Chinese Student Notes East-West Differences

By BOB FUNK

What's my home town? Most Webfoots would answer Portland, K Falls, Pendleton, or even LA—but not so freshman Arthur Choo. Arthur has come all the way from Singapore, Straits Settlements.

There's a story behind his being at Oregon. It involves three persons—Dr. Paul B. Means of the UO faculty, Mr. Khoo Soo Chay, a New York merchant, and of course, Arthur. Arthur met Dr. Means when the doctor was a Methodist missionary in Malaya. Through him Arthur became interested in a state-side education, and more specifically, the University of Oregon.

But interest wasn't enough. There were years of preparation at the Anglo-Chinese school in Singapore.

"We had students of all nationalities at the school," reminisces Arthur, "but the student body was chiefly Chinese."

Arthur was captain of the school swimming team, house captain, a warrant officer in the boy's brigade, and a member of Sea-Rovers. Other activities took in YMCA membership, Chinese swimming club, Straits Chinese-British Association, and Methodist Youth Fellowship.

After acquiring a Senior Cambridge Certificate—equivalent of our high school diploma—Arthur was ready for college. That's where Mr. Khoo Soo Chay comes in. Mr. Chay is paying all of Arthur's expenses at Oregon, and the third member of the triangle, Dr. Means is acquainting him with the UO campus.

As to the latter, Arthur is a bit amazed. "It would take a long time to explain my surprise at the trust people here place in each other. Back in Singapore things are much more reserved and formal.

With a chuckle he comments on boy-girl relations. "No one at home would dream of holding hands right on the street. Boys and girls seem to take each other much less seriously here." He is also fascinated by the large number of slot machines at Eugene—nothing like that back in Singapore, either.

Right now Arthur is concentrating on his studies. He finds German and physics particularly interesting. Since his major will be civil engineering, he will spend from five to eight years in this country, returning to Singapore to enter his vocation.

Naturally, he's a little homesick. "I missed home quite a lot when I first came, but when classes started I didn't have any time to be homesick."

Arthur came to the States on the China Mail. "The sea was practically a sheet of glass on the way over, so I wasn't seasick. When we put out from Sakhalin, north of Japan, I had my first experience of cold. I expect fore of the same this winter."
