Fiftieth Year of Publication and Service to the University

VOLUME L

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, EUGENE, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1948

NUMBER 25

Portland Tea Draws Officials

Several University officials will attend the annual freshman mothers' tea in Portland this afternoon, sponsored by the Portland chapter of Oregon Mothers.

President and Mrs. Harry K. Newburn; Donald M. DuShane, director of student affairs; Golda P. Wickham, director of women's affairs; Vergil S. Fogdall, director of men's affairs; Karl W. Onthank, dean of the graduate placement service; and Eldon Johnson, dean of the college of liberal arts, and Mrs. Johnson plan to attend the function.

To Give Address

Mrs. Wickham will address the Portland unit of the Oregon Mothers Thursday morning. She, Newburn, and Onthank will also attend a luncheon meeting of the state board of that organization.

Onthank will report on Oregon Mothers' scholars and the scholarship program at the board meeting Thursday. He will also attend a meeting of the Northwest Personnel Manager's Association.

Judges Announced For Sign Contest

Tom McLaughlin's homecoming sign committee has announced its complete and revised list of judges for Friday night's contest.

They are Gordon Wilson, student in business administration; Bob Hanrahan, architecture major; Patty Beaton, art student; Mrs. Paul Means, former University English instructor and wife of Dr. Means, head of the religion department; and Mrs. Hally Huntington, prominent Eugene citizen.

Judging will begin at 6 p.m. Friday. Winners will be selected on the basis of originality and appropriateness to this year's theme, "A New Look at Oregon."

McLaughlin yesterday issued a final warning to all houses not to exceed the $30 price limit on signs. Obvious overexpenditure will immediately disqualify an entry, he said.

Sign committee members are Barbara Stevenson, Jane Carlisle, Don Dunn, Steve Church, Bill Bowes, Bob Buchanan, and Emily West.

Whisker Publicity Sub-Chiefs Named

Sub-committee heads for the forthcoming Sophomore Whisker publicity have been named by co-publicity chairmen Steve Church and Stan Turnbull.

In charge of Promotion will be Bill Lance. Donna Mary Brennan and Jim Harber will be in charge of special publicity stunts at the men's and women's houses. Ann Case will be in charge of posters.

Turnbull and Church said that petitions already turned in would be used as a basis for organizing the sub-committees, but asked that others interested in working on them contact the sub-committee chairmen.

Two Movies Shown Tonight at Chapman

"Duck Soup" starring the Marx brothers and "The Barber Shop" starring W. C. Fields will be shown on the Educational Activities department film program tonight as part of a series tracing the history of comedy in the American motion picture.

There will be two showings starting at 7:00 and 8:45 p.m. in 207 Chapman hall.

Housing Plans Make Progress

"The school of journalism is very grateful for the response of the various living organizations in answer to their requests for housing of this year's annual high school press conference delegates," said Warren C. Price, general chairman of the conference, yesterday concerning housing conditions.

Mr. Price expressed his hope that those organizations which have not as yet agreed to house some of the delegates will find it possible to do so, and will send in their replies soon. He also hopes that those who have already signed with the school will find it possible to house one or two more than was originally signed for.

Some Houses Agree

At the present date, houses have agreed to take care of 67 girls and 48 men for the nights of November 4 and 5, and the need for accommodations is expected to be double this number.

The school of journalism will pay $1 per person per night to each house, and members of Sigma Delta Chi and Theta Sigma Phi, journalism honoraries, will escort the high school delegates to the houses.

Jacobson Returns

Dr. Paul B. Jacobson, dean of the school of education, will return today from the School Administrators' conference, October 18-19, in Salem.

Plans Near Completion For Dance

Three hundred balloons will drop from the ceiling of McArthur court at 11 p.m. Saturday on dancing students and homecomers, Jeannine Macaulay, dance co-chairman, announced yesterday.

Friars, senior men's honorary, will tap new members during the one intermission. At that time the Homecoming awards will be announced, Miss Macaulay added.

Tickets will be on sale from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Co-op, and at McArthur court the night of the dance, she stressed, as well as in living organizations.

Short silks and suits will be in order for the dance. Corsages will not be worn.

Credit will be extended only to houses for the number of tickets the living organization wishes to purchase. The educational activities office is permitting credit because of the current money shortage. Bills will be sent November 1, and only authorized representatives may buy for their organizations.

Alumni who register for Homecoming at the designated times will be admitted free to the dance. Those not registered must purchase tickets. Parents will be admitted free to watch the dancers from the balcony.

Only 1000 programs will be given out, Miss Macaulay emphasized, so early arrivers alone will be assured of receiving them.

More Pics Slated

Part of the Cherney hall residents will have pictures taken today for the 1949 Oregon, along with members of Alpha Tau Omega. Tomorrow Cherney residents will share Kennell-Ellis studio with members of Phi Kappa Psi.

To finish the week, Sigma Phi Epsilon and Alpha Phi members will have pictures taken Friday.

Houses to Report Red Cross Reps

House presidents are to phone Mary Stadelman at 2900 to give her the names of Red Cross representatives whom they have appointed in their living organizations. The representatives will serve for the 1948-49 school year.

'O' Men Tab More Violaters

The latest list of violaters of Homecoming week traditions was released last night by the Order of "O." Fifty students were reported, including 24 boys and 26 girls.

