

Wesley Program Tomorrow

Three prominent campus personalities will speak at Wesley house tomorrow night, as this year's "University of Life" program begins.

Scheduled to speak to three different groups at 6:30 p. m. are director Virgil Fogdall, whose topic will be "Understanding ourselves;" Dr. Paul Means, who will discuss the relationship of science and religion; and Mr. Kaz Kawata, UO student and prexy of the Oregon Methodist student movement, who will speak on "The Christian Faces Political Issues."

Students have been signing up for these three lectures for the past week; however, it is not too late to sign up today. All those interested should apply at Wesley house.

Also scheduled for tomorrow night is chapel, led by Bob Kingsbury and Bobbie Howard, and a supper at 8:30 p. m.

This will be the opening meeting with the "University for Life" theme, and the group has been particularly fortunate in the choice of speakers. All University students are urged to sign up for one of the three topics sometime today.

Oregana Pictures Continue Today

Kennell-Ellis photographers will take pictures of Sigma Nu and Theta Chi members today for the 1949 Oregana, according to Trudi Chernis, editor.

She said the schedule includes the following:

October 4—Sigma Nu, Phi Gamma Delta.

Open Rushing Due

Open rushing for women will begin Monday, October 11, according to Margaret Rauch, Panhellenic president. All interested girls should sign up with Mrs. Wickham before that date.
