Oregon Faculty Members Plan State-wide Tour

Members of the University of Oregon faculty are planning a state-wide educational tour within the next few weeks, according to Lyle Nelson, director of information.

Ellickson, associate dean of graduate students, D. H. Kirsch of the athletic department, President Harry K. Newburn, Les Anderson, alumni secretary, and Lyle Nelson.

REGINALD SORENSON

Parliament Member Sets Talk

Reginald Sorenson, a prominent member of the British parliament, will speak in room 3, Fenton hall, at 4 p.m. today. His topic will be "The Purpose of the British Labor Movement."

Sorenson has long been an active member of the Labor party; since 1929 he has been a representative of that party in parliament. Prior to his election, he gained considerable experience in widely varied lines of work.

In 1916 he was appointed a minister of the Free Christian Church after which he helped in the organization of the Fellowship of Reconciliation in Great Britain and was made its secretary.

Active in agriculture, labor and educational fields, the speaker is vice president of the National Peace council and the International Fellowship league. He has served on numerous committees of parliament, notably dealing with problems of colonial affairs and education. He was a member of the deputation to India in the recent crisis, and is presently on the Labor Party Imperial Advisory committee.

The speech will be under the sponsorship of the educational activities board and is open to the public. Sorenson is currently touring Oregon under the auspices of the American Friends Service committee.

U of O Law Dean Leaves For Meeting

Dean Orlando J. Hollis of the University of Oregon law school, left the campus Wednesday for Chicago, Ill., where he will attend a meeting of the executive council of the American Association of University Professors, Friday and Saturday, October 29 and 30.

This is the first meeting which the Oregon dean will attend as a member of the council from District 10 in the Northwest.

Oregon Students To Gamble For Corvallis Tickets

Tickets for the Oregon State game in Corvallis November 20 will soon be distributed to Oregon students by a new method decided upon by the executive council last night as the most "equitable way."

According to the process, a student may have a chance to obtain one of the 1500, two dollar admittances by signing ticket no. 33 in his athletic book, and dropping it in a ballot box in the Co-op beginning next Thursday and lasting until Monday.

A total of 1450 names will then be drawn from the box at an executive council meeting Monday night, November 7. The 50 tickets left over will be allotted to executive council and Order of the O members.

The latter will take care of seating arrangements and will police the special Oregon rooting section at Corvallis.

The names drawn will be put in alphabetical order and placed on lists to be posted in the library, Co-op and McArthur court for three days, in order that students may see if their names are there.

To insure no borrowing of athletic books, students will be required to bring both their ticket book and registration cards when they purchase their tickets at McArthur court November 8, 9, and 10. Book numbers and names must coincide with the athletic office lists.

For the approximately 30 students whose athletic books are not ready yet, slip of paper may be received from the office of Howard Lemons' athletic business manager, with the number of their book on them, which may be filled out and used instead.

UO Delegates Attend Conference

Student body president Bob Allen, Oregon managing editor Larry Davidson, representing UO publications, and junior executive council representative Art Johnson will attend the 10th state convention of the Oregon Federation of Collegiate Leaders in La Grande November 11, 12, and 13.

Problems to be discussed at the meeting are faculty-student control of finances; student unions; Greek organizations; disciplinary procedure and finance.

Entire State Enrollment Drops Slightly

The enrollment in the six major institutions of the State system of higher education dropped less than one per cent this year despite a decrease in veteran enrollment of 11.8 per cent, according to Chancellor Paul C. Packer.

Registration at the close of the enrollment period is now 17,259, only 114 fewer than last year's record breaking 17,373 students enrolled on the same date. Registration at the University of Oregon showed an increase this year of 257 students, making a total of 6,899. Although Oregon State college has 7,418 students enrolled, it has enrolled 63 students less last year.

Chancellor Packer believes registration next year may show another slight drop. He gave as the reason entering classes into the now large upper division section will be slightly smaller. This decline, however, will not be enough to bring student bodies within range of the facilities which were designed for fewer than 11,000, he said.

The chancellor stressed the need of bringing faculties and physical plants up to the necessary levels to meet the needs of the present enrollment and to prepare for an even greater registration beginning about 1955 and reach a peak about 1960.

The present enrollment is concentrated more heavily than before in upper division classes, which being small, increase teaching costs.

Faculty 'String Quartet' Concert Scheduled for November 14

Chamber music performed by members of the faculty of the Music School, will be presented November 14 for the students of the university and the residents of Eugene.

This group, known as the University String Quartet, is composed of two violins, George Boughton and Mary Kapp Allton; viola, Edmund Cykler; and violoncello, Milton Dieterich. This is the second anniversary of the quartet with these members.

The program, to be given in the Music School Auditorium at 4:00 P. M., will feature the works of three composers. They are:

1. Boccherini's "Quartet, Opus 6, No. 5" in three movements; "An-

dantino," "Tempo Di Minuetto," and "Allegro Vivace."

2. Dvorak's "Terzetto, Opus No. 74"; "Allegro", "Larghetto," "Scherzo Vivace", and "Theme with Variations". This work is scored for two violins and viola.

3. Mozart's "Quartet No. 19 in C Major" (Koechel No. 465). This number is known as the "Dissonance Quartet" because of the dissonant character of its introduction.

This is only one of many concerts on the varied program to be offered by Music School for the enjoyment of the students and the residents of Eugene. All are free except those in the Chamber Concert and Eugene Civic Concert series.
