Singers On McArthur Program

The Eugene Gleemen will present a musical part of the program opening Religious Evaluation week Sunday evening in McArthur court. A semi-theatrical production, it will include several of the Wesley players and a talk by Dr. J. Renwick McCullough, pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Tacoma, Wash.

D. W. Allton, assistant professor of organ and theory, will play the postlude, prelude, and offertory for the service.

Dr. McCullough will speak on "Religion; Its Verities and Values." Theme for the entire week is "Man's Predicament and God's Answer."

The Sunday night program will be developed around a dramatic sketch featuring two Wesley players. It concerns a discussion between a skeptic and a believer, according to Dave Seaman, co-chairman of the week.

He said the service will last about an hour. Eugene residents and University students have been invited.

Lasting through Thursday, Religious Evaluation week is sponsored by the University Religious council and represents three great world faiths.

Classroom discussions, firesides, and forums are planned daily to follow the Sunday evening program. Eight religious leaders are coming to the campus for the week.

This affair has become an annual event on the Oregon campus and is sponsored yearly by the University Religious Council.

Signed, Sealed, Delivery to Start

CONTRACTS FOR CONSTRUCTION of the student union building were formally signed in Portland Thursday, completing the final link in the drive which began in 1923. Here three members of the state board of higher education look over bond bids, substantially below expectations, prior to signing of the contracts. From left are Henry F. Cabell, seated, George F. Chambers, member of the finance committee, Dr. H. K. Newburn, Leif S. Einseth, member of the building committee.

Indians Even Series Count With 4-1 Win Over Braves

BRAVES FIELD, Boston (AP)—Bob Lemon squared the world series for Cleveland yesterday by setting down the Boston Braves with eight hits for a 4-1 victory in the second game of the best of seven classic before 39,633.

Manager Lou Boudreau, who went hitless in Johnny Sain's opening victory, led the Indians with a sparkling day afield and at bat. His double started a two-run splurge in the fourth and he drove home the third run off southpaw

Warren Spahn in the fifth. He started one double play, was in the middle of another, made a fine catch of a pop fly in short center and picked a man off second.

Lemon, accomplishing what his more famous pitching mate, Bobby Feller, failed to do, came through with a series win in his first start because the Indians were able to handle Spahn. Lemon, a 20-game winner in the regular season, struck out five men and walked three.

The converted infielder who failed the Indians twice in the final weeks of the season, missed tying the series record for chances by a pitcher. He handled 10 chances—3 putouts and 7 assists—one less than Nick Altrock did for the Chicago White Sox back in 1906.

Time after time the hustling braves nudged Lemon into a corner but he always escaped with a whole skin after allowing a first-inning run.

Even then it wasn't entirely his fault. Joe Gordon messed up a roller by Alvin Dark for an error.

Then Earl Torgeson and Bob Elliott followed with successive singles to drive home the run.

The Indians got after Spahn, the No. 2 man of Billy Southworth's staff, in a two-run fourth, that turned out to be enough to hand the Braves their first world series defeat. Only once before had they been in a classic, back in 1914 when they won four straight.

Boudreau opened the fourth with a two-bagger to the right field corner. He hustled home on Joe Gordon's single to center.

Gordon, who had taken second on the futile throw trying to catch Boudreau at the plate, scored when Larry Doby, the fleet Negro centerfielder of the Cleveland club, grounded a single to right field.

In the fifth, Dale Mitchell banged out a leadoff single to left. After Allie Clark sacrificed him to second, Boudreau, the boss, singled through Spahn's legs scoring Mitchell.

That was the blow that ruined Spahn, who was replaced by Red Barrett, the portly relief artist. Red escaped without scoring but the Indians added another in the ninth off Nelson Potter.

The third Braves error of the day, a boot by shortstop Alvin Dark, put Hegan on first base to start the ninth. Jim moved to third on two infield outs and scored when Bob Kennedy dropped a Texas league single into short center.

UO Dream To Become A Reality

(The following story was sent to the Emerald by Lyle Nelson, director of information at the University, who went to Portland to witness the signing of the Student Union contracts.)

PORTLAND, Oct. 7—Contracts for construction of the student union building were formally signed here today following opening and award of bids on bonds to finance the structure. Thus ended a chain of events leading to construction of the building, a chain which began 25 years ago with the class of 1923.

Following signing of the contracts, Ross Hammond of the Ross Hammond company of Portland announced that work would begin immediately on the structure. Mr. Hammond said that he expected to have crews on the job Monday morning.

Bids on the bonds all were substantially below expectations. The award was made to Blythe and company of Portland on a low bid average of 3.40 per cent. John Nuveen and company of Chicago bid an average of 3.479 and A. C. Allyn company of Chicago an average of 3.50 percent. The bids were on a bond issue of $1,900,000.

Parking Restricted In Field Entrances

Students are reminded not to park in the entrances of University athletic fields. Violation of these restrictions will subject the offender to the regular campus $1 improper parking fine, said Vergil Fogdall, director of men's affairs, yesterday.

He also emphasized that during the rainy season campus lawns become extremely soggy. In order to "keep Oregon green," students are asked to refrain from playing ball on the open areas of the campus, such as the area south of Condon hall and the northwest corner of the old campus.
