

Chamber Series To Open Drive On Ticket Sales

The newly-organized chamber concert series will conduct a ticket sales drive during the next week. The series, sponsored jointly by the three University of Oregon music honoraries, is designed to supplement the program of the Civic Music association and emphasizes contemporary works, Steve Stone, co-chairman of the campaign, said.

The California String Quartet is scheduled for the first concert, November 8, and is composed of San Francisco Symphony orchestra members. Formed in 1946, it is gaining a nation-wide reputation for its performance of contemporary works as well as classical selections.

Abramowitch Next

Bernhard Abramowitch, California pianist, will present the second of the series early in the spring; the third performance of the series will consist of three one-act operas given by the school of music students.

Season tickets, costing $3, will be available at the music school Monday and Tuesday and in the Co-op Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday. Only a limited number of seats are available as the concerts are to be given in the music school auditorium.

Organizations sponsoring the series are Phi Beta, Mu Phi Epsilon, and Phi Mu Alpha.
