about postwar censorship conditions in Palestine, Martin replied that the press was censored because of the general state of emergency.

The British government, explained Martin, asked the editors of Palestinian publications whether they would prefer pre-publication censorship or post-publication censorship. Some form of check was necessary, they claimed, as printed material might give rise to some disturbances in the already touchy situation.

The newsmen chose pre-publication censorship, or inspection of galley proofs by the government censor, because if the offending material were actually printed, as it must be for post-publication censorship, the newspaper might be suspended for a week, a month, or permanently.

Martin, who speaks seven languages, says that he likes Eugene and Oregon students. "I want to be one of you," he said yesterday. "I would like to be treated just like any other American, not as a foreigner."

Webfoots can pride themselves on their friendliness, for he added in conclusion that he is being treated just in that way.

was Elderberry Juice during a question-and-answers game. Name tags were provided by Al Capp's ever-useful shmoos, which appeared in several colors.

Wesley club entertained at the Methodist church downtown with a football party. The guests formed two teams, and the kick-off was determined by a dart game. Walls of the basement room were decorated with streamers and pennants of various colleges.

Poetic Touch
At Westminster house, guests were greeted by the sign: "Enter here and join the dance; jitterbug if you have ants." Over the coffee line to the kitchen, the following morsel was offered: "In the kitchen bring your cup, then go downstairs to see what's up." Departing celebrants were urged to "Return again at any old time and join the gang to improve this rhyme." Poet laureate for the evening was Clell Conrad.

Attendance at each of the parties was gratifying to those who had planned the evening. The purpose of the over-all plan was to acquaint UO students with campus religious groups.

Tigers Take Indians

The lanky righthander walked Johnny Lipon, the first man he faced, on four straight balls, to force in the tying run.

Neil Berry then rapped a sharp bouncer to Ken Keltner at third, who started what appeared to be an inning-ending double play. He threw to the plate to force Paul Campbell, but Walter Judnich dropped catcher Jim Hegan's throw to first, and Berry was safe.

Christopher had the count of two balls and one strike on Outlaw, when the little utility infielder rapped a clean hit to center, scoring Joe Ginsberg and Lipon with the payoff runs.

Starter Virgil Trucks was credited with the victory.

You Get A GOOD DEAL

IN THE

CITIZEN MARINES

If you are an American citizen between the age of 17 to 32 (older if you are a veteran) it will pay you to join the Citizen Marine Corps (Reserve). This organization is the civilian branch of the famous U. S. Marine Corps, whose achievements are known to every American.

Membership in the Citizen Marines carries with it many concrete advantages, but no less important it also carries the tradition and prestige which over 170 years of faithful service have built.

WEAR THIS LAPEL EMBLEM

The Reserve is a spare-time activity. It does not interfere with your regular civilian occupation. A few of the more important opportunities in the organized reserve are

PAY — EDUCATION — TRAINING — PROMOTIONS
TRADE COURSES — TRAVEL — SPORTS

Why not get in touch with your local Marine Reserve Headquarters? There is a spot for you. You veterans should ask about regaining your old rank.