Offenders are to report to the steps of Fenton hall today at noon. These are Kirk Braun, Bob Bodner, Terry O'Leary, Lyle Rogers, Wayne Metzker, Stan Welborn, Larry Neer, Bill Gross, Mike Mitchell, Woodley Lewis, Bud Leonard, Doc Huffaker, John Parsons, Jim Vranizan, Al Tapfer, Clark Gilman, Roy Carlson, Harry Russell, Joe Sugara, Tom Tarbell, Greg Mardikian, Faber DeEhane, Leslie Mitchell, Norm Olds.

Betty Hillman, Marilyn Hillman, Connie Jackson, Cyn Griffin, Leslie Palfrey, Nancy Humphrey, Phyllis Stewart, Georgann Baylon, Lloyd Hough, Buzz Engwall, Larilyn Thompson, Kay Becker, Grace Hoffman, Eva Moore, Jean Steiner, Imogene Love, Bernadine Backlund, Pat Davis, Merideth Stearns, Jackie Newburn, Carol Jewitt, Carom Engelson, Phyl Morgan, Flo Mitchell, Jackie Wachorst.

A committee of the Order of "O" will be around sometime this week to get all violaters who fail to show up for punishment.

Penny Interviews Set For November 4

A. K. Pemberton of the J. C. Penney stores will be on the campus November 4 to interview men for management training, according to K. W. Onthank, director of graduate placement.

Committee Reaffirms Policy Rule

Major party presidential and vice-presidential candidates will continue to receive invitations to speak on the Oregon campus. The University assembly committee reached this decision by unanimous vote at a meeting yesterday. The invitation which was originally extended September 7 through the chairman of the state organizations was again made.

The September 7 letter announcing the policy was sent in sufficient time to permit any party which desired to do so to take advantage of the opportunity, the committee pointed out.

Party Responded

Only the Republican party responded by bringing in the vice-presidential candidate for a Eugene speech. Although the vice-presidential candidate of the Democratic party was in Oregon, he did not accept the invitation.

Purpose of the policy, according to the committee, was not so much concerned with having party representation as with giving students, faculty and townspeople an opportunity to hear the top national candidates.

Programs Crowded

The committee said that it would like to extend the policy to other candidates and speakers, but to do so would lead to more speeches than could be incorporated in the regular assembly program.

President Harry Truman was offered an opportunity to speak on the campus when he passed through Eugene last June. He turned down the offer, on the grounds that his time was "too limited." Recently, the Democratic organization in Eugene has attempted to secure McArthur court to provide an adequate auditorium for the speakers they had planned to invite to Eugene. The University has refused their requests, pointing to the policy adopted September 7.

Orator Tryouts Held Thursday

On Thursday, October 21, a try-out will be held to select a UO representative for the men's division of the Intercollegiate Forensic association of Oregon speech contest, which is to be held on December 9 at Pacific college in Newberg.

Topic for the men's division is "Present American Reconstruction Policies Abroad." Participants in try-outs will draw three sub-topics, choosing one to give in seven minutes after an hour's preparation. Notes will not be permitted.

Men interested should contact Dr. Montgomery at 107 Friendly hall at 3 p.m. Thursday afternoon, when the drawing for sub-topics will be made. Tryouts for women will be held at a date to be announced later. The only eligibility requirement for either men or women is that they be registered in the University and carrying a minimum of twelve hours.

Louise Clouston Begins Theater Work at Early Age; Next Role is Gabby Maple in 'The Petrified Forest'

By MARGE SCANDLING

Some luminaries of stage and screen may boast of starting out in leading roles, but friendly, red-haired Louise Clouston of the University theater is different. Louise got her start as a first-grader when she played a mouse in a production of "The Pied Piper of Hamelin." "I'll never forget it," she confided in an interview Tuesday, "my partner's tail got caught in the scenery, and there I was, trying to pull him onto the stage for all I was worth."

There have been lots of roles between that one and Gabby Maple, the one Louise plays in the forthcoming production of "The Petrified Forest." Louise had her share of high school play parts and started her University theater career during her freshman year with the role of Plum Blossom in "The Yellow Jacket." Last year she played three major roles — Eustacia in "The Dover Road," Judy O'Grady in "The Adding Machine," and Puck in "Mudsummer Night's Dream." She claims the role of Puck was her favorite but has enjoyed all of the roles because of their wide variety. "Playing something different each time is part of the fun," she smiled.

Louise finds the interpretation of her present role more difficult than any of the others. "Before, I've played more or less a certain 'type', but Gabby Maple is an individual who seems very realistic." The complexity of Gabby intrigues Louise. "She's caught in this situation with all the odds against her, but she never gives up her dream of studying art in France someday. Yet she is completely realistic and straightforward about things."

The same complexity is true of the other characters in the play, Louise believes. She quoted a critic as saying, "Every character in 'The Petrified Forest' has a soul written into his part."

When asked about her make-up for the play, Louise expressed relief that she would wear her hair in its usual casual style. "This will be about the first time that I haven't had to do something to it—either dye it or cut it off."

She didn't mind cutting it short for Puck last year, but as the Chinese Plum Blossom, it had to be black. "I tried everything," Louise said, "Rit dye, shoe polish, and ink." Finally in desperation she devised an intricate coiffure of false black hair and some hair nets.
