Gate Open For Public At 12:30

Athletic Director Leo Harris announced that student gate B at Multnomah stadium for the Oregon-USC football game will open at 12:30 p. m., Saturday.

Harris emphasized that Oregon rooters will have priority on entrance to their rooting section until 1:15. After that, the general public will be admitted, and late students will have to take their chance on obtaining seats.

"The student gate will be plainly marked", Harris said, "and is located on the east side of the playing field."

Veterans, who have purchased general admission tickets for their wives, may go to the business office at McArthur court any time this week and pick up student veteran wife identification tickets. These are necessary to permit the veterans' wives to sit in the Oregon rooting section at the game.

Order of the O will do the policing and ushering of the student gate at the game. The organization is also reserving a section for the band and the faculty.

Order of the O president Roger Wiley announced that members will meet at gate 19 at 12 p. m., Saturday, in sweaters or jackets. Ray Heidenrich is in charge of the seating arrangements that afternoon, and members are requested to contact him at the Phi Gamma Delta house for further informa-

Dr. Staples Author Of October Article

Dr. Lloyd W. Staples, associate professor of geology, is the author of an article, "Oregon's New Minerals and Discredited Species," appearing in the October 1948 issue of The Mineralogist.

In this paper Dr. Staples points out that only five new minerals have been discovered in Oregon, compared to 54 which have been described from California.

The five Oregon minerals are priceite, josephinite, arionite, johannsenite, and mansfieldite. More intensive study of Oregon's mineral resources is recommended and some of the most favorable fields for yielding new minerals are dis-

Baldwin Ends Coast Range GeologySurvey

Geological studies made by a University of Oregon scientist of two areas in the coast range country of Oregon have recently appeared in print. One appears as an article in the Bulletin of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, largest professional magazine in the field, and the second is published in a state of Oregon governmental bulletin.

Dr. E. M. Baldwin, assistant professor of geology in the university, is co-author with P. D. Snavely, Jr., of the A.A.P.G. Bulletin article, which is a summary of their work | is not enough," Williston warned. in the Siletz River area.

Four Yell Dukes Raise Squad to 12

By JOAN MANNING

Four yell dukes were selected yesterday by the rally board to assist Marve Hornstein, yell king. They are George Watkins, Don Thomas, Mike Mikelson, and Buddy Leonard.

The board planned to take only three from the ten who tried out, according to Alex Murphy, chairman, but upon further consideration decided that a bigger rally squad would give more attention to the different rooting sections during the yells.

Leonard and Steve Gann have been leading temporarily, Murphy. continued, because the football season opened before school started and tryouts could take place.

Largest UO Rally Squad

The rally squad this year is the biggest ever, Murphy said, with twelve members. The rally girls include Betty Arnold, Katherine Carter, Betty and Marilyn Hillman, Nadine Routtu, Gen Thompson, and Jackie Wren.

Advance plans for the Portland rally for next Friday night include a parade at 9:45 starting at Park and Main and continuing to the old Victory center on Sixth street between Morrison and Yamhill. The rally will begin there at 10 and will include speakers representing both Oregon and USC, student entertainment, and Oregon songs led by the new rally squad.

Bergs to Give Pom Poms

"Oregon State had a really marvelous rally in Portland," Horenstein emphasized, "so we should try to have a big turn out to show them up."

More festivities are scheduled for Saturday morning when the band will parade in front of several stores and entertainment will be put on in Charles F. Berg's at 10. Kwamas will distribute free pompoms and megaphones there, through the courtesy of Berg's.

New rally squad uniforms and new yells will be features at the game, Horenstein announced, and the "squad will be functioning at its best."

Russian-Born Professor Fled Revolution of 1918; Taught in China, England; Saw Service in War

By BOB FUNK

"Russian is really not so difficult to learn as most people think," opines V. C. Strash, newly appointed assistant professor of Russian and French.

Mr. Strash, recently of the University of Washington, teaches Russian with the "modified direct" method.

"We use choral recitation of unfamiliar sounds to cancel selfconsciousness on the part of the student," said the professor. Strash also believes that Russian verb conjugations are no more difficult than French and German.

Served in Imperial Army

Born in Russia, Strash was educated for the foreign service at the University of Moscow. Upon graduation, however, he was drafted into the Imperial Army. After being discharged in 1918, he fled to eastern Sicily and Berlin, respec-

China in order to escape the revolution in his homeland.

For a period of four years, Strash taught Russian in the Manchurian foreign colony. Then in 1922 he came to the United States.

"I joined the U.S. Army immediately upon arriving. In that way I became a citizen in three years."

By 1927 he had received his commission as 2d Lieut.

Received MA From UW

Meanwhile, he had taken work for his Master's degree at the University of Washington, and upon leaving the army entered the University's far eastern department. He also taught Russian, his native

A man of evident versatility, Strash served as a welfare worker overseas during the last war. In 1943 and 1945 he was stationed in tively, and in 1944 he taught language at the American university at Shrivenham, England.

Understanding Through Language Strash is well informed on the part the Russian language can play in world affairs.

"Language is the best means of international, and at the present time it is particularly important that we understand the Russian and the atomic age. people. For this reason it is encouraging to note the rising enrollment in Russian classes."

The University has at present 35 students of Russian.

"There are seemingly endless vocational opportunities for those who can speak Russian," stated Mr. Strash. "There are perhaps 50,-000 persons in this country who can speak Russian, and within a period of five years, all of these per-
